EDITORIAL FOREWORD

THE PURPOSE OF THIS HANDBOOK

Primarily a guide book for parents to aid them in the discriminating selection of schools for their children, this Handbook has incidentally become of value to educators not only in the private schools and colleges, but in the public schools. Its purpose is to give unprejudiced and discriminating evidence about the schools, their individual history, traditions, spirit, atmosphere, and the personalities that have shaped them.

The need for such a guide is evidenced by the increasing sale through book stores and direct to parents, and by the great number of parents and educational advisers who appeal for supplementary information about schools.

Five members of the staff now assist, each in his own field, — boys, girls, special schools, summer camps, — in interviewing and advising parents. Information in regard to any private school or class of schools is gladly supplied. Where inquiries come by mail on properly filled out blanks, sent on request, it is possible to give advice gratis. For consultation or extended correspondence a suitable professional fee is charged.

Schools are coming more and more to turn over their difficult pupils and misfits for proper placement. This frequently necessitates not merely interviews but psychological or psycho-analytical examinations. Many boys and girls who were facing failure have been transplanted and are now doing well.

In its further aim to give a broad and comprehensive view of a field of human activity, educational endeavor as initiated by individual educators or groups of parents unhampered by political systems or the exigencies of tax rates, some attempt has been made each year to reflect in the introductory chapters the most notable work and the more inspiring educational books

HOW TO USE THE BOOK

The Table of Contents shows the arrangement, new in this edition. Any school whose name is known may be immediately found by turning to the Index. The arrangement is geographical, beginning with the northeastern states and proceeding south and west. Cities and towns are arranged alphabetically under each state. Schools in each community are likewise alphabetically arranged. The less important schools, those of which little is known and those from which no recent information has been received, are similarly grouped in the Supplementary List, pages 622-685.

This arrangement, which differs from that of previous editions, brings all the schools in one community together. But parents in deciding on a school for a son or daughter generally wish to make comparison of similar schools that would meet their needs in a restricted region. The grouping of such schools together with pictorial representation in the school Announcement Section, pages 739-928, has been found so generally useful that parents turn first to this section in making preliminary choice. The better schools have here condensed upon a page the more salient facts put forth in their catalogs.

The more detailed classification of schools by function and with reference to the class of pupils and courses offered will be found greatly elaborated in Classified Lists, pages 686-738.

The Who's Who, pages 1041-1124, gives brief scholastic records and biographical data pertaining to school executives.

11TH EDITION CHANGES

In arrangement radical changes have been made in this edition. These have not been ventured upon without the conviction that the new arrangement, when familiar, will better meet the needs of those who use the Handbook. An enormous amount of new material, collected with much difficulty, has been incorporated in thus rewriting the whole book. This, naturally, has offered opportunity for an increased number of errors. Corrections in matters of fact are always welcomed. Opinions are frequently valuable.

In capitalization and punctuation, but one purpose has been kept in mind, — to help the reader to quickly grasp the meaning. In the announcements, capitals have been used for emphasis. We gladly split the infinitive when it adds to clarity or force. The apostrophe, obsolete sign of ancient inflection, we cheerfully speed to oblivion. Girls schools, boys schools, and nurses training schools need no apostrophes. Hyphens are anachronisms, banished since the war. Well equipped, coeducation, cooperation, post graduate, — why hyphenate such words? Quotation marks are used to attract attention, to set off a word or a phrase from that which is exclusively our own, or to emphasize sickly, saccharine sentimentality and tired, overworked phrases, — "distinctly religious atmosphere", "development of noble Christian womanhood".

Common usage is followed often when it is against the rule, or against the wishes. For usage is the final law that controls. We know none higher. In general, we use Roman Catholic against the direct wishes of some heads. Any school run by an order directed by the Pope is designated as Roman Catholic.

THE EDUCATIONAL YEAR IN REVIEW

PRIVATE AND PUBLIC SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

The private schools continue to be prosperous, to increase in number, and to increase in enrollment. Figures, accurate enough for comparison to show the relative increase over other years, are not available. There is annually compiled by our city, state, and public school systems a tremendous volume of statistical figures. These are reworked and published by the Bureau of Education, but much might be eliminated without loss. Press releases have been given out by the U. S. Bureau of Education on the enrollment of more recent years, but the latest figures that have been compiled and published are for 1923-24.

Of the 29,345,000 children of school and college age from 5 to 17 in 1923-24, 27,398,000 were enrolled in schools, public and private. Of those in elementary schools, including kindergarten, 20,898,000 were in public schools, and 1,473,000 in private and parochial. Of the total number in secondary schools, 3,389,000 were in public high schools; 245,000 in private high schools; 61,000 in the preparatory departments of colleges and universities. In teacher training schools there were 245,000; in colleges, universities, and professional schools, a total of 664,000, excluding preparatory students; in secondary courses in normal schools, 35,000.

According to these figures, 7% of the school population was not enrolled at any time during the year. But the American Library Association estimates that only 34% were in regular attendance at school. The difference between these two estimates is 27%, which is the difference between enrollment and regular attendance. It is the difference, too, between the optimistic attitude of the government bureau and the pessimistic attitude of the Library Association.

Private secondary schools, then, have an attendance 11% that of the public secondary schools. One secondary school pupil out of every 12 pupils attends private school. In elementary education, the private schools enroll only 7% as many as the public schools. That is, out of 100 pupils 7 attend private schools. In normal schools and teachers' colleges, 6% attend private institutions while in universities and colleges twice as many attend private institutions as attend state supported universities. This is as it should be. It shows clearly that the taxpayer has assumed most fully the burden of preparing teachers and of educating through the elementary grades. Higher education receives relatively the least public support.

THE COST

Alarming figures are given forth from time to time in regard to the rapidly increasing cost of education, — figures alarming at least to some conservative taxpayers. The nation's annual budget for grammar and high schools was, according to the National Industrial Conference Board, in 1924 $1,820,743,000. This is equivalent to an eight mill tax or eight-tenths of one cent on the total tangible property of the nation. The expenditure per capita, in 1924, was $16.25. This was an increase of 474% since 1900. But making adjustments for the shrinking of dollar value, the National Industrial Conference Board concludes that expenditures have merely doubled.

In a quarter of a century, municipal, national, personal, and family expenses have probably more than doubled. Certainly the wealth of the country has multiplied many times. The illiteracy revealed by the war, the new attitude toward education, and the increasing importance of the individual all justify doubling the money spent on education twenty-five years ago.

Among the states we find the highest per capita expenditure for education in the West. California ranks first, spending in 1924 $159.35 per child. Nevada spent $120.19; Wyoming, $196.23. In dividing the forty-eight states into three groups of equal number according to high or low expenditure, the highest group contains Colorado, with $90.94 per capita; Minnesota, $86.48; South Dakota, $84.47; Iowa, $79.77; North Dakota, $77.42; Arizona, $76.65; and Nebraska, $75.57. New York ranks highest in expenditure per capita among the eastern, highly industrialized states and fourth among all states, with $97.50. New Jersey with $93.76, Ohio with $86.88, and Michigan with $86.74 are also in the top group.

PUPIL CLASSES

The grouping of pupils in classes by chronological age or by years in school is out of date. The plan of dividing some or all of the pupils of the elementary school grades into ability groups, according to a recent report of the Bureau of Education, has already been adopted by 145 cities out of 163 having a population of ten to thirty thousand. The plan is used in all the elementary school grades in 80 of the 145 cities. In the 65 other cities, 16 use it in grades six to eight, 23 in grades four and five, and 26 in grades below the fourth.

Intelligence quotient, mental age, educational age, and teacher's judgment constitute the bases of classification in 30 cities of ten to twenty thousand population. In cities of thirty to a hundred thousand population, 89 classify the elementary school pupils into ability groups, 7 those in the junior high school, and 36 those in the senior or regular four-year high school. Of 40 cities of a hundred thousand or more population, 36 employ ability grouping in some or all of the elementary school grades, 28 in some or all of the junior high school classes, and 26 in some or all of the senior high school classes.

PROBLEMS OF SECONDARY EDUCATION

Secondary education, developing so rapidly, has growing pains, evidence that there is need of readjustment and remedies. The modern scientific attitude toward the developing organism and the learning processes was first effectually applied in elementary education and is now affecting secondary education and may eventually touch the colleges. The progress that has been made in the best educational thought applied to secondary education during the past several years is well illustrated by a comparison of the outstanding books on the subject of these two periods. Compare, for example, Inglis on secondary education of a few years ago with Emerson's review in the following pages. The one is a collection of practices, a mere compilation; the other is a critique with a philosophy based on scientific experiment. It is only within a few years that the leaders of secondary education, the head masters of important schools, have seriously felt the need for improvement. The present day problems of secondary education have to do with practical matters, with curriculum, and with research, but, as Professor Briggs of Teachers' College writes: "What's more needed than research at the present time is an acceptable philosophy of secondary education."

EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH

For a year and more the National Committee on Research in Secondary Education has been at work through committees. At the last meeting of the National Committee at Dallas, in March, the Committee concerned itself with the status of the several researches under way, the needs and resources of the Committee, and the possibilities of being of service to research workers in secondary education, considering the available research agencies.

Of the undertakings of the Committee there has been completed: (1) a bibliography of research in secondary education covering the period 1920-1925, published as bulletin 1926, No. 2, by the U. S. Bureau of Education; (2) a bibliography of current research studies for the school year 1925-26; (3) an outline of methods of research prepared by a committee consisting of P. W. L. Cox, Joseph G. Masters, John K. Norton, Ralph W. Pringle, Arthur J. Jones, chairman, and issued as bulletin 1926,

No. 24, of the U. S. Bureau of Education; (4) a study of senior high school promotion plans by J. F. Montague; (5) a survey of the attitudes of colleges and universities toward basing college entrance requirements on the last three years of senior high school work.

Among the researches now under way are: (1) a study of the junior high school in small school communities; (2) a study of the American schoolmaster by the committee on personnel problems, E. J. Ashbaugh, chairman; (3) a study of the relation between college admission requirements and efforts at revision of the high school curriculum by William M. Proctor; (4) a study of the comparative reliability of various standard tests by William C. Reavis; and additional bibliographies.

In an article in School and Society, March 5, on "The Training of the Research Worker in Education", James C. Bay of the School of Education, New York University, prescribes for all a year of academic philosophy, a year of mathematical analysis, and a year of statistical research. One might have all this, and still be as muddle-headed and as trivial and futile as most Ph.D's.

Teachers who are inspired to carry on investigations in the classroom will find helpful "Research for Teachers", Silver Burdett, 1926, by Burdette Ross Buckingham. Many a teacher can, if so minded, divide his pupils into two groups, pursuing a subject by wholly different methods, and contrast results. Such researches are likely to be more practical, if less technical, than many laboratory studies.

The Institute of Child Welfare Research of Teachers College, Columbia, now in its third year, conducts research and trains workers. Dr. Otis W. Caldwell has been the director for three years. The staff includes a pediatrician, a physician, a nutritionist, and two psychologists.

RESEARCH IN PRIVATE SCHOOLS

At the conference of Country Day Head Masters last June, Dr. Carl Mays of the Institute of Educational Research reported at some length on the research he is making "to determine what boys and girls do in the face of moral situations. Tendencies to deceive in class, in athletic contests, in party games, and many matters, are being tested. The background is enormously complex and causes are subtle so that conclusions are hard to reach. Thus far, however, it is found that children from better homes and those with high I. Q.'s are more likely to be honest; that there is a high relation in conduct between members of the same family; and that the higher the economic background, the better the morality. Church boys, on the other hand, seem to cheat as much as others. Until we know the causes for misconduct, however, remedies are bound to be inadequate. We must find the germ which leads to wrong doing. Though on its track we are yet far from isolating it. Correlations in tests are still very low. It seems to be clear, however, that there is nothing inside of us which makes us honest all the way through."

A Bureau of Research for the independent secondary schools has been established as a department bureau of the Secondary School Examination Board, organized primarily to administer uniform examinations. To meet the demands of the more progressive members, the S. S. E. B., planned "to function as an educational clearing house through which individual and collective experience might be brought to bear upon the solution of the problems and the improvement of the standards of elementary and secondary education."

In 1926 the Executive Committee appointed the three following directors of the Bureau of Research: Oscar F. Shepard, Chairman, Milton Academy; John A. Lester, the Hill School; George F. Cherry, Loomis Institute. These directors are responsible for all activities of the Bureau. They plan and carry on investigations and report their results to the member schools at the annual conference. "To avoid burdening headmasters with questionnaires and correspondence there is resident in each member school a faculty representative of the Bureau whose duty it is to provide the material requested by the Bureau under the approval of the Headmaster."

"Almost immediately that the Bureau was announced twenty-five leading schools affiliated. The directors felt that physical limitations were such that too many members at the beginning might prove a disadvantage. Hence, little notice was extended beyond the Board schools. It is expected, however, that the beginning of the second year, October, 1927, will see the Bureau so established that all interested schools may be accommodated, whether they are members of the Secondary Board or not. Certainly their experience and cooperation will be most welcome and valuable to this movement."

An interesting article on the backgrounds and opportunities of this Bureau was published by one of the directors, John A. Lester, in School and Society for March 19. The Bureau now has in progress three separate investigations to be completed and reported upon at the next conference of the Board,—Scholastic Aptitude Tests, Spelling, General Information.

S. S. E. B.

The Secondary School Examination Board was organized in 1924 to promote cooperation among the schools for younger boys preparing for the larger college preparatory schools, and to provide uniform entrance examinations to them. The membership of the Board has steadily increased. Forty-seven schools in ten states now belong, including three girls schools. These schools use for entrance to all classes in the secondary schools examinations set by the Board. "Examinations are offered in English, Latin, French, and Mathematics, to which has been added a scholastic aptitude test for 1927. The examinations are conducted in June in the member schools and at such other centers as circumstances require."

The advent of these new Board Examinations has been greeted with mixed feelings. The stereotyped and traditional school finds that these examinations simplify the teacher's and administrator's task. On the other hand, schools that were doing a more modern type of work find the examinations hampering, restricting, and stultifying to the pupil. Even Dr. Drury of St. Paul's is moved to satiric comment: "For our older boys we have the College Entrance Examination Board; and now connected with the preparatory schools we have the Secondary Schools Entrance Examination Board. Let parents rise in revolt against what may become K. E. E. B., the Kindergarten Entrance Examination Board, which will prepare for entrance to the preparatory schools, which in turn prepare for the ordeal of entering secondary schools, whose sole business in turn becomes preparation for entrance to college."

THE PROFESSIONAL SPIRIT

There is evidence of a growing professional spirit among head masters and teachers in private schools. The very diversity in character of our private schools, much greater in fact than the diversity in England, has militated and still does against any general association of private school teachers or even of private school principals. The head masters of the Church Schools and the Country Day Schools each have something in common and some reason to get together. Consequently, they have associations or annual conferences. Locally, in many cities, as in New York, Philadelphia and Boston, there are common interests that bring together the heads of private schools, and there we find associations.

The Head Masters Association was formerly a snobbish aggregation of the heads of the more conservative schools. In the past ten years the character has greatly changed. New men with a more progressive outlook have gradually been admitted until now the association is fairly representative. The Head Mistresses, too, have had sectional associations which have attempted to be rather exclusive and which have succeeded in being snobbish, and secretive. Led by some of the more forceful principals of middle western schools, however, the National Association of Principals of Schools for Girls has taken a broader view of its responsibilities.

Teaching in England is more distinctly a profession than in the United States. A successful head master in England is not likely to change his occupation. There is much more of the professional spirit among the English school masters. There are innumerable associations that bring them together.

EDUCATIONAL NOMENCLATURE

Educational nomenclature has developed without much reason or guidance. Terms have come to be used with little forethought. In the last edition of this Handbook there was some discussion of the introduction of English terminology and the great variance in preparatory schools in the designation of the years of schooling, especially as applied to the years of the school course. In the winter number of The Educational Record there is a helpful article which attempts to standardize some educational terminology. In the April issue, Chancellor Kirkland makes a strong plea for "extra-curriculum" in preference to "extra-curricular."

During the past year there has been considerable agitation looking to the introduction of the term "independent" school. This subject has been taken up at two successive conferences of the Country Day School Head Masters, and in the Outlook for last May Frank S. Hackett of Riverdale presented the reasons for the introduction of this new term. The Country Day Schools particularly labor under a disadvantage by being designated as "private" schools. It doubtless deters some worshipers of the democratic fetish from patronizing them. Wherever the private school is actively in competition with the public school a softening of the contrasting designations would perhaps prove helpful in overcoming such pseudo-democratic objections. Then, too, some of the endowed church schools have come recently to an attitude where they would like to avoid the stigma of snobbishness. Consequently, the suggestion that private schools be called "independent" schools has met with considerable response in certain quarters.

On the other hand, many who would welcome a change in name have found the term "independent" ill adapted, and again, possibly a still larger number of private school people see no sufficient reason for a change, or recognize the great difficulty of introducing a new name for an old thing. Every variety of opinion was ventilated in Private School News, September, 1926, which sums up the situation as follows: "Although the change from 'private' to 'independent' appeals to certain principals, still they feel that it is useless to rechristen an old child. John R. P. French, of Derby Academy, Hingham, Mass., writes: 'I don't believe the American Public will ever consent to adopt Independent in the place of Private. The antithesis, Public School — Private School, is too convenient', and Lawrence Smith, Lawrence-Smith School, New York City, 'doesn't think it will go. The word Private is too firmly entrenched, and its connotation is too well understood. Most people do not consider the Private Schools snobbish.'"

Since the first edition of this Handbook was published, we have held to a simple working definition of Private School, the only one we have yet discovered that has withstood use and criticism. In the first edition we set up the definition "a Private School is one dependent on private initiative for its inception and maintenance, not wholly or in part dependent on public taxation." Since there have been many criticisms of this from both scholastic and legal minds, many attempts have been made to frame a better distinction. Mr. Lawson Purdy, distinguished New York attorney and alumnus of St. Paul's, among others, has given much thought to this, and with him there has been much correspondence. There is every grade of transition from the permanent to the ephemeral. Seventeen hundred New England academies, on a permanent basis, with boards of trustees and often with endowments, have wholly passed out of existence. The line between the permanent and the ephemeral cannot be drawn until the end of time, — foundations, endowments, legalities, and trustees to the contrary notwithstanding.

In England, terminology is quite different and much more involved. First we have the Great Public Schools, foundations centuries old. Then there are the Public Schools, more recent foundations, often larger and better endowed. Then there are Endowed Schools, imitators of the Public Schools, Private-Venture Schools, and Preparatory Schools. The distinctions are again indefinite, but all of these schools, unsupported by taxation, are just what would be designated as Private Schools in this country. The inevitable tendency, then, in this country, will be eventually somewhat similar, — to subdivide our classification of what we call private schools, as is done in England, developing our own terminology as we proceed.

LANGUAGE STUDY

We are all masters of a language. The modern small boy is master of a language which often puzzles his parents and school masters. The people of the slums have an argot that has to be explained in books to the intelligentsia. The accomplishment in language during the second year of the life of homo sapiens is something that any language teacher may well marvel at. As Chesterton long ago remarked, "We are all educated, only most of us are educated wrong."

The average child, in a twelve-year school course, devotes the majority of his school time, a total of from three to six thousand hours, to what is called language work, be it grammar, English composition, Latin, or French, and learns practically nothing of any value. If anything has been a failure in our school system, it has been the teaching of language and languages. What language ability we have has been attained in spite of schools and colleges.

Improved methods in teaching language will never accomplish much. There must be an entire change of attitude toward the whole subject. There has been such a dense and luxuriant growth of traditional weeds in the minds of school masters that little can be accomplished toward planting these new ideas until there has been ruthless destruction. While the traditional practices linger which were justified by the philosophy of the disciplinary value of language, there is little hope.

What we need is a fundamental inquiry which will result in a new philosophy. We need to study the processes by which individuals have successfully acquired languages in brief time with a minimum of resistance. Such investigation will reveal interest and incentive preceding accomplishment.

Here and there beginnings are being made in devising methods applicable to classes and to groups whereby interest in language may be aroused and incentive stimulated. During the past year, particularly about New York and Boston, there has been an effort to add interest and meaning to the study of an inflected language by teaching Esperanto in the schools. Esperanto is one of seventy or more artificial languages developed in the past century for international communication. Occasionally an unusual teacher, through an outpouring of energy and inspiration, makes good, with a very low percentage of efficiency to a small number of the pupils.

Language consists of words and their use, and words are of great interest when they are seen in relation to other words, their history and their development. There is no more fascinating book to read than Bishop Trench's book on words, which has stood the test of nearly a century. Children of eight and ten can be interested in words. Games and activities adapted to school work can and have been devised which will call for concentrated activity on the part of the pupils and result as a by-product in giving them not only understanding of words, but a feeling for their meaning and color. And yet the fad of the crossword puzzle has probably done more to develop interest in words and language and to increase vocabularies than all our schools and universities have done.

At West Hartford, during the past several years, a little group of language teachers has developed "An Exploratory Course in General Language", in mimeograph form, recently published by Benjamin H. Sanborn and Co., Boston. This is a helpful and suggestive book, conservative in its treatment of the individual languages, which unwittingly puts the interesting key to language in brief form in the last twenty pages of the book. A monthly publication of G. E. Merriam, Springfield, on "Word Study", misses its great opportunities, but is suggestive.

SCHOOL SPORTS

The newspapers, ever avid for school athletic news, have recently brought onto the front pages the difficulties in policy of a number of the New England preparatory schools. School-boy athletics, it is agreed, are receiving too much spectacular publicity. There has been a seepage downward, from the colleges, of things evil. In addition to the usual annual crop of protests and suggestions, there seems to be underlying grounds for believing that a complete revision of our attitudes toward athletics and sports may yet have to come.

An article on "College Athletics as an Art", by Leonard W. Cronkhite, in the May 22 issue of School and Society, explains the "three major elements that have held back [our development of sport; failure to understand some of the causative conditions thus far referred to, faulty ideas as to that curious prison of the sport spirit — the gymnasium, and lack of courage in financing student sport."

Henry S. Curtis, of the University of Missouri, who with Joseph Lee has done more than any other to promote outdoor recreation, in an article on "Sportsmanship in School Athletics" in the same issue, gives the "Missouri Code of the Honor of a Sportsman" and a "Sportsman's Code of Honor," both of which might well be posted in every locker room and athletic building.

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has recently published as Bulletin Eighteen an extensive report on Games and Sports in British Schools and Universities. Dr. Howard J. Savage, staff member of the Foundation, conducted a thorough investigation of athletics in British educational institutions during a sojourn of several months. In two hundred and fifty pages the Bulletin describes sport in its relation to education at English public and day schools, Oxford and Cambridge and the newer English universities. Athletics in England are valued partly for their physical effects but more for their socializing influences. "At all universities sport is essentially casual."

American school masters and athletic coaches will find here much that must remain English and that never will be American, but few who are open minded and unprejudiced and free to modify their course will be unaffected by the study of this report.

RELIGION IN THE SCHOOLS

There has been much talk in regard to religious teaching at recent meetings of private school heads. A great opportunity awaits a new leader who knows the schools and who knows the problems of adolescents to show how in modern schools both religions and religion may be of vital interest to youth today.

At the last meeting of Country Day Head Masters "Religion as an Element of Education" was the subject of the first round-table and was treated from the college point of view by Dean Hawkes of Columbia. "The chief snag remains, sectarianism."

Headmaster Newton, of the Pingry School, reported at the same meeting on a course which he had given his boys in the principles of Christianity without sectarian basis. This dealt with: "The need of religion, what it is, its development, conceptions of God (no attempt at definition), the teachings of Christ Himself as to the inner life, and our relation to others."

Dr. Drury of St. Paul's, who writes so much and so intimately about his own religious life and how he attempts to present it to St. Paul's boys, has said, "The religious life of our schools does not flourish. Too often it has been tolerated, patronized, used for prestige, or neglected. . . . Religious education in our boarding schools, varying of course with the intensity of individual teachers or promoters, seems on the whole ineffective."

Further than this, most teachers of religion want to work off their own personal standards or ideas. They don't know, or perhaps it has never dawned upon them, that religion to be genuine must be personal, that it must be adapted to the individual and his need of the hour, that it should be fresh, remade each morning. If one could bring the adolescent to the point where he felt some impulse in him of establishing ideals and religious faith from day to day, that would be doing a good thing. The trouble with religious teaching is that we try to work off something at second, third, or fourth hand. It may be well enough to wear second hand clothes and eat leftovers, but sincere religion, the way of faith to salvation, is too intimate and personal a matter to be so treated. We need in the schools a teacher who can make religion of interest and helpful to youth of the jazz age. It is not an impossibility, but it is yet to be done.

The story of dogmas and teachings of great religionists of the past is quite another matter. The study of great religions and religious leaders is a subject in which boys and girls can be interested. And now we have the means of admirably presenting it in a simple way so as to interest young people in "This Believing World," by Lewis Browne. Although it is written for adults, children of twelve have read it with interest.

THE NEW EDUCATIONAL BOOKS

STILL NO END

More than 3,485,015,597 copies of publications and 350,391,018 books were produced or sold in the United States alone in the one year 1923, the latest for which complete statistics are available. This large and impressive total includes weekly periodicals, but not the newspapers, daily or Sunday.

As nearly as can be estimated, the actual number of books sold in the United States is about 50,000,000 yearly. Astonishing as is this total, it works out to less than half a book per person, while in Russia, with cheap production under government control, the yearly consumption of books is approximately five times as great, — 240,000,000. The annual per capita expenditure for books in our country is about $1.10, while for candy, ice cream, and soda we spend $18.15 per capita.

Though of the making of books and newspapers there seems to be no end, their production seems to presage an end of our forests. The American Paper and Pulp Association reports the production in 1926 of 514,246 tons of wood pulp products. Of this 95,998 tons went into books, 135,069 into newspapers, and 140,851 into paper board.

Omitting new editions of works previously published, 6,832 new books were published in the United States during the year 1926. Of these 945 were novels, — a marked increase over the 898 produced the previous year.

BEST SELLERS,

Twenty-one of the books of the year, according to the Publishers' Weekly, attained the rank of best sellers. The eleven works of fiction that sold best included the following apparently indiscriminate assortment, — "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," "Sorrell and Son," "The Hounds of Spring," "Beau Sabreur," "The Silver Spoon," "Beau Geste," "Show Boat," "After Noon," "The Blue Window," and "Hangman's House." Here is one book of the first rank, and at least several worthy of honorable mention. Whatever one may think of the lot, it shows indubitably an improved standard of taste on the part of the fiction reading public.

Non-fiction best sellers comprised the following even more ill assorted ten, — "The Man Nobody Knows," "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," "Diet and Health," "Our Times," "The Boston Cooking School Book," "Auction Bridge Complete," "The Book Nobody Knows," "The Story of Philosophy," "The Light of Faith," and "Jefferson and Hamilton." Here is perhaps no book of permanent value; but many of them of temporary value are nevertheless important and have produced their effect.

Here, again, one cannot but optimistically observe in the reading public some seriousness of intent, though the books on religious subjects are those of the go-getter type written for Rotarians and Babbitts. The demand for them evinces, at least, a turning away from the wholly material. The popularity of Dorsey and Durant is due not only to their lively writing, but to an increasing popular interest in how we have become what we are; while Mark Sullivan's book holds up the mirror of the recent past to those who have come through it and to the younger generation who have heard about it.

SELLING BOOKS

New publishing firms are developing yearly. Some of the leaders among publishers today were unknown ten years ago. "The last six years," said Frank Dodd, President of the American Institute of Graphic Arts, "have been the most prosperous in the history of the booktrade. American publishers are rapidly becoming the foremost in the world, not only increasing their output but publishing better printed and more artistic books. Within the next ten years the American public probably will consume twice as many books as it does today, for its appetite for reading is increasing enormously."

How do books get to be best sellers? By word of mouth, of course. What makes people talk about books? Ah, there's the art of the advertising man! Straightforward, honest advertising will not sell books, but if, through advertising, you can get the author or the book talked about, then it's all to the good. Most of us read just what certain clever people want us to read. Of course, the publishers don't strike twelve every time. They fail on their advertising and publicity counsel as on other things. Publishing, it is true, is gambling, but it is a kind of gambling in which shrewd knowledge of human nature and modern methods of publicity load the dice. Publishing is a gold brick game in which the gold sometimes proves to be genuine. Unwin, in his recent book dealing with English publishing, tells as many of the secrets of the trade as it is well to have known.

Another optimistic evidence of our tendency toward the intellectual is in the popularity of the present-day parlor game, "Ask me Another," which is a step in advance of the cross word. But there is still another game coming into vogue that promotes the sale of books and literate activities.

Liberty, the cheapest of the weekly periodicals for the gum chewing, has been conducting a "snap test of good and bad literature." From editor to office boy, every member of the staff was asked to name the three books which had most interested him without taking time "to think." Of the 204 persons who made the selections, twenty-four chose "An American Tragedy," and following this in popularity came "Beau Geste," Wells' "Outline of History," "A Tale of Two Cities," and "Show Boat." Kathleen Norris and Zane Grey were tied for first place with seven titles each. Dickens made a good second with six, and Conrad came third with five. One lady who probably still wears a petticoat named "Barriers Burned Away."

The Hollywood press agents, too, put forth the favorite authors of the movie stars, and think it pays to give them a highbrow tendency. Even private school executives and head masters can be stimulated to express opinions about books. Private School News in its recent issues has elicited some such recommendations as to what book and the reason why.

All these things sell books; but there are new plans in the air. Here comes the communistic guild which not only prescribes your literary diet, but manufactures it for you in advance. You pay your yearly dues, and the monthly dose comes to you at half price. But why not? We employ dietitians and purchasing agents for our food supplies. Why shouldn't we have expert guidance in selecting our literary pabulum? The Book of the Month Club, while it doesn't propose to manufacture your literature for you, will carefully select books on a somewhat similar basis and supply them at the usual trade rates.

PHILOSOPHICAL PROBLEMS

Popularizing knowledge, making it available and useful to the common man, has led many to follow in the footsteps of Wells and Robinson. The philosophers have so long lived in academic seclusion, speaking their own unintelligible lingo and surrounded by a mysterious aura, that it is little wonder that they are scandalized at any attempt to simplify and popularize philosophy. If every man becomes his own cobbler, how can the cobblers live? So we may expect caustic criticism of popular books on philosophy from the academic minded.

Few of the numerous works produced on the subject of philosophy have any usefulness for the school master; but there are some. "Insight into situations and relations, rather than mere information, is the heart of philosophy," according to Professor Roy Wood Sellers of the University of Michigan, who thus begins the preface to Principles and Problems of Philosophy, Macmillan, 1926. This book is an improvement on his earlier work, "The Essentials of Philosophy." It is not only an excellent textbook, but something of a contribution to philosophy as well. Here's a man who really believes that philosophy linked with the special sciences may yet regain its once tremendous influence over men's lives. "Sympathetically in touch with pragmatism," he has given us a simple and critical exposition of such recondite subjects as epistemology, ontology, and cosmology, and it all leads up to a final section on "Human Life and Values." Believing in emergent evolution, he is also a pluralistic realist with a will to improve the possibilities of life in a democratic and yet intelligent way.

PHILOSOPHY FOR THE PLAIN PEOPLE

A book on philosophy that becomes one of the ten best sellers seems impossible. And yet, this is what Will Durant has accomplished in the Story of Philosophy, Simon and Schuster, 1926. It is an amazing book, a masterpiece, — brilliant, epigrammatic, written with a keen sense of humor. Human, all too human, is the way in which he presents philosophers and their thought. He relates each to the time and the economic and political conditions out of which he grew. This in itself is an error, even a crime, to the academic philosopher who holds that thought "has a logical structure disengaged from life." But Durant would not have us forget that Aristotle was Alexander's pupil, that Spinoza was a Jew, that Schopenhauer came after Napoleon. Durant makes these things significant and relates their thought to the life of the world about them. The passages on Plato's "Republic," on Spinoza's "Ethik," on Kant's "Critique of Pure Reason," are masterpieces of exposition. It takes a philosopher as big as John Dewey to appreciate this book.

Philosophy for Plain People, Maurice M. Kaunitz, Adelphi, 1926, contains much condensed philosophy but is not nearly as good reading as Durant's book.

GETTING IDEAS

How do we get our ideas? And can the nature and sequence of such thoughts as come to us be better ordered, made more purposeful? Is there an art of thought? Problems like these are envisaged, groped at, and in some measure ordered and analyzed by Graham Wallas in his The Art of Thought, Harcourt Brace, 1926. Mr. Wallas is a teacher. His interest is pedagogical. The book is for teachers. The psychology is introspective. In method it is that of a series of essays in a field between literature and science. But Mr. Wallas is no Emerson, — no William James. The book is a worthy, brief attempt, but not too easy reading, not too clarifying. There is much that is helpful and practical on the dangers of too much and too little habit, too much and too little mysticism, and the like. Mr. Wallas does suggest methods by which we may get some new ideas, but his art of thought is incomplete, for he does not tell us how to use our new ideas when we get them. With him we do study the manner in which successful thinkers think. We make an examination of the behavior and self-observation of great scientists like Helmholtz. Stages of thought such as preparation, incubation, illumination, and verification are distinguished. The varying importance of these stages is recognized in different ethnic types, — the English, and the French. Mr. Wallas has made an excursion into an interesting field which must be many times gone over, revitalized and recultivated before it yields the full crop. The very failure of the book testifies to the urgency of the problems treated.

THE NATURAL HISTORY OF CONDUCT

From two men of zoological training, who thirty years ago were spending their days squinting through a microscope when not digging over the ooze of mud flats for slimy specimens, have come great thought, great teaching, great revelation, embodied in the following books.

Brains of Rats and Men, University of Chicago Press, 1926, is a scientific survey of the origin of the cerebral cortex, by C. Judson Herrick. Following the footsteps of an older brother, Dr. Herrick has devoted his life to comparative neurology — impossible and impractical researches which are now yielding bounteous harvest. For a generation and more the author and other neurologists have been studying in brain tissue, under the most delicate and highly refined chemical color technique that man has yet developed in any field, the cells in whose chemical activities are born the nerve impulses, the delicate neurons which in bundles carry the nerve impulses from cell to cell, from sense organ to nerve center, and to muscles.

The cortex, a new roof put on a recent front porch of an ancient structure, is here presented in its origin and biological significance as the seat of the intellectual, emotional and moral life of man, all of which are the result of biological functioning through chemical changes in the neurons. This is a big theme, so big that it will be incomprehensible to most and consequently cannot be accepted. It will be way over the heads or under the feet of most philosophers. To prepare one for the reception of such concepts it seems to be necessary to spend a preliminary period in the ooze and at least a decade squinting through a microscope. The long biological approach is needful.

In Fatalism or Freedom, Norton, 1926, Dr. Herrick has made an excursion into almost forbidden philosophical fields. He sanely finds a justification for what might be called a go-getter philosophy of life. The great men of all time, he shows, have risen above their limitations. They have been free, while the great mass have merely salted the earth with their bones. Freedom or fatalism is a question of energy, of strength, as it always has been.

The Natural History of Our Conduct, Harcourt, Brace, 1926, is by William E. Ritter, a zoologist of Harvard training and long a resident of the Pacific coast. Mencken has reviewed it. There is no more to say so we quote: "This book is instructive and amusing. Its thesis is that many, if not most of the troubles of man are due to the operation of his instincts — that he is constantly led into foolish and dangerous courses by impulses theoretically designed to preserve his own life and the continuity of the species. Here, of course, there is nothing new: many other psychologists have observed the same thing. But Dr. Ritter, who is a zoologist, supports his case with a large number of parallels from the life of the lower animals, and so it is overwhelmingly proved. What he shows, in brief, is that nature is an ass. Its most elaborate schemes to protect the individual and the species are constantly going to pot. Not only do men, with the best intentions in the world, and under the prompting of irresistible instincts, make war, get married, succumb to religious bugaboos and commit other follies, but the same or even worse things are done by woodpeckers, cockroaches and even algae. The argument by design here suffers a fatal fall. The ant that Solomon admired so extravagantly, it appears, is an almost complete idiot. The busy bumble bee has scarcely more sense than a Mississippi Congressman. The very protozoa in the sea-ooze go joy-riding and drink bad liquor. It is a pleasant book to hand to your pastor."

THINKING AND THOBBING

Thinking might have been added to this title. Usually when one says, "I thought," it means, "I was dormant mentally." So Henshaw Ward has devised a new term around which he has written a book, Thobbing, Bobbs-Merrill, 1926. The sub-title, "A Seat at the Circus of the Intellect," with the quotation on the title page, "Passion and prejudice govern the world — under the name of Reason. — John Wesley, 1770," and the dedication to Clarence Day, author of "This Simian World," give us the leitmotif, the key, and the tempo.

"Wishful thinking," the same old game under Freudian variations which we begin as children, — "I wish I were," — constitutes much of the intellectual life of the various varieties of homo. How then, can we expect that even the average man can collect and weigh evidence, and arrive at sound conclusions? We can't. What we do is to "Think the Opinion that pleases us and then Believe it. The initial letters of the three words form a much needed verb, to THOB."

So into the circus Henshaw Ward brings the leading proponents of each school of thought and displays them thobbing. It is a many ring circus. In the ring labelled, "Education," we have Governor Ferris of Michigan declaring, "The doors should be wide open at Yale, Harvard, and everywhere. No examinations should be required." Then Dallas Lore Sharp is put through his stunts. John Jay Chapman and Walter Lippman each go through their specialties. The Kilpatricks and Bowmans are paraded. High and lofty tumblers perform. There is the smell of the circus and the blare of the band.

Thinking About Thinking, Dutton, 1926, by Cassius J. Keyser, is a little red book as befits its subject. Mr. Keyser occupies a chair of mathematics at Columbia. Jabbing his fellow scientists, he starts out with "Psychologists have not yet been able to tell us what thinking is." And as for thinking, "though we cannot define it, we know enough about it to know that there are many kinds." He asks, "Is all thinking organic behavior?" And then introducing autonomous and postulational thinking, describes the importance and availability of autonomous thinking and the detection of postulates. Inevitable conclusions give us the theorems of Euclid, but there are non-Euclidean systems like those of Lobachevski and Bolyai. As to autonomous thinking, he, knowing his fellow mathematicians, says, "Anyone having talents above the level of a moron's can be led into a fair understanding of it and be disciplined in a measure to follow its ways."

Mind, Its Origin and Goal, Yale University Press, 1925, is by George Barton Cutten, President of Colgate University. President Cutten has put himself through an excellent course of reading which he lists at the end as "a suggested reading list." He here presents his reactions in an endeavor to answer such questions as, "Where did we get our minds?" "Do we have animal minds?" "What do instincts tell us of the past?" "Is religion natural to man?" "Are we in danger of intellectual decay?" "What future changes may we expect?"

SEEING PSYCHOLOGY

Out of Cambridge University have come, during the past year, two notable resumes of psychology as it is. The Meaning of Psychology, Harper, 1926, is by C. K. Ogden of Magdalen Library of Psychology, Philosophy, and Scientific Method. Mr. Ogden as editor is widely familiar with the works of psychologists on both sides of the Atlantic. From the book one will gather that in dealing as editor with so many specialists in his field, he has acquired rare capacity for approaching new developments with an open mind and of weighing their merits with sound editorial judgment. Mr. Ogden then was evidently just the one man to undertake a fairly complete, well proportioned and concise statement of the recent developments in psychology, and this he has done.

The author takes us in a psychological sight-seeing bus. There are plenty of rival busses, but none on which the megaphone man contributes so interestingly about soaring structures completed and still others just beginning below the street level. There is a whole lecture on "The Mentality of Apes" and "Man's Linguistic Heritage." The safe way to run such an excursion is to take the crowd to what they want to see and tell them what they want to know. But Mr. Ogden does more than this. He doesn't hesitate to let us in on all the peep shows, but his is always a sane and well proportioned editorial attitude. He is, perhaps, the first trans-Atlantic psychologist to discover and explain with some sympathy and understanding Watson's American behaviorism. In this, as with the Freudian theory, he helps the reader to a sympathetic but critical attitude. Everywhere, Ogden prefers workable explanations rather than phrases about inconceivable mysteries. It satisfies him to learn that "the broody hen sits on her eggs not through any passion of maternal love, but to allay a local inflammation."

Most writers on psychology have been busy classroom teachers preparing texts to cover so many semester hours; theorists riding a hobby; controversialists outraged by their opponents. In reading Ogden one gains a delightful feeling that he is a safe guide, keenly interested in everything new, however disturbing, and quite capable of distinguishing important contributions from idiosyncrasies of method. Nor is his work without purpose. Every point he undertakes to set forth psychologically bears upon live problems. Nothing of a crusader, he has vision, and his last chapter, looking forward, deals chiefly with the contributions of psychologists to education. From this one gathers that most of our educational practice is dominated by ignorance, is blundering and harmful.

Educational Psychology: Its Problems and Methods, Kegan Paul, London; Harcourt Brace, 1925, is by Charles Fox of Christ's College, Cambridge. It is a volume in The International Library edited by C. K. Ogden. Mr. Fox, as director of the training of teachers and lecturer in educational psychology, here presents a resumé of psychology as he sees it for teachers and the teaching profession. He explains that the purpose is especially to consider the "contribution made by experimental psychology to the study of educational problems." As compared with Ogden's book, the excursions and exhibits are somewhat more restricted, the treatment less lively and interesting, more in accordance with the academic manner. Some phases of the subject especially well covered are the various theories as to the nature of mind, habit formation, esthetic appreciation, mental fatigue, mental discipline, and the criticisms of mental tests. This is a thoroughly good presentation of the subject, — the result of lectures to classes, and intensive rather than wide knowledge.

Another book which covers the same field in an individual way with still more of personal idiosyncrasy and academic flavor is The Mystery of Mind, Van Nostrand, 1926, by Leonard T. Troland. The title is misleading and does not seem to apply to the book. It was probably the publisher's title intended to sell the book to the psychically curious. They will be disappointed as was the reviewer in The Bookman. The author seems aware of the misleading character of his title in explaining that he does not deal in this volume with what is properly called psychic and mysterious, because the actualities he deals with are still greater mysteries. Professor Troland takes us on a personally conducted tour into those fields of psychology in which he is especially interested and informs us in regard to the various problems and researches with which he has become particularly familiar. In passing through these narrow alley ways, we glance over the higher hedges into broader fields, and we gain some general feeling of their illimitable extent. But we get nothing of the feeling of mastery of the subject, and we come away with a feeling of mystery lurking in unknown corners.

MORE PSYCHOLOGY FOR TEACHERS

With the increasing number of lecturers on psychology to normal school and college students, it is inevitable that an increasing number of them should publish their notes in book form.

Perhaps the best compact, concise text on the subject for use in teacher training courses is Psychology for Teachers, Ginn, 1926, by Charles E. Benson, Charles E. Skinner, Paul V. West, and James E. Lough, all members of the faculty of New York University. Professor Lough is the originator of the "Floating University." The book is intended primarily for college students. Attention is first given to the fundamental principles involved in learning how to study. There are some novel features in the book. In the final chapter headings one finds sections on "The Autonomic Nervous System," "Play and Learning," "Mental Efficiency," "Statistical Methods for Teachers," and "Mental Hygiene." An excellent bibliography at the end of each chapter adds much to the value of the book.

Psychological Education, Knopf, 1926, by J. V. Breitwieser, is another "addressed to students" and "is the outgrowth of notes used in teaching." The chapter headings are traditional. The final chapters deal with the three R's.

CRANK PSYCHOLOGY

On the outer fringe of psychological literature there are a great number of crank books annually produced to meet the appeal of woman clubbers, reading circles, and the like, who 'just love psychology'.

Human Vibration, Handy Book Corporation, 1926, by Conrad Richter, is intended to increase the intensity of the vibration of the above and has an underlying half idea on which are embroidered in physiological language varied ethical preachings and aspirations.

Imagination, Mind's Dominant Power, Schroeder, 1926, by Benjamin Christopher Leeming, is "an informal discussion upon ideation or ideaurgy, written to be read with due mental challenge by the greatest possible number of people." The foreword is by the Vice-President of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, and the book with its allusions and quotations drawn from a wide field of reading will impress most as loose and superficial.

Psychology of Thought, Appleton, 1926, by H. L. Hollingworth, approaches the subject through studies of sleeping and dreaming. The professor of psychology in Barnard who is the author of books on judging character, functional neuroses, advertising and selling, and vocations, here has produced an astonishing book. He regards sleep as a "vestigial instinct." For Professor Hollingworth, the study of the "elimination of the nocturnal stupor is a question of far greater human importance than the reconstruction of industry, the conservation of timber and water power, the eugenic movement, or the League of Nations." He suggests that although sleep cannot be dispensed with immediately with immunity, it might be eliminated by the individual "without discomfort and danger by saving fifteen minutes a night for the first year, half an hour daily for the second year, and so on."

THE CHILD AND HIS TEACHER

With all the talk about character training, with a generation of psychology for teachers, there are still few teachers who realize their responsibilities to the child. The opportunities for a perfectly conscientious teacher to do the child permanent harm cannot be appreciated without some understanding of the underlying factors which have been revealed by what is pooh-pooed as psychoanalysis.

Two recent books by English school masters, based on empirical experience in the school room, recount actual cases with a scientific background. Both books will be most illuminating to any teacher who cares to realize more fully his unconscious opportunities for permanent harm to the child or adolescent.

Childhood's Fears, Macmillan, 1925, by G. F. Morton, deals with psychanalysis and the inferiority-fear complex. This is a book that has been worked out in the school room by a sympathetic head master. In conjunction with his own case studies, he has critically read the literature; he knows Freud, Jung, Adler, Rivers, and accepts and rejects with reference to his own work in dealing with boys. Sex interests him little. The fear complex to him is all important. It is too big and too intensive a book for adequate review in short space, but as W. W. Charters, professor of education of the University of Chicago, writes in the foreword, "No one can read the case histories described in the literature dealing with delinquent children without realizing the complexity of the problems confronting the teacher when he becomes a diagnostician." The main thesis of the book is to show that "the root trouble in childhood is the inferiority-fear complex." A practical school man familiar with the technique and literature writes for school men, but the book is equally valuable for the thoughtful parent. W. H. M. Telling, professor of therapeutics in the University of Leeds, writes enthusiastically about the author as "one convinced that the training of the child, which means and demands both the education of the parent and the perfection of the teaching profession, is the greatest moral need of today."

The Problem Child, McBride, 1926, is by A. S. McNeill, another English schoolmaster who for a time abandoned teaching and specialized in child psychology that he might be equipped to deal with children. He now has a school of his own in which he takes "only 'difficult' children." "The difficult child is the child who is unhappy. He is at war with himself and in consequence at war with the world. The difficult adult is in the same boat. No happy woman has ever nagged her husband and children." The book is the result of practical experience. Reading it brings complete confidence, readiness to place children wholly in his hands.

THE CHILD AND HIS PARENT

It is a wise parent that knows his own child. But the psychologists and psychoanalysts are helpful in the identification. Associations and conferences now afford further opportunities for the parent to arrive at an understanding of his children.

Journals, weeklies, and quarterlies have come into existence which contribute to the same end. It is only within half a dozen years that there have been books on this subject. Now the number has increased rapidly.

The Child Study Association of America is taking a leading and important part in this work. A book compiled under their auspices and edited by Benjamin C. Gruenberg, author of "Outlines of Child Study," is the most important contribution of the year. Guidance of Childhood and Youth, Macmillan, 1926, presents in an ordered way for the use of parents selections from the writings of several score leading psychologists and others. The excellent table of contents displaying contributions from half a dozen writers on the same topic immediately stimulates interest in the book. Even a half hour spent with the book must induce in any except the most case hardened parent, a wiser, more understanding attitude toward his own child. Here he may consult a multitude of counselors who have wide knowledge, deep understanding, and scientific training. He will find them fairly well in harmony in their attitude toward the growing organism.

Intelligent Parenthood, Proceedings of the Midwestern Conference on Parent Education, March, 1926, University of Chicago Press, 1926, organized by the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education, is almost as valuable as the preceding book. The interest of the addresses is in part due to the inspiration and enthusiasm of the occasion; whereas, the excerpts in the preceding book are more static and doubtless of more permanent value.

Child Guidance, Century, 1927, is by Smiley Blanton and Margaret Gray Blanton. Dr. Blanton and his wife deal with the situations which enter into every child's daily routine and recognize fully the importance of the trifling events of the earliest years. They emphasize the importance of good habits of eating, sleeping, talking, and the like, and realize that other than good habits may be formed to the permanent detriment of the child.

Elements of Child Training, Holt, 1926, is by R. J. Gale. The table of contents reads well, and like ever so many other books it could not be copyrighted. The rest of the book reads as though it were made to order. Mr. Gale had to turn out copy. The attitude is dictatorial and dogmatic. It would be a good book for those who know little or nothing; but there are better books in the same field.

Parenthood and the Newer Psychology, Putnam's Sons, 1926, by Frank Howard Richardson, is a sympathetic application of the newer psychology to the parent's problems of training his children, and incidentally himself.

In response to the question, "What shall I do with my child?", Dr. Richardson advises what to do with the parent. Self-discipline for the parent is the great lesson throughout the book. It is the outgrowth of a physician's experience with his own four children and others. The ideas presented are sound, the principles, as the author states, are not new. The book should accomplish the mission set, "to make the task of parenthood easier."

Our Enemy The Child, Republic Publishing Co., 1925, is by Agnes de Lima, who dedicates it to "Sigrid, aged three and a half, from whom I have learned more about education than from any pedagogue or any book." This book is made up largely of articles published in the New Republic, the reports of visits to schools, progressive and otherwise. A list of progressive schools and a selected bibliography of progressive education are included. These somewhat disconnected essays give a useful summarization of some tendencies in present day educational systems.

THE GIFTED CHILD

Within recent years we have developed methods of detecting and identifying the gifted child. It should be the highest function of the educator to discover the best seed of the race and to develop such to the utmost.

Genetic Studies of Genius, Vol. II, Stanford University Press, 1926, by Catherine M. Cox, is under the editorship of Lewis M. Terman, whose "Genetic Studies of 1000 Geniuses" were reviewed in the 10th Edition of this Handbook. In this latest volume there are presented 300 studies of recognized geniuses. Characteristics and inherent abilities which marked these "great ones" in childhood and youth are examined and evaluated. The book with its many graphs, tables, and figures gives a deeper insight into the lives of the individuals considered and a new understanding of the nature of genius.

The group of subjects whose early behavior forms the basis of this study includes great men and women who lived between the years 1450 and 1850. The individual measures have been obtained on the basis of evidence. The records which these heroes of the past have left of their remarkable achievement in childhood and youth offer a mine of psychological material. Thus the author believes that the conclusions derived from an evaluation of certain traits may prove suggestive in connection with a comparative study of gifted children today, and that the original case studies will be found to contain information of unusual significance and wide general interest. This study of the youth of the geniuses of the past should help and inspire teachers in whose classes there are, perhaps, gifted children.

NATURE AND NURTURE

Gifted Children, Their Nature and Nurture, Macmillan, 1926, is by Dr. Leta S. Hollingworth. This is a well presented and readable summary of what we know about gifted children. All such knowledge has been largely acquired within the last ten years and has been very largely due to Dr. Whipple's work at Urbana, financed by the General Education Board, and the monumental work of Dr. Terman at Stanford. These researches and all others are here brought together and presented in a popular way. The topics considered are: how to recognize superior ability, the use of mental tests, the census of the gifted, physique and movement, character, temperament and interests, family history and special talents, the organization and curriculum of the school for gifted children, social and economic implications. Simple diagrams are used to illustrate various points throughout the volume. The book offers much to parent, teacher, psychologist, student, and general reader.

The Influence of Nurture upon Native Differences, Macmillan, 1926, by Truman Lee Kelley, presents "a technique for the investigation of the relative influence of heredity and environment," reports certain detailed findings as to the parts played by these two influences and closes with an eloquent statement of the possibilities of the results of measurement when rightly utilized. Nature and nurture are defined as "influences, which, under the conditions of American white school children in the public schools, all in the same school grade and of the same chronological age, still cause differences in achievement to be manifest." That "nurture tends to eliminate idiosyncrasy" Dr. Kelley finds is strikingly illustrated in gifted children.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

There are now 1300 public junior high schools in the United States. In a recent report, Commissioner Tigert states that of the 22,500 public high schools in the United States, there are not less than 51 varieties.

With the rapid development of high schools, particularly the junior high school, more and more attention is being given to the whole school situation. No longer do administrators confine themselves and their responsibilities to traditional subjects.

In the foreword to Extra-Curricular Activities in Junior and Senior High Schools, Heath, 1926, by Joseph Roemer and Charles Forrest Allen, Elbert K. Fretwell writes: "The school's business is to enable the pupil to have the desire, the drive, and the ability to perform worthwhile activities for himself, for his community, and for the state." The whole school situation, with the opportunities it offers, must be utilized. "Happily, educators are coming to recognize that guidance is necessary and in the field of extra-curricular activities that the principal and the teachers must have a constructive policy. Such a policy must be based on a sound educational philosophy, on the best of current practice, and on well thought out experimentation." Here is a splendidly constructed little book which, in a few words, with analyses, tabulations, and bibliographies provides ideas and material in usable form.

Extra-Curricular Activities in the Junior High School, Warwick & York, 1926, by Paul W. Terry, considers the junior high school as a community. With the aid of a group of his students the author sought information from eighty-two schools by the questionnaire method. Tables show the range and mode of extra-curricular practices.

Elmer Harrison Wilds, in Extra-Curricular Activities, Century, 1926, traces developments. "Extra-curricular activities are those activities of the school that are outside the traditional curriculum, that have sprung up and developed through the students' own desires and efforts, that are carried on apart from the hours of the regular school program, and that are participated in without the reward of regular school credit."

The Handbook of Extra-Curricular Activities, Barnes, 1926, is by Harold D. Meyer, associate professor of sociology and chief of the bureau of recreation and community development at the University of North Carolina. It is a book especially adapted to the needs of the small high school. Here again we find a broad, enlightened, and wise attitude toward the function of the school. There is a responsibility that the teacher and principal cannot work off by teaching the traditional subjects nor by meeting the requirements of the colleges, however well that is done. Mr. Meyer sets a high ideal for the high school toward which the extra-curricular program must contribute. "Education in citizenship is the primary business of the public school. To learn about rights, duties, and privileges is important, but such knowledge is only a partial beginning. Pupils must have a favorable opportunity to practice the qualities of the good citizen and enjoy the practise. The test in character and in citizenship is what do they do with satisfaction." The book is filled with ideas, references, programs and materials which cannot but help high school administrators to make school life more interesting and vital.

EDUCATIONAL COUNSELING

Pupil Adjustment, Heath, 1926, is a treatment of the problems and methods of educational counseling and guidance, in junior and senior high schools, with examples from actual practice. William Claude Reavis, the author, is associate professor of secondary education and principal of the University High School, School of Education, University of Chicago.

What a simple thing the old time school keeping was! A new responsibility, guidance, has grown out of what began with vocational purpose. This has been rescued from vague aspiration and given a practical turn by such leaders as John M. Brewer of Harvard. Satisfactory adjustment between pupil and school should result in the school's greater effectiveness. The responsibility for such adjustment, formerly put entirely on the pupil, now must be assumed by the school administration, and this book will help to make this possible. In brief space there is given a vast amount of helpful material. Especially valuable and interesting is the development of the case method, with tabulations and bibliographies for each particular kind of case treated.

THE STUDENT AND HIS STUDIES

The knowledge that sticks is the result of activity, of experience, but to devise and direct activities is as yet beyond the capacity of our educators, so pupils must 'study.' This means memorizing something in a book, but the more enlightened educators have modified this ancient and sanctified process, and of late some attention has been given to directing students as to how they may direct their own activities to better results.

Learning How To Study and Work Effectively, Ginn, 1926, is by William F. Book. It deals with effective methods of work, with sleep, the utilization of energy, the purpose plan, fatigue, and time. It is a helpful book still littered with much of the old nomenclature and attitudes in regard to 'study, will, and attention,' — still regarded as things apart.

Self Direction and Adjustment, World Book Company, 1926, by Norman Fenton, associate professor of psychology at Ohio University, is a smaller book covering the same field, and because briefer and possibly more concrete and specific in that it offers definite tests, a more helpful book in the hands of high school students.

How to Study in College, Holt, 1926, by Leal A. Headley is the result of talks to freshmen on how to keep fit, how to use the library, how to take notes, how to meet examinations, and how to invest time. Later chapters endeavor to tell how to concentrate, to understand, learn, remember, judge, reason.

TEACHING

The Practice of Teaching in the Secondary School, University of Chicago Press, 1926, by Henry C. Morrison, is a weighty volume which cannot be taken lightly. It is the result of much observation, deep thought, and broad experience, as teacher and principal, city and state superintendent, and for the past six years as professor of education at the University of Chicago. Step by step in a guarded, unextravagant way, the author demonstrates a theory and practice of education which is based on empirical experience, but which takes full cognizance of modern scientific research and the results of the laboratory schools. With the establishment of the theory comes quiet, caustic but constructive comment in regard to present day schoolroom practices.

The curriculum has developed out of the desire to communicate knowledge and perpetuate ideas. But the author shows that the "learning products which constitute that process of individual adjustment to the world which we call education, and which are the objectives of teaching, are always either attitudes or special abilities or skills." The present practice of mere lesson learning and performance requirements, without development in the pupils of adaptation ability or the power of independent thought, is shown to be worse than futile. In the teaching cycle, under "Objective Technique", he differentiates the steps, Exploration, Presentation, Organization, and Recitation. This is a difficult book to review in brief. It is not a compilation. It is not an elaboration. It is a piece of independent and original work, rich in materials, worth reading slowly and assimilating fully. It is sound, sane, fundamental, readable, even revolutionary. Without question, it is the outstanding book in the field, and it becomes the obligation of every secondary school teacher and administrator to know the book thoroughly.

SCIENCE TEACHING

On the writing of papers and the making of books on this subject there is as yet only a beginning. Francis D. Curtis, assistant professor of the teaching of science in the University of Michigan, and head of the department of science in the University High School, has prepared a digest of investigations in the teaching of Science in the Elementary and Secondary Schools, Blakiston, 1926. Here are brought together for ready reference and comparison brief abstracts and summaries, admirably arranged, of the important papers and publications on the subject in the past twenty years. They are arranged in two groups: those studies which place chief emphasis upon learning or how to teach, and those which stress the curriculum or what to teach.

SCHOOLMASTERING

Dr. Samuel Smith Drury's Schoolmastering, Macmillan, 1926, bears the sub-title, "Essays in Scholastic Engineering." It is written with fluency and charm. Dr. Drury knows exactly how a school should be run and just what influences should be brought to bear upon the adolescent to "enjoy religion, to depend on God, to live and move and have conscious being as children of God." The book deals with Dr. Drury's reminiscences and explains the philosophy on which he runs his school. Dr. Drury would leave the boys to the masters while the head master deals with the church, the trustees, the donors, and social functions. "A head master must season his occasional autocracy with a constant love. . . A state of mind is the basis of every school. And the head master's special and sacred job, every day of his life, is to promote and nourish and maintain that state of mind. . . . He must come regretfully to regard the boy as of less absolute importance, for his attention, than the man who, after conference with him, will help and protect the boy. . . . The masters exist for the boys, and the head master exists for the masters." In a more recent volume, Fathers and Sons, Doran, 1927, Dr. Drury gives advice to fathers as to how to deal with their sons.

TESTS

Mental Tests, Houghton Mifflin, 1926, is by Frank N. Freeman, professor of educational psychology at the University of Chicago. It is the first book to give a comprehensive survey of all the various forms of mental tests. The historical approach shows us how out of the laboratory studies of individual differences by psychologists, the tests were first developed. The work of hundreds of independent investigators has here been organized into a single treatise which gives some account of all the special kinds of mental tests. The second half of the book is concerned with the technique of making tests and the theoretical problems underlying and growing out of them.

Individual Differences, Harvard University Press, 1926, by Mary M. Wentworth, is the seventh volume in the Harvard Studies in Education. For the present study, 1000 children in Grades I and II were examined by various tests, 575 of them were tested at two intervals a year apart, and 145 were tested at intervals varying from a few days to more than a year. Comparison of the scores made by various groups of children show that Italian children scored nearly as high as American, — the slight difference was due to a lesser command of the language. The retests show chiefly that intelligence tests are inaccurate. A number of children succeeded in the first test but failed in the second. Results were correlated with home conditions, emotional and volitional traits, and physical measurements. This study is valuable to those using intelligence tests as a warning not to put too implicit reliance upon them.

EDUCATIONAL THEORY

From time to time in the past several years in the educational reviews there have appeared notable articles revealing incisive thought on educational topics, by Ira Woods Howerth. These sparks from the anvil have given portent of the fully forged product which now appears as The Theory of Education, Century, 1926. It is not the conventional theory that is here set forth. In a broad and vague way the author holds that "all the principles and practices of institutional education should be derived from a study of nature." This it is somewhat difficult to transmit into terms of schoolroom procedure. The author has in some measure worked out a readable presentation of his ideas. "The doctrine of evolution is the foundation of a scientific pedagogy." One perceives in this book an inspiring teacher who in a high minded way has undertaken to examine fundamentals. It is an ambitious beginning of a large project.

Modern Educational Theory, Macmillan, 1927, is by the professor of education at Ohio State University, Boyd H. Bode. The purpose of this book is to orient and give perspective. The discussion centers about "Curriculum Construction," "The New Psychology of Learning," and the "Democratic Ideal." The application of the behavioristic psychology to the learning process is presented in a simple way. The chapter on "Habit and Thinking" is especially worth reading. Helpful are the references in footnotes at the end of each chapter.

CHANGING EDUCATION

Education for a Changing Civilization, Macmillan, 1926, by William H. Kilpatrick, professor of the philosophy of education, Teachers College, presents three lectures which deal with the kind of education best adapted to meet the new demands. Essential in the change he sees the passing of "authoritarian morals." He understands the present need to be provision for independent thinking, a more critical mindedness, and recognition of our social problems. The changed education must provide "actual experiencing. . . No other one could furnish the needed learning conditions." Pupil enterprises must form the typical unit of learning procedure.

Procrustes, or the Future of English Education, Dutton, 1927, is by Alderton M. Pink. This recent book in the Today and Tomorrow Series can be tossed off in half an hour. It is very English, but full of common sense. It deals with the present situation in England, and protests against fitting the coming generation to the present procrustean bed. Education must be enlarged and changed and fitted to the individual.

Educating for Responsibility, Macmillan, 1926, edited by Lucy L. W. Wilson, is an account of a three-year application of the Dalton Plan in the South Philadelphia High School for Girls. The introductory chapters are written by the principal, while each department head presents the applications of the plan to her own particular subject. The appendix gives a useful bibliography of the Dalton Plan and examples of assignments in the various school subjects. This is a desirable book for school people who are using, or contemplating the use of the Dalton Plan. — Note that the title carries the conviction that those who have used this plan have given up the static for the active and feel that they are reaching a definite and practical goal for culture. Viewed from this angle, the book may do something to convert those who at present oppose the plan.

THE IDEAL EDUCATION

In so far as we celebrate at all, we all set up ideals toward which we approximate. So many who have established standards in education have attempted to draw for us the portrait of their ideal educated man. So did Montaigne, Milton, and Huxley. Now Everett Dean Martin, director of the Peoples Institute, has in a series of lectures, The Meaning of a Liberal Education, Norton, 1926, drawn a most stimulating and attractive portrait of his ideal educated man. This is not a book primarily for educators, but it is a stimulating book for any teacher, for it takes him outside schools and schoolrooms, and above the din of the classroom he gets a clearer conception of the ultimate ends that have remained unchanged from the time of Plato to Everett Dean Martin.

In these fifteen essays Dr. Martin will convince the fair-minded that his ideals are better than some others'. This he does by contrasting his liberal education with animal training, propaganda, and book learning. Then in successive chapters he builds constructively upon scepticism. His educated man is inspired with the spirit of inquiry and investigation. "A man is known by the dilemmas he keeps." This theme he elaborates in a lecture, and then dilates on the "Free Spirit", "Appreciation of Human Worth", "What Has Education To Do with Work or Morals?" He examines the classical tradition, Plato and Aristotle, but it is with the humanized Erasmus and Montaigne that Martin is more nearly en rapport. Huxley he recognizes as a master close to his ideal. Dr. Martin's educated man is an arduous sceptic but not an easy scoffer. He has a lively sense of humor. Most of his dilemmas belong to past experience. He has left moralizing behind. He has a true appreciation of human worth and a readily applicable sense of values. Martin's portrait will bear scrutiny. It will differ from others, but how congenial and how interested in everything about them today would Erasmus and Montaigne and Huxley be if they could join Mr. Martin's ideal educated man for a time in this year 1927.

Education and the Good Life, Boni and Liveright, 1926, by Bertrand Russell, is another portrayal of the ideal education and what it will produce. It is a truly Christian, enlightened, civilized attitude that this mathematician-pacifist assumes, rather too much so for most of us roughnecks who still believe in force, war and righteousness. It was written by a pacifist who went to prison, a great mathematician who regards education as religion. It is a delightfully readable book, introducing much that is controversial. Open minded and cosmopolitan as the author is, there is still a flavor of English provincialism and traditionalism in his attitude, and a vein of sentimentality runs through it. The book is addressed to parents and much of it is characterized by simple, homely, common sense.

"Do not let the child feel fear if you can possibly help it. If it is ill, and you are anxious, hide your anxiety very carefully, lest it should pass to the child by suggestion . . . and do not minister to the child's self-importance by letting it see that you mind if it does not sleep or eat or evacuate as it should.

"In the past our energies have mainly gone to checking the operations of will instead of to a positive development of those intellectual attitudes which would give human beings command of the activities of the will."

On Culture and a Liberal Education, Arnold, 1926, is a little book by Jesse Lee Bennett in which he introduces us to books which he believes will bring to us what the title implies. Here again a man holds up the mirror and we learn what he has read. Each of us is part of all he has met and read, and one must conclude Mr. Bennett has culture and a liberal education, however much one would wish to improve, modify, or complete his reading lists.

NEW SCHOOLS FOR OLD

Though there is much in education that is new, and inspired men and women and teachers of genius are working out new and better methods in Europe and America, there is little enough written on the subject that is specific. There are discursive theorizings that attempt more or less to take cognizance of the whole field. But there is all too little good reporting of what is actually doing.

Carleton Washburne who has done so much to develop individual instruction in connection with the Winnetka public schools, has given us an excellent piece of reporting on the New Schools in the Old World, John Day, 1926. In this he had the collaboration of a trained magazine writer, Myron M. Stearns, and the assistance of two of his teachers whom he took with him to observe and report. He takes us with him to about a dozen schools from England to Prague where something vital is being accomplished. From our visits with him we get the feel of having met the men and women and seen the children at work. We get the spirit and atmosphere of Jessie Mackinder's infant school; we feel the genius of O'Neill's work with the children of mill operatives at Kearsley; and we see some of our basic educational theories violently upset with splendid results at Bakule's School.

"In the new Russia, all schools, theoretically, are new schools", writes Lucy L. W. Wilson, Principal of the South Philadelphia High School for Girls, in an extended article in the March 13 issue of School and Society. "Here for the first time in modern history, education in its broadest sense is taking its rightful place as the crown of social thinking. . . . In Russia, the emphasis has been shifted from materially comfortable middle age to clean, fearless, idealistic and spiritual youth. Children Come First . . . Perhaps the most important factor that favors new education in Russia is the atmosphere of freedom in which not only the children but also the teachers carry on their work . . . Last year, more than a thousand schools experimented with the Dalton Plan. . . . The Russians have shown remarkable ability in the organization of education, making it dominantly national, yet with adequate local autonomy. This organizing skill seems to reach down into the four walls of the class room."

Thirty-one percent of the total expenditure in Soviet Russia is appropriated for popular education, according to the latest weekly news bulletin as reported in School and Society, January 30. From the same source we learn that the schools of Leningrad this year will accommodate 100 percent of the children of school age, an increase in accommodation since 1913 of 42 per cent.

Education in Soviet Russia, International Publishers, 1926, by Scott Nearing, tells of his visits to city schools, village schools, and the higher educational institutions throughout Russia. He saw the kindergartens, the schools for adults, and observed the gigantic effort being made for the liquidation of illiteracy. He talked to teachers and students, attended class sessions, and studied the methods and programs in use. In reviewing this book in the October 2 issue of School and Society,

J. E. Kirpatrick writes: "All the educational novelties we have been preaching in this country and timidly experimenting with in private schools are being boldly tried out in the Russian public schools."

SOCIETY AND EDUCATION

The Psychology of Social Institutions, Macmillan, 1926, is by Dr. Charles Hubbard Judd. The purpose of the book is to center the attention on social influences that determine the character of human thought and conduct. The chapters deal with such topics as Tool Consciousness, Systems of Exchange, The Psychology of Number, The Psychology of Punctuality, The Psychology of the Alphabet, Individual Emotions and Social Institutions, The Unique Character of Human Evolution, and Education as Socialization of the Individual. The book is the result of twenty years of thinking and teaching.

Sociology and Education, Harper's, 1926, by Alvin Good, professor of sociology, Louisiana State Normal College, presents a survey of education and interprets social life from the standpoint of the educator. Education promotes social contacts and social life, the author maintains. The book is planned for teacher training courses and is a systematic, well presented arrangement of material selected with a broad and catholic attitude.

Practical Social Science, Macmillan, 1926, by John A. Lapp, is accurately described as a laboratory textbook. Not believing in theoretical sociology for high school instruction, the author has provided a practical treatment of the subject. He has attempted "to mobilize concrete social data, to give a vast amount of factual information."

THE ROOTS OF SOCIETY

William Graham Sumner was one of the most original thinkers and forceful personalities that has ever been confined within academic walls. American intellectual life has produced only a few that can be put in his class. Never hesitating to state the truth, even though making enemies in the process, he was beloved of his pupils.

One of his pupils, Albert Galloway Keller, now professor of the science of society at Yale, has carried on Sumner's work. Twenty-seven years after its inception by Professor Sumner, the first two volumes are published of The Science of Society, Yale, 1927. The title page bears the names of both William Graham Sumner and Albert Galloway Keller, though the books as they stand are the work of Professor Keller.

When Sumner's health failed in 1909, he turned over to Keller his ten year accumulation of material and the rough draft of his manuscript, which has since been greatly added to and many times rewritten. Two more volumes are to appear, the third of which will deal largely with the school's relation to society, and the fourth of which will be a case book.

This is a most painstaking scientific investigation into primitive habit and the roots from which our social forms, customs, and traditions have grown. Extreme conscientiousness to develop every phase of the subject and to carry out implications has necessitated great condensation, which probably makes the book less readable than the cruder manuscript that Professor Sumner left. But the courage and incisiveness characteristic of Sumnerology is still here.

Slavery, as investigated and presented in a large way, is shown to have been on the whole an inevitable institution in human progress, as it has been in the ants. Reading Sumner, ethical and moral principles, ideas of what is or has been intrinsic, good or bad, all have to be revised. We find, with broader knowledge, mankind climbing upward by means of institutions and through practices which we have traditionally held to be fundamentally vicious. This work is a monument, impressive and imposing, to a great thinker and to his scholarly and conscientious pupil.

Social Differentiation, University of North Carolina Press, 1926, by Cecil Clare North, is "an approach to social psychology." Mr. North is a sociologist who believes that "all social science must be tested." Nor does he bow to the shibboleths of democracy. His axiom is that there is no equality, and his purpose is to study quantitatively, so far as possible, differences in members and classes of society. These differences are first biological matters of race, sex, age, individual variation, physical or mental. This leads to a study of differences of function, rank, culture, the creation of privileged classes and the perpetuation of social differences.

Social Progress, Studies in the Dynamics of Change, Lippincott, 1926, is by Ulysses G. Weatherly. Professor Weatherly now occupies a chair of economics at Indiana University, but came to it through the fields of history and anthropology which have admirably prepared him for the writing of this book. "Adaptation is a process which is never finished," and therefore, "social patterns are worth preserving only as they are capable of continuous reshaping to meet changing needs and enlarging experience." There is no attempt in this book to survey historically theories of social progress. The method is pragmatic, emphasizing the dynamics of change. It leads to no philosophy of progress. It is no guide book for reformers. "The subject of social progress will be exhausted only when human history is ended." The book is arranged in five parts dealing with Conditions, Attitudes, Factors, Pathology, and Process and Product. Among some of the interesting chapters are, Economic Determinism and Laissez Faire, Radicals and Utopians, The Dynamic Individual, and Social Stereotypes: Formalism.

The Pageant of America, Yale University Press, 1925-26, published in fifteen volumes under the general editorship of Ralph Henry Gabriel, is in commemoration of the sesqui-centennial of American Independence. The first volume, "Adventures in the Wilderness", by Clark Wissler and others, appeared in 1925 and deals with the aborigines and with the earliest arrivals from European shores.

During 1926 four more volumes appeared. Volume III, "Toilers of Land and Sea", by Ralph Henry Gabriel, is a delineation of our American life in all its phases, from its European origins through three centuries of progressive development, — frontier, agricultural, industrial, seafaring. One follows the amazing changes from life on the old farm to the farm life of the telephone and the automobile. Volume V, "The Epic of Industry", by Malcolm Keir, takes us into the steel mills and the coal mines depicting the triumphs of industry and labor at every stage of their development. Volume XI, "The American Spirit in Letters", by Stanley Thomas Williams, gives for each author personalia and memorabilia which one might find in the most lavishly extra-illustrated volumes of a private collector. Volume XIII, "Architecture", by Talbot Faulkner Hamlin, is a complete pictorial presentation of the structures built since the time of the aborigines, — Swedish, Dutch, Southern, Northern Colonial, and the transitions of American architecture to the present day. Other volumes to come will deal with the frontier, commerce, art, political history, the stage, sports, and other phases of American life.

Out of Yale have come in recent years two notable historic enterprises, each carried through with distinction, for the most part by young graduates. The "Chronicles of America" a series of forty or more volumes by various authors, proved unequal in their quality. These were followed by a series of films bearing the same general title.

When I first read the brilliantly written prospectus of the "Pageant" I suspected that they were working off scraps of the two previous enterprises in a series of subscription volumes which would doubtless be admirably done. But even a glance changes this conception. Here is a monumental work into which has gone the highest and most enlightened scholarship.

The sources everywhere have been tapped. Here has been brought together and published in an ordered and usable way a larger amount of original source material than has ever before been made generally available.

The great interest and chief purpose in historical studies should be to enable us to live the past, to visualize men, scenes, and events that have been. When we can picture these things in relation to the whole, then we have historical sense of the highest order. What can history or historical scholarship do more than to perfect and complete these pictures of the past? The publishers of this work have achieved more in this direction than has ever before been accomplished in any one field of history. They have not merely published ten thousand pictures. Endless research and rare discrimination have been used in selecting the reproductions of old prints, title pages, maps, deeds, documents, photographs and tapestries, in addition to a great number of interpretive drawings and maps that have been made especially for these volumes. The captions are illuminating and instructive. Their detail and accuracy is supplemented by a series of notes on each picture and its source. The text, brief and occupying in general less page surface than the illustrations, for the most part elaborates on the incidents and the things illustrated. Each volume, however, is introduced by an orienting essay.

These are most admirable volumes to put in the hands of children. They compel attention. Properly used, they lead to self instruction. They are real and genuine, not dry-as-dust words compiled by weary bookworms from other books. Turning the pages, we again become explorers, we again get the thrill of adventure. Give away or store your old history text books. Put "The Pageant of America" in the schoolroom and get every pupil started on notebooks and the organization of supplementary material in scrapbooks. Then there will be something vital doing.

Another attempt to picture the past appears in the new edition of Wells' Outline of History, Macmillan, 1926. This is a rewritten book with added chapters and many changes, but the essential thing is the illustrations. These are not wholly new, but there are a great number of changes and additional pictures, including many color plates. The pictures are reproduced from photographs, diagrams, maps, charts, old manuscripts, mosaics, and objets d'art, and to a lesser extent from imaginative drawings and paintings. The new outline may be considered unrivaled for supplementary reading and as a source book for general and especially non-European history.

MORE OUTLINES

Wells' success has led to a flood of outlines from the publishers on all conceivable subjects, from art to Christianity. The professional historians are either jibing at Wells or imitating him.

A Short History of Civilization, Crofts, 1926, by Lynn Thorndike, professor of history in Columbia, is a thick volume of nearly six hundred pages which purports to be a complete history of civilization from prehistoric times to the present. In the preface it is explained that the conception of this work antedates the war and consequently Wells; that the purpose, too, was similar, — to do something to save civilization. The work of a trained historian, it is naturally scholarly and comprehensive. An enormous amount of labor has gone into its compilation, but the book is too all-inclusive, the writing too condensed to make good reading. It lacks the spark of genius.

In contrast to this, The Adventure of Man, Harcourt, Brace, 1926, a brief history of the world by F. Crossfield Happold, briefly covers the whole span of history from prehistoric times to the present day. It surveys the great movements, events, and personalities, with attention to science and invention, art, religion, and literature. But by careful selection and expurgation, or rather by selection of significant things, Mr. Happold covers a longer range of time than Professor Thorndike and in an almost as lively and much simpler way than Wells.

Mr. Happold is the history master at the Perse School, where all subjects are enlivened and given vitality, as this book is added evidence. Mr. Happold really believes that the history of the human race is a thrilling adventure and he reports something of this thrill in such a way as to hold the interest of a twelve-year old. The book is comparable to Hillyer's "Child's History of the World", but entirely different in its method. There is no writing down to the young. In fact, there is nothing in the book to indicate that it was written for other than his equals. It holds the attention of the elderly. The illustrations, crude though they are, are of well chosen subjects, and the charts are simple and illuminating. This is perhaps the most successful treatment of this great subject within so brief a compass.

The History of Human Society, Scribner's, 1926, by Frank W. Blackmar, professor of sociology at the University of Kansas, is an ambitious and labored attempt to crowd into a lecture course a vast quantity of notes taken from hasty and extensive reading. Naturally, it leads to broad statements and generalizations and lacks the specific detail that would lend interest to any one of the particular subjects treated. In justice to the author it must be added, however, that his purpose in writing the book was to "form the basis of a course of reading or study that will give the picture in small compass." The table of contents is well ordered and stimulates interest. Sections of the book deal with Civilization and Progress, First Steps of Progress, Seats of Early Civilization, Western Civilization, and Modern Progress. The chapter titles are of interest, Pre-historic Man, The Greek Social Polity, Arabian Conquest and Culture, The Evolution of Science. But the author is too conscientious. His work is too all-inclusive. Had he built with Michelangelo's "Art is the expurgation of the superfluous" in mind, we should have had a better book.

The Making of the Modern Mind, Houghton Mifflin, 1926, by J. H. Randall, Jr., is "a survey of the intellectual background of the present age." Dr. Randall is assistant professor of philosophy at Columbia. Here is a highly readable and stimulating book which enters sympathetically into the spirit of the past in order to make the thought and spirit of the day more understandable. Beginning with the 13th century, the author gives us an illuminating interpretation of religious thought and practice as revealed in the writings of the time. With the new world of the Renaissance, new interests are added. In tracing the development of thought through to the "social ideals in the growing world", there is perhaps an over-emphasis on religion. A more complete understanding of the making of the modern mind would doubtless be arrived at if, to all the author brings us, there were added something from the psychological and scientific interpretations of thought in its historical aspects.

THE SCHOLAR'S VIEW

The Historian and Historical Evidence, Scribner's, 1926, by Allen Johnson, professor of American history, Yale, deals in interesting and popular style with the technical attitudes and methods of the professional historian. As he hasn't written an outline, he first takes his fling at Wells, but soon settles down to his job of explaining sources of information, the technique of historical criticism, the assessment of evidence, and the like. The academic atmosphere and technical training have not wholly deprived the author of a certain naïveté.

THE SPENGLERIAN CYCLES

The Teutonic mind is given to generalization which in Germany today takes a somewhat pessimistic tinge. Dr. Oswald Spengler's "Untergang des Abendlandes" has been a best seller in Germany, but only the first part has appeared in English. Civilization is presented as occurring in cycles, each lasting about 1500 years and going through much the same stages. Western European civilization, according to Spengler the ninth cycle, has just passed its prime. The tenth, which is to replace it, is going through its initial stages in Russia. Utilizing a wealth of information about the oldest civilizations that was not available until the development of archaeological research, Spengler has worked out in great detail his theory of human cycles. The conception of recurring cycles is as old as Asiatic thought. It lies at the basis of most oriental philosophy. We find it in the reincarnations of the Buddhas. Polybius made much of it. It comes to us in the Christian idea of milleniums and resurrections. It was not unknown to Hegel. It is a bromide, "history repeats itself." It is a plausible theory, for we know that there are cycles and rhythms in things cosmic, in the recurring atomic weights as revealed by Mendeleev, in the "sweet influences of the Pleiades" and "the bonds of Orion." Cycles in economic and political things are not so clearly established, though they are interesting subjects for theorizing.

Civilization or Civilizations, Boni and Liveright, 1926, is by E. H. Goddard and P. A. Gibbons. This is in no way a translation, but the authors accept Spengler's theory without reserve, and we must assume that they are presenting Spenglerian ideas. The mastery of detail in regard to ancient civilizations will greatly impress most readers who know little outside western Europe. That the ancient Egyptian and Hittite civilizations should be treated as of equal importance and equal permanence is astounding. To fit the theory, Chinese civilization is assumed to have begun 1500 B. C., and to have ended with the birth of our era. This, based on knowledge of the moralists, shows entire ignorance of Chinese art and culture, which was crude and primitive at the time attributed to its decline, but reached its peak during the Sung dynasty, a thousand years later. There is an attempt to show that each civilization went through a like series of changes, but when it comes to working out similarities of political development, China, which doesn't conform, is merely dropped from consideration. We have long accepted as truisms the mythical stages, and recognized art as coming out of the development of wealth. Starting with truths, Spengler has developed them into elaborated and detailed theories and tabulations which do violence to historic fact.

HISTORY AND PROPAGANDA

Someone a long time ago discovered that if he could teach the songs the people sing he could control the nations. History teaching, too, it was long since discovered, may be used to create and control national feelings and emotions which are the springs of action. Those who would exert power, then, have naturally sought to control the character of the history taught. The struggle as to what shall be taught as history will then go on while the opportunities to seize and use power continue. But all this has been brought to the fore by the extravagance of war propaganda and by the unreasoning violence of our legionnaires and patrioteers. Above and beyond the heated partisan discussions there are some recent substantial and unimpassioned inquiries into the subject.

Public Opinion and the Teaching of History, Knopf, 1926, is by Bessie L. Pierce, associate professor of history, University of Iowa. An account is given of some of the attempts that have been made to control the teaching of history in our public schools. The first part recounts the legislation on the subject from 1860 to the present. This is followed by an account of the propaganda influences of religious, patriotic, racial, and other organized groups. It is a shameful story of how, in the name of patriotism or religion, little children's minds have been poisoned with the prejudices of their elders.

The Menace of Nationalism in Education, Macmillan, 1926, is by J. F. Scott. Dr. Scott deals largely with France, Germany, and England, and what they are doing to poison the Picrian spring by teaching blatant nationalism through the medium of social studies. "The writers of texts impregnated with the spirit of intense nationalism are laying the psychological foundations, not of national security, but of a new war." He finds the German and French text books equally guilty. The British, less crude in their methods, inculcate in their children such dogmas as, "The British Empire is the greatest human institution under heaven, the greatest secular organization for good."

THE REVIVAL OF INTEREST IN RELIGION

The after-war revival of interest in religion still goes on. The high tide of reactionary fundamentalism ebbs as Sinclair Lewis, the reporter of Main Street and Babbitty, unleashes his scorn and fury upon Elmer Gantry, Harcourt, Brace, 1927.

Among the multitude of books on religious and near-religious subjects, some like Bishop Gore's Can We Then Believe? Scribner, 1926, and Bishop Brown's My Heresy, attempt to revalue and reassert old tenets from the standpoint of the writer's personal experience. Some like Theodore H. Robinson's Outline Introduction to the History of Religions, Oxford, 1926, give an academic review of the whole field. Some like Henry Fairfield Osborne's Evolution and Religion, Scribner, 1926, are written to meet contemporary conditions, in this latter case to stem the tide of fundamentalism and legislation against evolution. Outline of Christianity, five volumes, Putnam, 1926, is a hodge-podge produced by hack writers to float on the popular tide of outlines. To this work John H. Finley lends his name as general editor.

Religion in the Making, Macmillan, 1926, by Alfred North Whitehead, is a restatement of the Lowell Lectures of the same year, and attempts to give concisely some analysis of the factor in human nature which gave rise to religion, and the necessary changes that have come with growing knowledge, and to point out of all this the permanent and unchanging elements in religion. Professor Whitehead is a mathematician, a Fellow of Cambridge University and now a professor of philosophy at Harvard. Some of the sentences, as befit lectures, are pithy and fall well upon the ear, as "Religion is by no means necessarily good. It may be very evil." "Religion in its decay sinks back into sociability." "A system of dogmas may be the ark within which the Church floats safely down the flood-tide of history. But the Church will perish unless it opens its window and lets out the dove to search for an olive branch."

THE BIBLE COMES TO MAIN STREET

Bruce Barton is the son of a clergyman, the head of a great advertising agency and writer of sermonettes to the boobocracy through the popular magazine pages. His new The Book Nobody Knows, Bobbs-Merrill, 1926, has become a best seller like his book of the previous year, "The Man Nobody Knows." It is addressed to the type that reads the magazines through which he writes and has made a strong appeal to them. To many of these he has brought for the first time incidents and stories of a great book. Vulgar, cheap, irreverent as it must seem to many, filled with errors and careless statements, with interpolated chapters compiled and written for a busy executive by others, still one cannot, after mature deliberation, withhold a high meed of praise. It is a book that has achieved its purpose. It is a success. It has done good. It has brought inspiration to thousands where it shocked the sensibilities of scores. With all the skill and art of the advertising man and public relations expert, he has done what Sunday schools, preachers, churches, and missionaries have failed to do and brought some knowledge of the Bible and possibly a desire for more to Rotarians and backsliders.

The go-getting religion of Bruce Barton, the advertising apostle and preacher of the Cosmopolitan pages, loses color before the clearer light of such books as "This Believing World."

This Believing World, Macmillan, 1926, is "a simple account of the great religions of mankind", by Lewis Browne, a Jewish rabbi who writes with sympathy, understanding, and detachment. It is not a book for the academic, for the learned or the informed, but that excludes a very small number. It is a book I have not read myself, because I have long been interested in the subject, but I have watched the reading of it by my two sons, twelve and fourteen years of age, and their enthusiasm remains unabated. It is no child's book, but it is a book of inspiration for those who have still something of the spirit of childhood in them, curiosity and an open mind.

The book was written in Jerusalem. The prologue portrays Jerusalem, saturated with religion, its animosities, its evils, and this leads to inquiry of How it All Began, Book I. Book II deals with How Religion Developed in the Ancient World. The stories are simply told, but with real understanding. Especially notable is the direct way in which the author leads us to see how oriental religions such as Mithraism came to be incorporated into the church practices of today. The language of the hymnals becomes intelligible when we here read of how Christianity adopted from the older and rival religion, Mithraism, much of its phraseology and ritual. What happened in India, China, Persia, Israel, Europe, and Arabia in the making of religion is sympathetically and interestingly revealed.

Religion has been too often a dry subject. But Browne makes it a story of gripping interest. The usual attitude toward others' religions is at best one of condescension. Here a liberated and enlightened follower of the most ancient religions interprets with equal sympathy all the religions to which he turns his attention. Especially appreciative is he of what Christianity has done for the world. Here is a book no Christian could have written. Certainly none has. Here is a book that is sweet, truthful and revealing, stimulating and wholesome.

It is easy to criticize this book. If the authorities quoted in the bibliography were brought together to discuss it, certainly the fur would fly. But it is a great achievement, perhaps the outstanding book of the year, and deserves the paeons of praise it has received.

- BROWN, ZADEE. Standard Catalog for High School Libraries. New York, H. S. Wilson, 1926. A selected list of 2600 books "chosen with the help of educators and school librarians." These are just the books one expects to find in high school libraries, and still I found it of little value in selecting books for my own children. A newness of approach and a freshness of attitude is needed on the part of educators and librarians if this is the best they can do. Fortunately, there are better book lists for parents.
- BUCKINGHAM, BURDETTE ROSS. Research for Teachers. Newark, N. J., Silver Burdett, 1926. Designed to give the teacher useful and helpful methods in his work and to show him the opportunities for research. Among the interesting chapter headings are: "What Statistics does the Modern Teacher Need?" "Better Testing," "Grouping and Classifying Pupils," "Reaching the Individual," and "The Teacher as a Research Worker."
- CAMPBELL, C. MACFIE. Delusion and Belief. Cambridge, Harvard University Press, 1926. A revamped lecture by the professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School. It deals with such poignant problems as unsatisfied love, the longing of the childless, the desire for power, and the modes of dealing with such problems.

THE PRIVATE SCHOOLS

STATISTICALLY AND CRITICALLY DESCRIBED

EXPLANATORY NOTE

In bold face type the basic statistical facts are given for each school as reported by the school. The school name, for Boys, for Girls, or coeducational (Coed); the Ages of the pupils enrolled; the date of establishment (Est); the head with degrees, colleges, and title. The enrollment (Enr) is whenever possible divided into boarding (Bdg) and day. The number of the faculty (Fac) in general includes only full-time instructors. Tuition (Tui) with its various ranges, boarding and day; the grades covered and the courses given, college preparatory (Col Prep), academic (Acad), and special (Music, Art, Domestic Science, etc.), are indicated. The type of ownership, — incorporated, incorporated not for profit, partnership, proprietary; the number of the trustees and how elected; the endowment; scholarships and their value; prizes and their value; denominational influence or affiliation; the colleges and associations to which the school is accredited, the associations of which the school is a member, or by which approved; the number of pupils taking College Entrance Board Examinations (C E B E) for various years; the number of graduates entering college in various years; and the number of living alumni are given where known.

Endowment has frequently been omitted where no income from it was reported in the belief that the value of plant had been reported as endowment. Accrediting by the state department of education has been omitted, again in the belief that such accrediting is inconsequential in a national way.

The largest city of, and the gateway to Maine, Portland is on a saddleback hill about three miles long at the southwestern end of Casco Bay. Prosperity has not obliterated the mellow dignity of the past and the public buildings and homes enhance the city's natural loveliness. The City Hall with its municipal auditorium contains the fourth largest organ in the world. A few doors west of Monument Square is the elm-shaded Wadsworth-Longfellow house, carefully preserved by the Maine Historical Society.

On Ocean Avenue is the Portland Country Day School. The Waynflete Latin School is in the West End residential section. On the same street, nearer the center of the city, is the School of Fine Arts of the Portland Society of Art. Westbrook Seminary, in the Deering section to the west, is the oldest educational institution of Universalist origin in the country. St. Joseph's Academy is in the Woodfords district, three miles from the center of the city.

The establishment of St. Paul's marked a new trend in education in America. The economic development of the country and the increase of wealth had created a place for a new type of private school which should meet more nearly the requirements of a growing wealthy class who no longer wished for their sons the old type of democratic schooling. This need was first recognized by Dr. George Cheyne Shattuck, who in 1855 gave his estate near Concord for the purpose, as he expressed it in his deed of gift, "Of endowing a school of the highest class for boys, in which they may obtain an education which shall fit them either for college or business, including thorough intellectual training in the various branches of learning, gymnastics and manly exercises adapted to preserve health and strengthen the physical condition, such æsthetic culture and accomplishments as shall tend to refine the manners and elevate the taste, together with careful moral and religious instruction."

The Rev. Henry Augustus Coit was called in 1856 by the trustees to the position of first rector of the new school. Dr. Coit, whose family name for two generations has been prominent in American education, had received his training under the Rev. William Augustus Muhlenberg, at whose suggestion he was later an instructor in the College of St. James, Hagerstown. Dr. Muhlenberg's school at College Point, L.I., which later became St. Paul's College, in its eighteen years' existence exerted a great influence on the future private schools in America, for among his pupils in addition to Coit were several future bishops who were later influential in organizing the earliest Episcopalian church schools of the parental type. At St. Paul's Dr. Coit entered upon a virgin field and during the formative years of the school he indelibly stamped his personality upon it. As Dr. Coit developed it the school showed the influence of his master, Muhlenberg, in its unreserved adoption of the "in loco parentis" theory. Combined with this was much from the English public schools which he had visited, freely adapted to new conditions, and inspiration was without doubt especially derived from Arnold's methods at Rugby. Dr. Coit was an able administrator and a keen student of boys and men. His career was marked by an unswerving adherence to lofty Christian ideals, and the strength of his success lay in his remarkable ability to inspire others with them. For nearly forty years, until his death in 1895, Dr. Coit was the head and heart of St. Paul's and made it one of the foremost of the American schools. Not without some reason has he been called the greatest of American school masters.

But Dr. Shattuck's influence has also been apparent. Established by a physician, St. Paul's was perhaps the first school in which the deed of gift accented physical development; and healthy outdoor life has always characterized St. Paul's. But it may be questioned if the founder's coordinate aim of "æsthetic culture" has been equally well carried out. The beautiful situation of St. Paul's, two miles from Concord in the valley of the Turkey river with its vast extent of woodland, fields, its rivers and ponds, has offered every facility for outdoor life, for golf, tennis, swimming, canoeing, skating and hockey. But even in outdoor life English influence was at first apparent. Dr. Coit encouraged cricket rather than baseball. The English schoolroom nomenclature, too, was here introduced to the American boy. St. Paul's still has "forms," but the "removes," "evensong" and "matins" and even the cricket of Dr. Coit's time are now forgotten. Most of the boys in the three upper forms have separate rooms. The younger boys have "alcoves" in the dormitories similar to the "cubicles" of many of the English public schools. This custom here first introduced in the American private schools has been followed by Groton, St.

Mark's and other schools. Dr. Coit's immediate successors were somewhat overshadowed by his greatness. He was followed by his brother, Joseph Howland Coit, who had been vice rector since 1865. The Rev. Henry Ferguson, Professor of History at Trinity College, who was an "old boy" of St. Paul's, accepted the rectorship for a limited number of years.

Dr. Drury has since 1911 been the rector and in a quiet pervasive way, without inaugurating any revolution, has done much to stimulate new life and to establish new standards of usefulness. Though a priest, with the ecclesiastical attitude, he is a man of vision. His annual reports are most readable as is his recently published book "Schoolmastering." Through his writings he has put across ideas which have enabled him to inaugurate some innovations. Dr. Drury has recently introduced with success a measure of student control and self-help in the dormitory life. In many other ways the student life has been broadened and deepened.

St. Paul's is today the largest of the church schools, enrolling four hundred boys who come largely from families of wealth and social prominence throughout the country. Boys are admitted from a waiting list of over one thousand, about one fifth of whom are the sons of alumni, but an increasing number of boys not on the list are each year admitted after a competitive examination. About forty-five boys each year receive scholarships or a partial remission of the tuition, but to promote a more democratic atmosphere more might receive aid. Toward this end the alumni have raised an endowment of over a million which will temporarily eliminate the annual deficit.

Exeter was founded by John Phillips, who, stirred by the immediate success of Phillips Academy at Andover, founded by his brother and his nephew, established The Phillips Exeter Academy in his home town in New Hampshire. It was incorporated by the legislature in 1781 and was opened early in 1783.

Benjamin Abbot, the second principal, ruled over the institution with great power and wisdom for the term of fifty years. He had been trained at Andover under Principal Pearson, graduated from Harvard in 1788, and came immediately to Phillips Exeter where he became perhaps the most famous of all the early academy teachers. "Little Daniel Webster came to him for schooling in 1796. Edward Everett finished his preparation for college here, at the age of thirteen. Lewis Cass came to the school at the age of ten, a headstrong boy, fond of pranks and of outdoor life; and here he remained for five years and made a very good record." In 1838 Gideon L. Soule, who had already been a teacher in the school for seventeen years, succeeded Dr. Abbot, and in 1872 the fiftieth year of his continuous service in the academy was celebrated.

Exeter's alumni represent every state of the Union and many foreign countries. No other school has given so many distinguished men to the nation. Forty-five years ago, at the close of the first century of her existence, Exeter numbered among her alumni "nine college presidents, including three of Harvard, fifty-two college professors, two hundred and forty-five teachers, thirty-six authors, five ambassadors, seven cabinet ministers, twenty-eight members of Congress, twelve governors of states, a long list of Federal and State judges, Army and Naval officers, and more than a thousand professional men." Such a contribution to the nation's assets must be due to the spirit of Exeter, which has not only attracted pupils of promise, but accounts for their fruitful development.

Exeter has always been characterized by a spirit of earnestness, sincerity and independence — dignity without pose or affectation. There is no veneering process at Exeter — that which is within is brought out. There is little of the paternal attitude. A boy must stand upon his own feet.

The traditional saying that the academy has no rules until they are broken, although a humorous overstatement, still expresses the belief of the school that the boy's own conscience and good sense are in the main sufficient for right conduct. Rules relieve a boy of the responsibility of judging for himself. An alumnus recently asked what he considered the most signal benefit a boy derived from Exeter, replied, "Readiness to take responsibility." Thus the academy is today fulfilling the purpose of its founder "to learn them the GREAT END AND REAL BUSINESS OF LIVING." Education at Exeter, then, is not mere preparation for life. It is life.

Significant of the value of college preparation which Exeter gives is the fact that thirty Exeter men at Harvard in a recent year received fifty-two A's and ninety-six B's, both honor grades, and out of eighteen in the freshman class at Yale in the same year, eight were on the honor list. In college the Exeter man is found leading in college activities. In the major sports of the freshman class at Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth and Princeton, in two recent years, ten Exeter graduates have held the office of captain.

At Exeter there is a progressive spirit which accepts nothing as necessarily final in educational work. With all its rich traditions Exeter has never become moss grown. There was no Theological Seminary as at Andover to hold it so strictly to orthodoxy, and its students continued to resort to the more liberal Harvard, and today Exeter remains to a marked extent a school preparatory to Harvard. There is more of the university atmosphere, of the freedom and the fostering of the individual at Exeter than at perhaps any other great American school. The atmosphere at Exeter is essentially democratic and thoroughly American. Not only does it attract over six hundred students from all over the country, but admission is in no way dependent upon class, color or wealth, or the lack of any of these. Each boy stand on his merits.

Exeter has a large endowment fund from which it gives annually a larger number of scholarships than any other secondary school. The effect of this has been to increase democracy and to raise the standard of scholarship. As at Andover the dormitory system is a relatively new feature. During its early history students were quartered in the houses of the townspeople, and something of this still survives, though in the last half century more dormitories have been erected, largely through the generosity of alumni, where the boy receives much the same supervision as in smaller schools.

"One of the most precious institutions of the country" was the characterization that former President Eliot of Harvard gave Exeter, and this invaluable position must be attributed to its long line of principals, who have been men of strong personality, above the pettiness which so often stigmatizes other schools. Not the least of these was Harlan P. Amen, who, coming to the principalship after "a period of executive laxness," in his eighteen years of office, by strong and sympathetic leadership, brought Exeter back to her ancient standards. Dr. Perry was elected principal in 1914, a post for which his previous experience as a master at the Lawrenceville School and as professor at Williams had prepared him. To meet the new demands on the secondary schools Exeter inaugurated for the first time in 1919 a regular summer session which offers instruction to boys who wish to make more rapid progress, or to make up deficiencies in their school work. See page 746.

New Hampton, formerly New Hampton Literary Institution and Commercial College, was until 1926 coeducational. It was long affiliated with the Free Baptists, but the alumni took control in 1921 when John S. French was made principal. In 1926 Mr. Smith, one of the six members of his family who had been educated at New Hampton, took over the direction of the institution, organized it as a boys' school and trebled the enrollment. Mr. Smith came to New Hampton from the superintendency of the American School in Mexico. See page 749.

Phillips Academy is the oldest of the great national schools which have become such distinctive features in American education. Its founder, Samuel Phillips, and its first head master, Eliphalet Pearson, were both students at Dummer and classmates at Harvard College, graduating in the class of 1771. In 1778 Samuel Phillips together with his father and his uncle John deeded both land and money for the purpose of founding the school. According to this document, the donors proposed "to lay the foundation of a public free SCHOOL OR ACADEMY for the purpose of instructing Youth, not only in English and Latin Grammar, Writing, Arithmetic and those Sciences wherein they are commonly taught; but more especially to learn them the GREAT END AND REAL BUSINESS OF LIVING." Further on, "it is again declared that the first and principal object of this Institution is the promotion of true PIETY and VIRTUE."

Andover was doubtless chosen as the site because it was the old home of the family, as the father of the two brothers had been a former master of the Grammar School at Andover. The school opened in the midst of the Revolution and in 1780 was incorporated with the title of Phillips Academy, the first chartered academy in New England. Andover has been fortunate from the first in attracting men of the highest ideals to its control. Eliphalet Pearson, the first principal, was a man of great force and versatility and of commanding presence who held his pupils well in awe and was known to the boys as "Elephant" Pearson:

"... Great Eliphalet (I can see him now), —

Big name, big frame, big voice and beetling brow."

He afterward became professor of Hebrew at Harvard and still later in the Theological Seminary at Andover, which was an outgrowth of the same foundation.

There were twenty-three boys in the academy, when, in 1810, Dr. John Adams came to the master's throne, which he occupied for twenty-three years. By 1817 the number of boys had increased to one hundred, and during his time Dr. Adams admitted 1119 pupils, nearly one-fifth of whom became ministers. Under Samuel H. Taylor, a man of picturesque and striking personality, head master from 1837 to 1871, the institution gradually took on its present character. After his death, however, it declined in prestige until it was rejuvenated and brought in touch with modern methods of education by Dr. Cecil F. P. Boxcroft, principal from 1874 to 1901.

As is natural Exeter and Andover have had much in common. Both have from the first repudiated the "in loco parentis" theory of school life. They attracted "students with a definite educational purpose" declaring that "the academy is not a suitable place for boys who are idle, insubordinate or lacking in self-control; nor for such as require the constant supervision of a teacher and the routine of the schoolroom in order to enforce industry and fidelity."

Andover perhaps more than Exeter long remained conservative, less influenced by the Unitarian movements which have stirred New England, and perhaps for that reason Andover early became primarily a preparatory school for more conservative Yale rather than Harvard, which soon came under more liberal influences. Andover has in its long career prepared more boys for Yale than any other school in the country. As at Exeter democracy and simplicity have been its tone. Andover has many scholarships for boys needing financial aid. About one hundred boys each year receive some assistance in paying their expenses.

Phillips Academy today attracts nearly six hundred boys, more than half of whom come from outside of New England, and it is truly "national in its representation and democratic in its life and spirit, and is 'equally open to youth of requisite qualifications from every quarter.'" It endeavors to enable its students, as the catalog further states, "to pass by gradual and natural stages from the paternalism of home life to the freedom that awaits them in College. A natural and progressive development is provided for subsequent years in the houses and halls which are in charge of married instructors. The regulations which obtain in all dormitories are here in force, but there is in them the atmosphere of home. The later life of the dormitories is designed to develop a larger sense of responsibility and to prepare for the community life of college." In the early days no housing provision was made for the boys, but they were left to the mercies of the townspeople. It has been found advisable to gather them in dormitories under the control of the school.

The loyalty of Andover men through the years has brought increasing endowment and gifts, many of which commemorate prominent alumni. A recent generous alumnus has aided in providing a new dormitory especially for young boys which further supplies "a stepping stone between the natural restrictions of the home and the somewhat freer life of a large school." The Archæological Museum and department, endowed in 1901, are unique among secondary schools.

Andover has at the present time over eight thousand living alumni, and something like twenty thousand have graduated from the school during its history. About sixty per cent of these have gone to Yale and perhaps fifteen per cent to Harvard. Its alumni are loyal and are organized in numerous associations throughout the country. The present head master, Mr. Stearns, is a graduate of Andover, Amherst, Yale and Andover Theological Seminary. He has been an instructor at Andover since 1897 and head master since 1903. Dr. Stearns is the first principal who has given his whole time to administration, doing no teaching while in office. He has upheld the cultural ideals of the past, vigorously resisting the encroachment of vocational education. The period of his incumbency has witnessed unparalleled progress; the growth in physical resources alone in the last decade has exceeded that of the whole previous period. A million and a half endowment fund has recently been raised to which three thousand alumni contributed. It has been used to increase salaries and to erect a new main building and memorial bell tower. See page 747.

A school of national rather than local repute, Lasell was founded by Professor Lasell of Williams College. From 1874 to 1908 it was under the control of Charles C. Bragdon who introduced many practical features, including the study of home economics on a scientific basis. Since 1908 it has been under the control of Dr. Winslow, all of whose educational work was done at Tufts and who, for ten years, had been an instructor in the school. He is a man with practical business ideals as to the education of the modern woman. The girls are from thirty states and several foreign countries. The alumnae are organized in Lasell Clubs in many cities.

WOODLAND PARK, for girls from eight to fourteen, occupies the grounds and building of the former Woodland Park Hotel.

This school was founded by the late Moses Campbell Mitchell and is conducted by his son, under whose administration it has developed and prospered. A thirty minute daily period of military training is especially adapted to the growing boy. Horseback riding, opportunities for winter sports and a specially constructed winter camp nearby are interesting features. A separate building for boys from six to ten was opened in 1920. The individual boy and his problems are of special interest to Mr. Mitchell. See page 756.

BOSTON, Mass. Pop 748,060 (1920) 779,620 (1925).

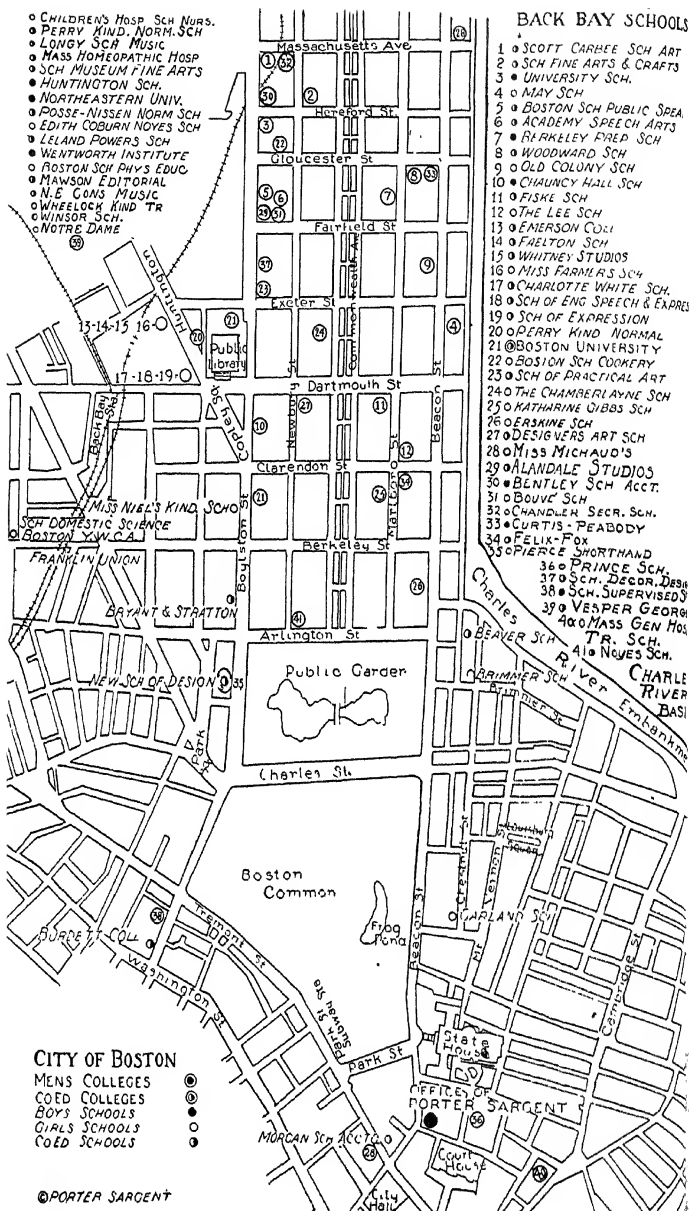

Boston, one of the most desirable places in the world to live, set in a hill-rimmed basin facing a broad island-studded harbor, is still a stronghold of Puritanism and the largest Irish-Catholic city in the world. The second largest trade center of the western hemisphere, Boston is perhaps the wealthiest city in America in proportion to its population. Most good things American, from shoe manufacturing to Christian Science, have originated in and about Boston and later migrated westward.

Except for Beacon Hill, the city has never improved its points of vantage. Its heights remain uncrowned, its waterfront misused. The golden dome on Beacon Hill, the hub-cap of the universe, long looked down on the greatest educational center and student population, and until the dawn of the twentieth century, on the literary center of the country. The higher institutions of learning include, in Boston, Boston University (Methodist), Boston College (Catholic), and Simmons College. Across the Charles are the Massachusetts Institute of Tech-

Chauncy Hall, established by Gideon F. Thayer, was for thirty years a pioneer in education. Military training, coeducation and kindergarten work were introduced before other schools generally had adopted them. At the present time the school confines itself to training primarily for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, although its graduates are found in many other scientific schools and colleges throughout the country. The school has always been in the neighborhood of Copley Square and in the hundred years of its existence it has had four changes in location and five in administration. Mr. Kurt, sole owner since 1910, has been connected with the school since 1896. Under his rigorous and efficient management the school has been highly successful in its chosen field. College Entrance Examination Board reports show that the school has had students with highest ratings every year for the past eight years with a total of forty-two. See page 753.

THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL SCHOOL OF NURSING, 300 Longwood Ave. Women Ages 18-35 Est 1891.

The Huntington School has proved most successful in utilizing the plant and equipment of the local Y.M.C.A. building. Its program has been developed along modern lines and includes in addition to preparation for colleges and technical schools, special courses in business and technical work for those who will not enter college. Emphasis is placed upon giving each student an all round development. An athletic field in Brookline now provides facilities for both indoor and outdoor activities. The success of the school has been due to its filling a real need. Many progressive educational movements have been carried out and extensive use has been made of psychological tests, both individual and group. A rating plan has been devised which takes into consideration both the mental ability of the student and his accomplishment in his courses. Ira A. Flinner, A.M., Harvard, for many years principal, resigned in 1925 and Mr. Sampson, for some years connected with the Huntington School and more recently principal of the Northeastern Preparatory School, was elected head master. A summer session admitting girls as well as boys opens the first Monday in June and closes the first Friday in September. See page 752.

First on Chestnut Street and long on Marlborough Street, early in January 1927 the school opened in the Old University Club. This is a continuation of Miss Folsom's School which for many years enjoyed the highest social standing. Mary C. S. May established a regime which appealed to a characteristic Boston clientele by whom she was regarded with trust and confidence. In 1918, after many years of service, she was succeeded by Miss Degen, long her associate. Miss Walley was made associate in 1925. There is a strong college trained faculty. In addition to the regular college preparatory and post-graduate courses, the school offers special advantages for the study of French. A unique feature of the school is the summer work required in science, sewing and reading.

Northeastern University was established to give men of ambition and ability opportunity for further schooling in academic or professional work. A large proportion of the enrollment is in the evening courses. Branches of the University are conducted in Worcester, Springfield and Providence. The enrollment in Boston is nearly five thousand. The schools of college rank requiring a high school diploma for entrance are the day schools of Engineering and Business Administration, for men, and the coeducational evening schools of Law and Commerce and Finance. The non-degree granting schools were reorganized in 1927 as Lincoln Institute.

THE EVENING POLYTECHNIC SCHOOL, founded in 1913, offers three year courses for men leading to a diploma in civil, mechanical, electrical or structural engineering and chemistry. The work offered in these courses, while not as extensive as that leading to a degree, meets standard requirements.

LINCOLN PREPARATORY SCHOOL, conducted since 1907, prepares men for colleges, technical schools, and business and government positions. All classes are held in the evening. The faculty is drawn largely from the leading day schools of Boston. James W. Lees, A.M., Glasgow, the principal, came to North-eastern from the Huntington School. See page 910.

Alumni 1500.

Roxbury Latin School is the oldest endowed secondary school in the United States. Nine years after the establishment of Harvard College, and only fifteen years after the founding of Boston, it began to prepare boys for Harvard and has continued its work without interruption. It resulted largely from the influential efforts of John Eliot, the "Apostle to the Indians," who when minister of the First Church of Roxbury, together with other inhabitants of the town, signed a statement that they "in consideration of their religious care of posterity, have taken into consideration how necessary the education of their children in literature will be, to fit them for public service, both in Church and Commonwealth, in succeeding ages. They, therefore, unanimously have consented and agreed to erect a free school in the said Town of Roxbury."

"The Free Schoole in Roxburie," as it was called, was not then free in the sense of being supported by uniform taxation or free from all tuition fees. But today the school is free to all boys living within the limits of the original town of Roxbury. In 1671 Thomas Bell, formerly a freeman of Roxbury, died in London, willing two hundred acres of Roxbury lands to the school and naming the Rev. John Eliot and two other officers of the First Church as trustees of the endowment.

Cotton Mather, half a century later, wrote of the school, "Roxbury could not live quietly without a free school in the Town: and the Issue has been one which has almost made me put the Title of Schola Illustris upon that little Nursery; that is, that Roxbury has afforded more Scholars, first for the College, and then for the Publick, than any Town of its Bigness, or if I mistake not, of twice its Bigness, in all New England."

The school has always been intimately associated with Harvard, fitting most of its pupils for the higher work there. College preparation in Colonial days was a matter of intensive education. The regulations for admission were thus stated: "When any Scholar is able to understand Tully, or such like classical Latine Author ex tempore, and make and speake true Latine in Verse and Prose, suo ut aiunt Marte; and decline perfectly the Paradigm's of Nounes and Verbes in the Greek tongue: Let him then and not before be capable of admission into the College."

Though controlled by a self-perpetuating board of trustees who are bound by its ancient charter, the school has kept abreast of the educational changes of the years. Inherent worth has given it vitality and importance.

William C. Collar, for more than half a century connected with the school, in his long career attained a national position in the educational world. Appointed a master in 1857 and head master in 1867, he resigned in 1907 and died in 1916. D. O. S. Lowell, a graduate of Bowdoin, became a master in the school in 1884 and was head master from 1909 to his retirement in June, 1921. He was succeeded by Mr. Thompson, a graduate of Amherst and former head of the English department at Lawrenceville. In 1925 the Richard Codman estate in West Roxbury was purchased, plans for a country day school completed, and educational endowment raised. It is expected that school will open in the new building in September, 1927.

The Winsor School is the leading day school for girls of Boston and is the result of the notable executive capacity of Mary Pickard Winsor, whose sister has created the Roger Ascham School, and brother the Middlesex School. Its continued and successful growth necessitated repeated removal, until in 1908 it was incorporated and moved to its present building. Miss Lord, who took over the active management of the school upon Miss Winsor's retirement in 1922, is assisted by a strong administrative and teaching staff. The grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club were acquired in 1924 and a large gymnasium erected in order that regular physical exercise might be assured.

Bradford Academy, the oldest institution in New England for the higher education of women, was established by the parishioners of the Congregational Church of the town of Bradford and until 1836 was coeducational. The school has been fortunate throughout its history in having on its board of trustees men and women of unusual capacity and devotion to the interests of Bradford. Alice Freeman Palmer long took active interest. Preparation for the leading colleges is especially accented though the other phases of school life are not neglected. The unusual advantages of Bradford early drew students from all over New England, but for many decades the patronage has been national. During the century and more of its existence over nine thousand students have attended the school. There is a large and highly trained faculty. The junior college course, similar in kind and achievement to the first two years of college, is accredited by certain universities. From 1918 Marion Coats was principal until her election in 1927 to the presidency of Lawrence College, to open in 1928. See page 829.

The Sea Pines School of Personality was established by the Rev. Thomas Bickford, previously a Congregational minister in Cambridge. Since his death in 1917 the school has been maintained by Mrs. Bickford and two daughters, Miss Faith and Miss Addie, who always played an important part in the school life. It is an unusual school paying particular attention to the individuality of each girl. William T. Chase, long connected with the school department of a large advertising agency, joined the staff of Sea Pines as business manager and associate director in 1926. See page 828.

BROOKLINE, MASS. Alt 43 ft. Pop 37,748 (1920) 42,681 (1925).

Brookline, long the wealthiest town in the United States, is almost surrounded by the city of Boston. Coolidge Corner and Brookline Village, the shopping centers, are only three miles from the State House. A zoning system has saved many sections from the apartment houses so popular with well-to-do Jews. Four hills with winding shaded roads provide a beautiful setting for many attractive homes. Great estates, some of the oldest in the country, crown the hills in the southern part of the town.

Between Coolidge Corner and Boston are the Longwood Country Day and the Dexter Schools. The Choate School and Madame Achard are near Coolidge Corner while nearer Brookline Village is the Park School. The Rivers School is on Fisher Hill. Nearby, in the Chestnut Hill section, is the Beaver Country Day School and just over the municipal line, in Newton, the Chestnut Hill School. The Gothic buildings of Boston College occupy a commanding site above Chestnut Hill Reservoir.

The Beaver Country Day School was organized and incorporated by progressive and liberal minded parents who wished to bring to Boston the more progressive educational methods. Mr. Smith, who had successfully developed progressive methods in the Park School, Baltimore, became principal in 1921. The school now has three well equipped departments, all accommodated in the new plant completed in 1925, besides kindergarten and primary classes at the Beaver School in Boston and a small unit in Chestnut Hill. Mr. Smith and his capable associates have installed many unique features, kitchens in which girls are given experience under home conditions, instrumental and vocal music for which they are given school credit, and development of the decorative arts and sciences. Cambridge-Haskell was established by Arthur Gilman with the plan of affording women a systematic course of study under Harvard instructors, which resulted in the "Annex" that later became Radcliffe. This led to the establishment of a school for younger girls, which soon became the foremost girls school for the families of Old Cambridge. In 1918 Mary E. Haskell, A.B., Wellesley, became principal, merging with this school her own, which she had successfully maintained in Boston for fifteen years. Hope G. Conklin (now Mrs. Macintosh) for two years assistant director of the Scarborough School, succeeded Miss Haskell as principal in 1922, and under her direction another residence has been added and the school has become more modern in tone. The Sargent School of Physical Education was established by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent. Dr. Sargent, A.B., Bowdoin '75, A.M., '87; M.D., Yale '78, was a pioneer in organizing physical education in this country. His influence was widespread, and the greater number of physical directors in our schools and colleges have been trained under his direction at the Harvard Summer School or the Sargent School. The Sargent School developed from the demand for teachers trained to give Dr. Sargent's work which aroused great interest as early as the 80's. By 1904 the school had outlived its original quarters and moved into a new brick building which was enlarged in 1914. The three year course is broad and thorough and prepares young women both to teach physical education and to lead healthful and intelligent lives. The school maintains a camp, the first of its kind, at Peterborough, New Hampshire, for instruction in outdoor land and water sports. See page 912.

For many years it was very successfully managed, until his death in 1913, by James J. Greenough, son of Professor Greenough of Harvard. The association of these two able, enthusiastic scholars resulted in the most stable and influential day school in New England. Most of the eleven hundred alumni are graduates of Harvard. In 1917 the Volkmann School was merged with this school. George F. Fiske, A.B., Amherst '94, for many years connected with the Noble and Greenough School as teacher, was in charge as principal from 1917 to 1920. In 1920 the trustees appointed Mr. Wiggins as head master. Mr. Wiggins was the senior master at Pomfret School for six years. Williston Academy was established and endowed by Samuel Williston, a wealthy manufacturer of the town. The purpose of the founder in placing English and scientific courses on the same plane as the classical courses was at that time a radical departure. Mr. Williston gave freely of his money to equip lecture rooms and laboratories. Under Josiah Clark, principal from 1849 to 1863, the standards of the school instruction in ancient classics were established. Under Marshall Henshaw (1863-76) Mr. Williston's ideal of a school in which science, mathematics and English should be held in equal honor and pursued with equal thoroughness with the ancient classics was realized. Of the ten thousand who have attended the school during its long existence, more than one-third have entered thirty and more colleges and universities, two thousand the learned professions. Seven of its teachers have become college presidents, seventeen college professors, nine principals of other schools. Dr. Joseph Sawyer, after half a century in connection with Williston, resigned in 1919 because of failing health. Mr. Galbraith, for nearly twenty years master at Middlesex School, has been principal since 1919 and has brought the school to the standards of the best college preparatory schools, broadened its appeal and modernized its outlook. In the last few years Williston has received new endowments and new buildings.

WILLISTON JUNIOR SCHOOL is presided over by Robert B. Cunningham, A.M. Though an integral part of Williston Academy it has separate quarters for the thirty boys in grades four to eight and has its own faculty of four. The majority of the boys enter the senior school. See page 759.

Groton School has long been generally regarded as socially perhaps the most desirable of the church preparatory schools. It was the result of economic causes and a personality. The further accumulation of wealth and the development of social planes which had led to the founding of St. Paul's and St. Mark's, resulted in the establishment of Groton in 1884 by Dr. Peabody of the Salem Peabodys, long prominent in the mercantile and philanthropic life of the country. Dr. Peabody had been described by Arthur Ruhl as "an American with an English school and university training. . . . He is an all round athlete, and yet a churchman; a scholar and yet a very graceful and sophisticated man of the world. Altogether his is a personality peculiarly fitted to win the confidence and lead the type of boy for whom Groton was started."

Groton began with a small number of pupils secured through advertising in the papers, but through a natural inheritance, from friend to friend, rather than from conscious effort on Dr. Peabody's part, it has attained the highest social prestige. So long is the waiting list that as an old graduate expressed it, "A Groton man wires to Dr. Peabody as soon as his son is born. Others generally think a letter is quick enough."

Although originally English in its inspiration and atmosphere, Groton is one of the most remarkable and successful institutions in American education today. It was established with the same earnestness and sincerity of purpose as was any foundation of Puritan times. From every American point of view it is exotic, but it is sincere and its sincerity commands not only the devotion of its masters and the loyalty of its alumni, but the respect of those least in sympathy with its ideals. Groton from the first attempted to steer a course between the "in loco parentis" plan of St. Paul's and the larger freedom of Andover and Exeter. A modification of the monitorial system which for twenty years had been in successful use at St. Mark's was adopted at Groton and has from the first proved successful, but at Groton the boys are called prefects. A head prefect and six prefects are appointed annually from the upper form. They exercise a considerable measure of influence in the student body, which develops responsibility in the holders of those offices and lessens the load of the masters. The boys at Groton do not have separate rooms; all except the prefects live in cubicles. The system that is followed at St. Paul's and St. Mark's for the younger boys is here continued through all forms, and Groton's system in this respect has been copied in some other church schools. Two upper forms are provided with studies and the lower forms study at desks in large schoolrooms. The relations between master and pupil at Groton are particularly intimate in all branches of school activity. Boys on admission are selected in order from the lists on which they are registered at birth, without discrimination as to their individuality or development. Of recent years an effort has been made to introduce a democratic leaven by admitting each year eight boys, not so registered, who show high scholarship on competitive examinations. The previous environment of these boys, however, must meet such a standard as would be approved by those patrons whose sons enter through the waiting list. The course, too, has been broadened to include science in all forms, music, drawing and some manual training including woodworking and printing.

Scholastic seclusion has been sedulously sought. The most prominent feature of the buildings, well known for their architectural excellence, is the chapel tower, which dominates the countryside. The chapel, a gift of W. Amory Gardner, who has long been a master in the school, is a notable example of late decorated Gothic.

Derby Academy was founded in 1784 to fit boys for Harvard College and girls for the duties of the home. It has been in continuous operation since 1791. The founder, Madam Sara Derby, widow of Richard Derby of Salem and Hingham, provided in her will that if the property should ever cease to be used for school purposes it should revert to Harvard College. Her first husband, Dr. Ezekiel Hersey of Hingham, had established at Harvard during his lifetime the professorships of Anatomy and "Physick" which still bear his name. Throughout its long history the school has provided instruction for boys and girls from Hingham and the neighboring towns. Interested citizens reorganized the school in 1922 and engaged Mr. French, formerly of Milton Academy, as head master. A new site was purchased and under Mr. French's able administration the academy is being developed along modern, progressive, country day school lines. A boarding unit for older boys has now been added. See page 889.

Milton is today one of the country's leading college preparatory schools for boys. Three separate schools are maintained under the same direction, — the boys, the girls and the co-educational lower school. The academy opened in 1807. With short periods of suspension it continued until 1866 when, on the establishment of a town high school, it was closed. In 1885 the school reopened on a new site with men and women prominent in Milton and Boston on its Board of Trustees. Until 1901 it was coeducational. The school achieved great success during the long administration of Harrison Otis Apthorp. Under the joint direction of Mr. Field, a naturalist and entomologist of scientific training, and Mr. Lane, principal of the boys school for many years, the school has attained high scholastic standing and maintained considerable social prestige. It is perhaps the only school whose catalog dwells on its waiting list. While the majority of its students are registered from Milton and Boston, nineteen states are represented in the enrollment.

MILTON ACADEMY GIRLS' SCHOOL, one of the three departments of Milton Academy, is for day pupils only, but Hathaway House, under the supervision of the academy, provides for nineteen girls. Sarah S. Goodwin resigns as principal in 1927.

THE LOWER SCHOOL, coeducational, is conducted for seventy-five children from nine to twelve. Lucy Tennant is principal.

The Country Day School for Boys of Boston was established by the present owner and head master, directly inspired by the ten years success of the Gilman Country School. It may be regarded as the first on the Baltimore plan. Mr. Kerns was at one time master of English in the Gilman School and was acting head master in 1900-01 and later a master in Middlesex. Inaugurated under the best of social auspices the school was a success from the start, but credit must be ascribed to the kindly, pervasive personality of Mr. Kerns, whose tact and ability inspired confidence. The course of study is as broad as its college preparatory functions permit, including science, nature study and choral music. The college preparatory work is maintained at a high standard and the school has made a good record on college entrance examinations.

The DeWitt Clinton Hebbard School was opened originally in Boston as a day school by Mr. Hebbard who had been a master in a number of New England secondary schools and had made a special study of educational problems. The school occupies a beautiful, secluded but accessible country estate with ample grounds and every facility for physical exercise and recreation. The life is informal and intimate. The motto, "Make yourself at home," is greatly appreciated by the boys. The teaching is individual, under the inspiration of a magnetic personality. See page 755.

The Fessenden School is for young boys exclusively, fitting them for the leading secondary schools. It was established by Mr. Fessenden and has had a consistent growth as appreciation for all that it offers has become more widespread. Without the support of any special clique or denominational influence the school has won a national patronage. Mr. Fessenden is an efficient organizer and a man of modest and somewhat retiring temperament but winning personality. Both he and Mrs. Fessenden are highly successful in creating a genuine and sincere home atmosphere, the latter giving the boys many little attentions unusual in a school. The masters are young men of fineness and sympathy who have caught the prevailing spirit and communicated it to the boys. The school plant has been repeatedly added to and is unusually complete. A new school building was completed in 1920, and a new gymnasium built in 1926. See page 765.

It was known as the Northampton School for Girls until 1909 when the Burnham heirs, represented by Martha C. Burnham, sister of the founder, resumed the former name, establishing a separate school in the Burnham House. Miss Thompson, head mistress since that time, has been connected with the school since 1879. She now owns the school and with her is associated Miss Mullaley. Miss Thompson's conscientious interest and devotion to the school have resulted in a strong feeling of loyalty in faculty and students. There is an alumnae association of three hundred. Over seven hundred girls have lived in Burnham House. See page 832.

Northfield Seminary and Mt. Hermon were incorporated in 1912 as the Northfield Schools. Both institutions owe their origin to the great evangelist, Dwight L. Moody. The seminary was incorporated in 1881. Its large endowment and the fact that the girls enrolled perform a large part of the domestic work makes the cost of board and instruction very low. The school successfully meets a special need in offering exceptional opportunities to earnest, eager girls of limited means to secure an excellent education. Charles E. Dickerson, M.S., L.H.D., for many years principal, resigned in 1925 and was succeeded by Mr. Duley. The Rev. Eliott Speer, a graduate of Phillips Andover and Princeton University, succeeded W. R. Moody as president of the schools. The student body is national and international, many pupils being sent from abroad by missionaries.

The Mount Hermon School, established by Dwight L. Moody, faithfully embodies the vigorous Christianity of its founder. Here every student has abundant opportunity to secure an education, if he is in earnest — and not otherwise. Every student works two hours each day, either on the farm or in the buildings. It was Mr. Moody's purpose to make education possible for every young man who was willing to work, by offering a thorough secondary school course at a nominal charge to the student. Thousands of young men have availed themselves of this opportunity. Mr. Cutler, associated with Mr. Moody for nine years before the latter's death in 1899, has been principal since 1890. The ideals and purposes of the founder are fully preserved in all the workings of the school.

This school has since its establishment enjoyed a consistent and solid growth in numbers and reputation. In 1919 it was incorporated. The school is the creation of and centers around the personality of Mr. Buck who for eight years had been senior master at Hackley School. Mr. Buck's masterful and buoyant personality dominates the school and finds expression in vigorous and wholesome ideals. He is admirably supplemented by his wife, who plays a vital part in the life of the school, though she takes no formal part. Both imbue the school community with homelike wholesomeness, and the directness of the methods, the sincerity of the atmosphere and the efficiency of the simple organization command the admiration of the boys as well as all who know the school. Each boy has a separate room, but two seniors may have a study in common. The upper class men are given considerable liberty and responsibility, to bridge the gap from school to college. It is a preparatory school of five forms and the boys are representative of all parts of the country. Study hours are carefully supervised and deficiencies must be made up each day. Without conscious effort the school achieves much more than mere college preparation, though this latter is met in a scholarly and efficient way. See page 763.

St. Mark's School was founded by Joseph Burnett, a Boston merchant and manufacturer, who is said to have been inspired by the success of St. Paul's and by the desire to have a similar school in his own native town of Southboro. Members of the Burnett family have continued on its administrative board, watchful of the interests of the school. Beginning with twelve boys the school has at intervals increased its dormitory accommodation and in recent years has enrolled over a hundred and seventy. Assured of prestige from the first, it developed steadily in strength and efficiency under the capable management of William E. Peck, head master from 1882 until 1894.

St. Mark's is a church school of the parental type. A notable feature is that all the school activities are confined to one large building. "That the entire life of the school should be under one roof," one of its masters wrote a few years ago, "its chapel services, study, recitations, eating and sleeping, means much not only for convenience, but also for community of interest among the boys and between masters and pupils." The boys of the three lower forms do not have separate rooms but occupy dormitories with windowed alcoves.

Though the general policy of St. Mark's was modeled after that of St. Paul's, one notable innovation in American school boy life was introduced which has proved a valuable contribution and has been extensively adopted by private schools since established. A modification of the English "Lancastrian Monitorial System" which had its origin in England early in the nineteenth century was adapted to American conditions. From its opening St. Mark's has had its present system of monitors, six or seven boys chosen from the sixth form who "are the representatives of the school, have certain duties and a general oversight of the life of the boys. They are supposed to stand for the school ideals and to exert their influence and leadership."

St. Mark's offers an intimate, proscribed, community life, admission to which is eagerly sought and rigidly restricted. The Rev. Dr. Thayer, formerly a master at Groton, has been head master since 1894. An accomplished churchman, who has zealously maintained the school, Dr. Thayer has within recent years become an outstanding supporter of progressive tendencies in the private school. In "The Education of the Modern Boy," published last year, he writes the outstanding chapter "The Future Trend" and looks forward to a time when preparatory work will be free from college entrance restrictions.

The school was first opened under the charge of the celebrated Samuel Moody, who had graduated from Harvard College in 1746. Mr. Moody made it a grammar school of the older type, and prepared for Harvard many boys who became prominent in the life of the nation, including the founder and first master of Andover Academy. It is a democratic school accepting boys from all classes.

Founded by Julia A. and Sarah P. Eastman with the cooperation of Wellesley College as a preparatory school for that institution, these schools have been under the exceptionally strong management of Miss Cooke since 1899. To her administrative ability is due the fact that Dana Hall has become one of the leading secondary schools in the country. Miss Cooke is a woman of remarkable personality, clear-sightedness and executive capacity, with the highest ideals of womanhood. She makes a strong appeal to girls and her influence upon them is inspiring and lasting. The heads of departments in all five schools are women of unusual capacity and enthusiasm.

DANA HALL sends about two-thirds of its graduates each year to the leading women's colleges. It has an enrollment of two hundred thirty. Dorothy Waldo is in charge of this department.

PINE MANOR, opened in 1911, is intended for the graduates of Dana Hall and other secondary schools who desire advanced academic work, music, art, or courses preparatory to efficient home-making. The one hundred fifty students enrolled are in the care of Adele Lathrop.

TENACRE, opened in 1910 for younger girls, prepares for Dana Hall and other secondary schools. It has an enrollment of sixty. Mrs. Mabel Brown is the director of this department.

THE FRENCH SCHOOL is directed by Mlle. Marguerite Kerbrat. Twenty are enrolled.

DANA HALL GRADUATE SCHOOL OF MUSIC was formally opened as a separate department in 1925. Laura Henry, long connected with the school, is in charge. There is an enrollment of thirty-five. See page 831.

Worcester, the "Heart of the Commonwealth" as it loves to call itself, is second only to Boston among Massachusetts cities and third among New England cities. Both as an industrial and educational center it manifests vigorous enterprise. The city has spread from its original level site up on the surrounding higher land, and now boasts that like Rome it is built on its seven hills. The numerous parks aggregate 1100 acres in area. The many historical houses and sites have been zealously marked by public spirited citizens. The Worcester Art Museum is especially strong in the work of recent American artists.

Among the chief educational institutions are Clark University, the Holy Cross College, a Jesuit institution, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, one of the leading technical schools of the country, the Worcester Boys Trade School and the State Normal School. In the eastern portion the Worcester Academy buildings are on a hilltop not far from the center of the town. The playing fields are farther out. The Bancroft School is in the west side residential section.

Worcester Academy is today a well equipped school, offering complete preparation for college, or technical and engineering schools. It occupies a middle ground between the large academies and the smaller preparatory schools and offers many of the advantages of both. Founded as a coeducational academy for students with limited means, it early received endowments from its Baptist sponsors though it is now unsectarian. Under the able administration of Dr. D. W. Abercrombie, a graduate of Harvard, who became principal in 1882 and principal emeritus in 1918, the academy grew in numbers and equipment. Mr. Holmes, long connected with the faculty, became head master in 1918, and with his force and winning personality has successfully inaugurated new policies and changed the whole atmosphere of the school. Without sacrificing the rugged democracy which has long been characteristic of the place, he has brought the scholarship and personnel to a higher standard. There is careful supervision of the boys' health, physical development, spending money and surplus time and numerous extra curriculum activities enrich the life of the school. A Lower School for thirty boys from twelve to fourteen has recently been organized. See page 762.

This splendidly appointed private boarding school was founded by the Rev. John B. Diman, A.B., Brown '85, A.M., '03; A.M., Harvard '96, who was successful in inspiring his patrons to liberal gifts. In 1917 Stephen P. Cabot, A.B., Harvard '92, A.M., Brown '02, who had been a master in the school since 1910 became head master. In 1926 he resigned to become educational director of Avon College in Connecticut, and Mr. Nevins, who had been a master in the school for twenty-four years succeeded him. St. George's is a church school with a chaplain in charge of the religious instruction. The head master maintains close relations with the one hundred and seventy boys. The mild climate due to the proximity to the ocean with its long sandy beaches, makes possible an unusual amount of outdoor life. For three or four weeks in the early summer there is ideal sea bathing. The loyalty of its alumni is evidenced by the St. George's Clubs at Harvard, Princeton and Yale, to which its boys go annually in the order above named. The school enrollment is cosmopolitan, representing leading families in all parts of the country. A new school house, a swimming pool, a new dormitory and a beautiful Gothic chapel have recently been presented to the school. See page 767.

This school is in process of construction by Mrs. John Wallace Riddle, who before her marriage was Theodate Pope, the architect who designed Westover School for Girls. Avon will combine modern progressive methods with cultural training of the highest quality. The school will aim to develop the sturdiness of character found in the old New England stock of Colonial times. To secure this each boy will give an hour or two of each day to some community occupation on the farm, in the carpentry shop or in the forest. The school buildings are designed on an unique plan resembling in construction an old English village. Students will participate as citizens in all the operations of the small commonwealth. Stephen P. Cabot, for twenty-five years on the faculty of St. George's School and for ten years head master, is the executive regent and will be in charge of the school affairs until the provost assumes his executive direction during the summer of 1927. Mr. Froelicher, an outstanding exponent of progressive education, comes to the school from the Oak Lane Country Day School, Philadelphia. The school will open in the fall of 1927 with about fifty boys. See page 771.

This training school for nurses is connected with the Bridgeport Hospital, a general hospital of nearly three hundred beds. The regulation three year course has been shortened by the assignment of much of the routine work to ward helpers. Duties of the student nurse are now limited to the actual study of the care and treatment of patients. Applicants are required to have at least one year of high school work.

Primarily a home school for young boys, this school has been maintained since its establishment by Mr. Curtis, who now has the cooperation of his son, Gerald Curtis, a graduate of Columbia. The strength of the school lies in this cooperation of two generations. The elder Curtis has a genuine love for boys and deep sense of the grave responsibility of a teacher's functions and untiring devotion to the needs of his pupils; the younger Curtis brings to his work a more intimate sympathy with boy life. A strictly parental attitude prevails and Mr. Curtis demands of his patrons perfect freedom in every detail of management, restriction and discipline. See page 772.

Miss Porter's School began in a small way, centering around the personality of Sarah Porter, a sister of President Porter of Yale. This remarkable woman gave her whole life to the school up to the time of her death in 1900 at the age of eighty-seven. Her fame as a teacher as it became more widely appreciated drew to her increasing numbers from which she selected the best material. "Her impress upon her long line of pupils was the result of her own unusual character. She gave to hundreds of the best born women of the land that poise and stability of character, that combination of learning and good manners, which is a mark of the noblest American womanhood." On Miss Porter's death her nephew, Robert Porter Keep, became trustee of the school, and after his death it continued under the able administration of Mrs. Keep, who had herself been a pupil of Miss Porter. Mrs. Keep died in the spring of 1907. Her son, the present principal, who had for many years been at Andover, with his wife now continues the school.

Rosemary Hall is exclusively a college preparatory school. Founded by Dr. Ruutz-Rees in 1890, it was for its first ten years at Wallingford. Dr. Ruutz-Rees, of English birth and education, has degrees from St. Andrew's as well as Columbia. Since 1883 she has lived in this country, of which she is a naturalized citizen. Dr. Lowndes had been long associated with her and was made associate head mistress in 1911. Miss Augur was made third associate head in 1919. The intellectual and physical life of the school is robust and well supervised. To receive the school diploma a pupil must have passed examinations qualifying for Bryn Mawr, Vassar, Smith and other colleges. "Stress is laid upon games and sports no less than upon energy to work." Self-government operates through a representative committee chosen monthly by vote. For girls under fifteen a separate cottage under special supervision is provided. The Lower School, under the direction of Elsie R. Clapp, is thoroughly progressive. After a disastrous fire in 1924, a large fund was raised by loyal alumnae, and new and beautiful fireproof buildings were erected. See page 841.

Hartford was one of the earliest American cities to develop civic pride and with it a system of well laid out parks and substantial public buildings. Complacently it stood still while other cities caught up and surpassed. Hartford nervously listens to every fire alarm in the country and proudly hears the click of its typewriters from Calais to San Diego. When Mark Twain, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Charles Dudley Warner lived here, Hartford well maintained literary pretensions. Trinity College, started patriotically as Washington College in 1823, became Episcopal under its present name in 1845. At West Hartford, a residential suburb, is the new site of Kingswood School.

Kent has become one of the great schools of the country. It is the creation of Father Sill's own remarkable personality which dominates and inspires. The school began in the smallest possible way in the attic of a farmhouse, actuated by Father Sill's ideas of simplicity of life, self-reliance, and directness of purpose. A system has been developed which enables the school to be run with small expense for servants. The boys do much of the housework and laundry, tend the furnaces and run the farm. The success of Kent has pointed the way to other church schools to modify and reform their practices. The religious life here is actual and sincere. Father Sill is in education as Ralph Adams Cram in architecture, a survival of the thirteenth century, an anachronism, but not an imitation. The growth of the school to over two hundred boys has necessarily greatly increased the equipment and has somewhat complicated the simplicity of the original school, but boys from families who have no money are still welcome. Something more than average ability is demanded of applicants. Parents may assume obligations from nothing to $1500 for their son's education, but the average tuition paid is about $800.

With the appointment of Mr. Van Santvoord as head master in 1926, Hotchkiss enters upon a new stage in its career. With sound foundations and traditions to build upon, and with the occasion ripe for progress, much is expected of Mr. Van Santvoord who, a graduate of Hotchkiss, is well prepared to carry out the traditions and to bring increased vigor to this school, beloved of its graduates. Founded by Mrs. Maria H. Hotchkiss, with a gift of $350,000, the school has from the first been intimately associated with Yale. Edward G. Coy, the first head master, a graduate of Yale, had served at the old Phillips Academy in Andover and brought with him to the newly founded school much of the atmosphere of Andover and even its terminology, still preserved in the titles of the classes (upper and lower middlers). The head master emeritus, Walter H. Buell, was a graduate of Yale and the board of trustees and its presidents have usually been Yale men. Frederick S. Jones, the present president, has long been Dean of Yale College. The graduates have generally shown preference for Yale, though in recent years the number entering other colleges has greatly increased and now a large delegation is sent yearly to Princeton and many enter Williams and Harvard and a few Amherst, Cornell and midwestern universities. It was, however, Dr. Huber Gray Buehler, affectionately known as "The King" who gave the school its present sturdy character. Each year the King declared "There is only one rule in this school, Be a gentleman!" and the implications of this one rule cast a shade of responsibility over the previously unruffled brows of those lads from homes of wealth where pleasure dominated. Under Dr. Buehler's direction Hotchkiss became recognized as one of the foremost preparatory schools of the country. The life was one of tension and strenuousness, high striving and keen competition. The names of the head boys posted so conspicuously for the emulation of others were often chosen from the thirty or more scholarship boys who waited on table and who had been selected because of their superior intellect. In an ardent attempt at democracy these scholarship lads were sometimes laden with honors while they performed their humble tasks. Self discipline and self restraint under the watchful eye of master and masters make unnecessary any prefect system with its detailed and irritating supervision. In the past thirty years over two thousand pupils have been enrolled, about one-half of whom have come from New York and Connecticut.

Westover is a country boarding school established and incorporated by Miss Hillard, with the assistance of wealthy friends who had confidence in her as a teacher. Trained in Miss Porter's School and from 1891 for eighteen years head mistress of St. Margaret's in an adjoining town, on her establishment of Westover she took many of the students with her. She has been successful in creating a unified school spirit. The school offers a well rounded training for social requirements, but relatively few prepare for college. A real effort is made to develop appreciation for good music and literature, which is fostered by frequent concerts and lectures. The girls are encouraged to write and present plays and to enter into social welfare work. Unconsciously on Miss Hillard's part, the school has gained a reputation for exclusiveness and most of the girls naturally come from families of wealth.

The Milford School is an outgrowth of the Rosenbaum Tutoring School, established many years ago at New Haven where a branch is still maintained for tutoring Yale undergraduates. Since 1917 the school has been located at Milford. It attempts to diagnose each case and by instruction individually or in small groups to correct and supplement the defects of past work. An inclusive fee adjusted to the amount of work is fixed before the boy is accepted. See page 778.

New Haven, like Cambridge, is a great industrial city. New Haven clocks, New Haven locks are famous. Walter Camp was long a driving, thrifty executive of the New Haven Clock Co. On the green stand three ancient and interesting types of the old New England Meeting House. To the south is a great display of Roman architecture, — bank, court house and federal building. Yale extends indefinitely north from the green, efflorescing annually in new developments of bastard Gothic. Northwest of the Boulevard on the old Ik Marvel estate is the new Hopkins Grammar School. In Whitneyville, two miles northeast of the city, is the country day school, Hamden Hall.

The Hopkins Grammar School was established on the Hopkins bequest. For nearly fifty years, until Yale came into existence, its graduates went to Harvard, but since that time it has naturally prepared chiefly for Yale, and more than twelve hundred of its alumni have graduated from that university. Under Dr. Lovell, who has been rector since 1916, and with the cooperation of the Board of Trustees, men of prominence and distinction, the school moved from its old site at 1207 Chapel Street, and is now a full-fledged country day school with a new building and a new estate of twenty-two acres, formerly the home of the author, Ik Marvel. The Yale School of Fine Arts is one of the several schools of Yale University and was founded by Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Russell Street, at whose expense the building was erected. The school has continued to receive gifts and endowments so that in 1910 new galleries and class rooms were added. The school has two valuable collections of paintings — the Trumbull collection, of events of the American Revolution and historical portraits, which formed the nucleus of its Art Museum, and the Jarves collection of Italian paintings, unexcelled in this country. Mr. Meeks is director of the museum as well as of the school. Four year courses are offered in architecture, painting and sculpture. There is a two year course in drama. Students of both sexes are admitted to all courses except architecture, which is open to men only.

The School of Nursing was established through a gift from the Rockefeller Foundation and succeeds the Connecticut Training School for Nurses. The plan of the school provides for the development of a program of education through which it is hoped to make as important a contribution to the field of preventive medicine as the earlier schools did to curative medicine. The curriculum includes public health and community aspects of health as well as hospital experience. Throughout the course theory and practice are closely related. Candidates are admitted who can present certificates of two or more years satisfactory work in other colleges. On the faculty is the first and perhaps the only woman in the world to hold a professorship in psychiatric nursing. See page 911.

Hillside was established by Mrs. Elizabeth Hyde Mead. The school today, however, is the result of the capable and able teaching of Miss Brendlinger, who had previously been instructor in this and other schools, and Miss Francis, since 1910 co-principal and joint owner. The school is pre-eminently for college preparation and has been particularly successful with pupils needing special training in methods of study. The colleges have frequently sent girls to the school for special coaching. The general course is also maintained at a high level, and there are unusual opportunities for work in the arts and crafts. The boarding group is supplemented by a day school drawn from the literary and art colonies about Norwalk. The school is characterized by close personal contact between faculty and girls and by simplicity and sincerity of living. See page 839.

Interest in girls of normal mentality who require individual treatment to develop their native equipment and personality resulted in the opening of this school by Miss Thomas, long associated with the Winsor School of Boston. She has created an atmosphere of informality and enthusiasm unique among schools, and her success with the girl who does not fit in easily to the large classes of the ordinary school has been marked. In 1926 the equipment was increased and a nursery school added.

Leading citizens as early as 1846 originated a movement which culminated when this academy was incorporated in 1854.

The school differs in type from both the academies and high schools, between which it is historically a connecting link. As early as the closing years of the eighteenth century there had been an old-time private academy at Norwich. The movement to establish a free academy met with great opposition, for many at this time opposed free education beyond the elementary schools. The orators of the day, including Daniel Webster, were enlisted, and the agitation which resulted did much to further the development of the high school system, but in Norwich no high school was established. Though amply endowed the Free Academy makes a nominal charge to residents of the town and exacts a low tuition from non-residents. The school was early influenced by the Putnam School of Newburyport, no longer existing. The Norwich Free Academy continues its successful career with a large attendance from Norwich and adjoining towns. Mr. Tirrell has been principal for many years.

Pomfret School was founded by the late William E. Peck, who for twelve years had been head master of St. Mark's and who resigned to establish this school in order that he might more fully carry out his own ideals. After his death in 1896 Dr. Olmsted incorporated the school by a charter from the state of Connecticut and has since been head master. His tireless efforts and optimism have secured the interest of many people of wealth and social prominence whose gifts have made the physical equipment of the school comparable to any in the country. Since 1906 the school plant has been almost wholly rebuilt on a carefully thought out plan.

This is a highly competent college preparatory school, patronized largely by families who for the most part have a predilection for a horsey, smart set atmosphere. Only two schools in the past five years have prepared more girls for Bryn Mawr. Miss Walker, after ten years of successful experience, married in 1921, and for a year was only nominally head. In 1922, however, she again resumed the active principalship. With her as academic head is now associated Jessie G. Hewitt, A.B., Bryn Mawr. A system of self-government, an unusual degree of co-operation with the home, and thorough investigation of each girl before admission contribute to the school's success.

Mr. McOrmond reopened this school in 1923 after it had been closed for a year. Founded by William Lee Cushing, its inspiration lay in the ancient Uppingham School in Rutland, England, established 1584, and its basic ideals are those of this older school. For nearly twenty years Mr. Cushing with the assistance of his brother and sons successfully conducted the school, and sent many graduates to Harvard, Williams, Cornell and other colleges, though Yale influence has naturally predominated. The alumni have always been loyal and helpful. On Mr. Cushing's retirement in 1920 the headmastership was assumed by L. G. Pettie who was for many years a member of the faculty. In 1922 the school was purchased by Mr. McOrmond, and reopened with a summer session in July, 1923. Mr. McOrmond had since 1909 been connected with the Choate School as head of the department of mathematics and director of athletics and for seven years had maintained an intensive summer tutoring school at Wallingford. A separate Lower School is maintained. See page 769.

Established by Mrs. C. E. Richardson, an Englishwoman of wide educational experience, this was modeled after the best of the English private schools for girls. In 1885 it came under the management of the present principal, Miss Heywood, who has continued, so far as practicable, the policies and ideals of the founder. Girls here receive careful training and school work is regarded seriously. The school in 1911 moved to Shippan Point. The resident pupils come from leading families throughout the country, while the day department is well supported by the families of Stamford. See page 840.

Mark Pitman was Choate's first master. In 1909 the school came into the capable hands of Mr. St. John, previously at the Hill and Hackley. Both Mr. and Mrs. St. John are wholly devoted to the school and have been successful in the attainment of their desire to keep a homelike atmosphere though the school has grown to over three hundred. Something of the spirit of the school is evidenced by the school prayer: "Prosper Thou, oh Lord, our labors, and may the good name and influence of this school be handed down from generation to generation for the comfort of this Nation and for Thy glory." There is no one college influence, many universities being represented on the faculty, and in a recent graduating class of twenty, seven different colleges were chosen. An attempt is made to adjust the curriculum to each boy. See page 776.

Miss Edell, long associated with the school under Miss Munro, became principal in 1923. Emphasis is laid upon preparation for all the leading colleges, to which the school sends about one-third of its graduates. There is a broad general course for those not going to college. The faculty are highly trained, experienced men and women. The alumnae and former students are organized into a loyal, active association of over six hundred called Saint Margaret's Association. The Bishop of Connecticut is the president of the Trustees. The school has recently purchased a country site in the suburbs. See page 840.

The Taft School is rightly named. Established by a brother of ex-President Taft, it is the expression of his personality. He has given his whole life to the school and has endowed it with his high ideals of work and scholarship. Although he began life as a lawyer, teaching was evidently his foreordained vocation for we find him back at Yale, a tutor in Latin from '87 to '90. Mr. Taft has proved himself a great head master. Himself a tremendous worker, he may be said to inspire his boys with industry rather than to exact it of them. There is no salvation for a boy at Taft except by hard work and any boy who survives the course of several years at the Taft School is sure to have a well trained mind. Mr. Taft sympathizes with the life of the boys on the playground as well as in the schoolroom and at once wins their comradeship and confidence by his geniality and large-heartedness. A judicious amount of freedom is a part of his discipline in order that a boy's school life may properly grade into the greater freedom of after life. The boys come from the substantial and well to do families throughout the country. About half are from Connecticut and New York, and the middle west is strongly represented. Yale influences and ideals are largely dominant. See page 777.

Loomis Institute had its origin in 1874 when five of the Loomis family provided for a school on what had been, since 1639, the Loomis homestead. At that time a charter was drawn up and the school incorporated. But it was not until 1912 that the accumulated funds of over two millions were available. The trustees then decided to open a non-sectarian day and boarding school for boys and a day school for girls. Mr. Batchelder, previously a master at Hackley and Hotchkiss, was appointed head master and organized the school, which opened in 1914. The student council plans and supervises student activities, affording a measure of self-government which cultivates a sense of responsibility. The pupils share in the useful labor of the school, caring for their own rooms, the class rooms and the school grounds and athletic fields. The endowment makes possible a low rate of tuition and there are a number of scholarships. The student body represents a democratic cross section of society, with a generous proportion of sons of ministers, doctors, educators, and other professional men. About half the students take the academic course. The other half are distributed between the scientific, business and agricultural courses. In the latter course a boy may carry out an actual farm project on land rented from the school, with money borrowed at interest from the school, or he may farm with school money, turning the produce over to the school. See page 775.

Briarcliff provides for college preparation but has a particularly well organized graduate department for girls over eighteen. The school was established by Mrs. Dow in association with Mary Alice Knox. Mrs. Edith Cooper Hartman, B.S., Wellesley, who for many years conducted successfully a school in New York and Europe, and who had been associate principal with Mrs. Dow, assumed full charge in 1920. She thoroughly reorganized the school, adding many new features to its life and work to meet the demands of modern conditions. In 1926 Mrs. Hartman appointed Miss Merrill, with whom she had been associated some years ago, as her successor. See page 850.

Familiarly known as Millbrook from its location, the Bennett School long since developed into one of the foremost institutions in the country for the education of young women. It is a large and successful boarding school with an enviable patronage and is deservedly popular because of the wholesome ideals that there prevail. The academic work is sound, as is the specialized work in the arts and in vocational training. Miss Bennett, the founder and principal for thirty-three years, was a woman of sensitive and penetrating personality and of real spiritual power, a natural leader of girls, whose influence was felt all over the country. On her death in 1924 the school was incorporated, in accordance with her will, under the principalship of Miss Carroll.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL. The four-year course prepares largely for the graduate courses of the school and is under the direct supervision of Miss Carroll.

THE SCHOOL OF MUSIC, a graduate department, offers a two year course in music for girls who are prepared for advanced study. Instruction is given in piano and singing, violin, harmony, counterpoint and theory of music. The school is under the direction of Horace Middleton.

THE SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS accepts girls of ability who are prepared for advanced work in drawing, painting, modeling and applied arts. There are courses in interior decorating and costume design. The history of art is required in both courses.

THE SCHOOL OF DRAMATIC ART is open to girls of ability who have completed their high school work, and it is under the personal direction of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rann Kennedy, (Edith Wynne Matthison).

THE SCHOOL OF HOUSEHOLD ARTS. This course is a preparation for homemaking. It offers two distinct lines of work: Course A, Foods and Cookery, and Course B, Dressmaking and Millinery. One may be supplemented by elective work in the other.

NEW YORK CITY, N.Y. Pop 5,620,048 (1920) 5,873,356 (1925).

New York is the metropolis of America and the mecca of the butter and egg men from the prosperous industrial cities and agricultural regions of the South and West. Its skyscraper canyons and unceasing mad rush dumbfound the stranger from abroad. Behind the plate glass of Fifth Avenue from the Waldorf to the Plaza one sees the loot of centuries from every land. Only 30% of the population is Jewish, though it is the greatest Jewish city in the world and one-third of all American Semites live here. New Yorkers include half a million Russians and nearly as many Italians. The ethnic quotas in many cases exceed the population of the greatest cities of the countries from which they come.

Of the famous New Yorkers most hail from Wisconsin or some place down in Tennessee. Among the nationally famous Flo Ziegfeld is said to glorify the American girl; Bishop Manning entertains definite views on divorce; John Roach Straton and Tex Rickard are fight promoters. Al Smith and Jimmie Walker were bred on the sidewalks of New York.

On Morningside Heights, the acropolis of the new world, more than 33,000 students resort to Columbia University and its affiliated institutions, Teachers and Barnard Colleges. To the north the College of the City of New York has over 10,000, not all Jewish. On University Heights, across the Harlem, New York University, famous for its Hall of Fame, enrolls 20,000. Fordham, near Bronx Park, has 6,000 Catholic students.

The museums of Art, Natural History, Indian Ethnology, and things Hispanic house matchless and rapidly growing collections. The public library is notable for its architecture, its location, its collections, and its scores of branches. The priceless collection of the Morgan Library occupies a building architecturally perfect.

The private schools for boys serve chiefly the resident families. The girls boarding schools and residences offer the varied musical, dramatic, and other attractions of the metropolis to a geographically wider clientele. Most of them are within a half mile of the Plaza, some in the heart of the higher class residential section just east of Central Park, a few in the more cosmopolitan section west of the park toward Riverside Drive. The professional and vocational schools lie generally to the south, between Central Park and 42d Street. The private day schools, each in its own locality, serve their own special clientele. Some of them are exclusive, catering to a particular clique or set, for there are old families in New York who live conservatively.

As a matter of convenience the schools of Long Island, including Brooklyn, are treated as a group. Staten Island schools will be found listed under New York City.

Samuel Brearley, a Harvard man who had studied in England, established this school for the purpose of providing a more substantial school for girls and more thorough preparation for college than the schools of the time offered. At his death in 1886 the school was continued by its patrons and has since 1912 been administered by a board of trustees, the members of which are men and women prominent in New York educational and financial circles. It is exclusively a day school, perhaps foremost among the college preparatory schools of New York, both in thoroughness and in the number of girls prepared for college. From 1887 until his death in 1915 James G. Croswell, Harvard '73, was head master. An educator of the first rank, he maintained the highest educational standards. The school has been continued under the successive leadership of Henry Dwight Sedgwick, Carl Van Doren and Sarah M. Dean. George Norton Northrop was head master from 1920. In 1926 he accepted the principalship of the Chicago Latin School and Miss Dunn, his assistant for some years, succeeded him.

The Collegiate School is the oldest existing private secondary school in the United States, having a continuous history running back to the early settlement by the Dutch of Manhattan Island. For two hundred and fifty years it was maintained as a parish day school, but in 1887 it became a grammar school, both for boys and for girls, in 1891 preparatory, and after 1894 for boys only. The school has moved progressively northward as the city has developed. Administered by a board of trustees, the nineteenth head master, Mr. Warren, a prominent educator, has been in charge since 1910.

Brooklyn loves to be called the "City of Churches." Formerly an independent municipality, it is now the largest borough of New York City, both in population and in area. It is a city of varied manufactures and is also the great middle class residential suburb of the metropolis with which it is connected by huge bridges, tunnels and ferries.

The private schools serve chiefly the local residents of the borough. On Brooklyn Heights, the old aristocratic section, is the Seminary of the same name. Two of the older schools, Packer and Friends, are in the vicinity of Borough Hall, and a mile east are Pratt Institute and Adelphi Academy. Overlooking Prospect Park Plaza are Berkeley Institute and the Ethical Culture School. Nearby is the Museum of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. To the east, in Flatbush, a newer residential section, once largely Dutch farmers' gardens, is the Flatbush School. To the north, near the Children's Museum, is Froebel Academy. In Dyker Heights, along the southeast shore, Polytechnic Preparatory School and Shore Road Academy overlook The Narrows.

In its long history this school has played an important part in the education of Brooklyn families. It was named in honor of William S. Packer, whose widow gave money for the new building, but it occupies the site of the Brooklyn Female Academy organized by public spirited citizens in 1845. The scholastic standard is high in all departments. From the Junior College students may transfer to corresponding classes in degree granting institutions. Four principals have directed the policy of the school. On the retirement of Edward J. Goodwin in 1918, after years of devoted service to the school, Dr. Denbigh became principal, and under his direction the school has grown steadily.

This is the continuation of the preparatory department of Polytechnic Institute, founded in 1854. It is the outgrowth of the strong desire on the part of trustees and alumni, among them many eminent citizens, to have a country day school on modern lines. Half a million dollars were raised for the new school plant, which is perhaps unequalled for its purpose. In the past five years the two hundred graduates have entered some score of colleges. Dr. Allen, head master since the school adopted its present program in 1917, is an ardent apostle of the country day school and was president for seven years of the Country Day School Conference. The plan of spending the winter months in Florida was conceived and first carried out by Paul C. Ransom, the founder of this school. For six preceding winters he had taken a group of boys to Pine Knot Camp, the present winter home of the school, five miles south of Miami. Since his death in 1907 Mrs. Ransom with Mr. Somers has continued to develop the school on the lines laid down by Mr. Ransom. The group never exceeds twenty-five carefully selected boys. The income is wholly invested in improvement of the equipment. An atmosphere of sincerity, loyalty, serious work and devotion to ideals has been created which leaves an indelible impress. Some evidence of this is shown in the immediate and cordial response of alumni in subscriptions to reconstruct the Coconut Grove plant after its practical destruction in the 1926 hurricane. The new plant was ready for occupancy in January, 1927. See page 789.

In 1819 an offer of financial assistance drew the school to New York and in 1821, on an invitation from Troy, it became known as the Troy Female Seminary. In the next fifty years of its existence more than fifteen thousand young women were enrolled, many of them becoming school mistresses and directors who carried the influence of the school far and wide. In 1892 the school was reorganized under its present name. The gift of a million from Mrs. Russell Sage made possible a new and architecturally beautiful home for the school, to which it moved in 1910. The students come from all parts of the country.

Mrs. Allen, a sister of the founder of Miss Winsor's School and of the head master of the Middlesex School, established the Roger Ascham School and moved it to its present site in 1924. She is the author of "Home, School and Vacation," and has sound and clearly defined ideas on the education of children. The Roger Ascham School was established to put these views into practice and has met with marked and merited success. Dr. William Oliver Stevens, formerly professor of English at Annapolis Naval Academy, principal from 1924, resigned in 1927 to accept the head mastership of the new Cranbrook School in Detroit. Mr. Johnson, former head master of the Blake School, Minneapolis, succeeded him.

The Lawrenceville School, on the John C. Green Foundation, was chartered in 1881. It was a reorganization of an earlier school established by Isaac Brown, a Presbyterian clergyman. From 1839 to 1878 under the management of the Revs. Samuel and Hugh Hamill, it prospered as the Lawrenceville Classical and Commercial High School and during that time enrolled 2500 pupils. John C. Green, who had been one of the original pupils, amassed a fortune in the China trade, and leaving it without restrictions, his executors determined upon the establishment of an endowed preparatory school for boys. They purchased the Lawrenceville School and Dr. James Cameron Mackenzie organized the new school in 1884.

Dr. Mackenzie proved himself an organizer of no ordinary ability and gave to Lawrenceville its present characteristic policy. During his administration and that of Charles Ewing Green, the sole surviving residuary legatee and President of the Board of Trustees, the school greatly prospered. He introduced the English "house" system, then a novel feature in American schools, which has since been widely copied by other American private schools. The boys below the upper form occupy separate houses, each presided over by a master and his wife, assisted by an unmarried master. Every house is a home unit, and there are inter-house instead of inter-class contests in athletics. The effect of this system has been to preserve and foster individuality. In the "Upper House," for the fifth form, the discipline is largely in the hands of the boys, in order that they may the better prepare themselves for the greater freedom of college life.

During the regime of Rev. Simon J. McPherson from 1899 to 1919 Lawrenceville developed characteristic practices and customs similar to those of the great English public schools. The picturesque side of this life with its local vocabulary and time honored customs has been vividly depicted in the stories of Owen Johnson.

On the death of Dr. McPherson the trustees, after a thorough canvass, elected as the new head master Dr. Abbott, a graduate of King's College, Nova Scotia, and of Worcester College, Oxford, England. Mr. Abbott was a master in Groton School from 1897 to 1916, and was professor of Latin in Yale University from 1916 to 1919. His broad vision, human sympathies, virile personality and courage have won the enthusiastic support and confidence of faculty and alumni.

Lawrenceville is today one of the larger popular preparatory schools, national in its patronage. The school, though non-sectarian, has Presbyterian traditions, which, together with proximity, incline forty per cent of the students to choose Princeton as their university. Financial aid is extended to a few boys occasionally, but the names of these are not divulged. A system of health supervision initiated by Dr. Guthrie has been in operation since 1922 and has proved most effective as a preventive measure. See page 798.

Kent Place has an excellent reputation as a college preparatory school and its academic training from the primary grades through high school is sound. Two years after its establishment,

Mrs. Sarah Woodman Paul and her sister, Anna S. Woodman, both graduates of Wellesley, took charge and under them the school prospered. The resident girls, who come from all parts of the country, live in a commodious home removed from the schoolrooms. The school is now maintained by the Kent Place School Company of which the late Hamilton W. Mabie was president for over twenty years. Miss Hunt was elected principal in 1924. See page 854.

This is the oldest boarding school for girls in America. It was founded by the Countess Benigna, daughter of Count Zinzendorf of Saxony, and since 1743 has been continuously maintained at Bethlehem. Around old Colonial Hall, erected in 1748, cluster memories of the French and Indian Wars and during the Revolution it served as a military hospital, sheltering thousands of wounded Revolutionary heroes. Among its pupils were Eleanor Lee, a niece of Washington, Chancellor Livingston's daughter, Cornelia, the wife of Robert Fulton, two daughters of Nathaniel Greene and others representing the old Colonial families, Dutch, German, Quaker, French and English. Loyal alumnae continue to dower their ancient institution with gifts. Since 1912 work of college grade has been undertaken and the title of the institution added to. The great majority of the girls come from Pennsylvania, though sixteen states are represented. The Rev. Reinhold Riemer, A.B., B.D., of the Moravian church, appointed principal in 1922, was succeeded in 1926 by the Rev. Mr. Heath who came to the school after twelve years at Salem Academy and College, North Carolina.

Formerly the preparatory department of Wilson College at Chambersburg, this was established as a separate school in 1906. It still provides for college preparation, but also maintains general courses for high school graduates. Excursions to Washington and other points of interest are made a feature. During the month of May each year the entire school is transferred to Ocean City, where the Hotel Flanders, fronting directly on the beach, is leased and the school work is carried on as usual. Mr. Magill, who has been the head master since 1910, is also secretary and treasurer of the Board of Directors.

This school, adjacent to Haverford College, is distinctly a college preparatory school. Founded by residents of the community as a day school, for a time it was under private control but is now incorporated. By the terms of its charter its income must be used wholly for the operation and improvement of the school. The residence in which the head master and some of the faculty live accommodates fifty boys. The Junior School of six grades is for day pupils only. The thousand graduates have nearly all entered colleges and universities of the east. Since 1915 every boy who wishes to prepare for college is required to take the College Board examinations, though the standard of the school is sufficiently high so that its work would be accredited by any college accepting certification. Franklin and Marshall Academy was founded as the preparatory department of Franklin College. It was the result of a plan for an academy, first proposed by Benjamin Franklin as early as 1743. In 1872, nineteen years after the merger of Marshall and Franklin Colleges, the preparatory department became a separate institution. The ownership and administration of the academy are vested in the board of trustees of the college, but the school has its own management, faculty, buildings and grounds, equipment and life apart from the college. While sufficiently removed from the college to avoid too intimate intercourse its proximity secures the students many advantages. The boys come chiefly from the Middle Atlantic States. Dr. Hartman has been connected with the school since 1897. The academy sends about forty boys to twelve or fifteen colleges each year. Now nearly a century in existence, Mercersburg was a purely local institution until the present head master took charge in 1893. Dr. Irvine was educated at Exeter and Princeton and afterwards made a special study of such English "public schools" as Rugby, Eton and Harrow. He has reorganized Mercersburg on the model of Exeter and incorporated some of the features of the English schools. Each year the academy sends more than a hundred boys to college, the majority to Princeton, although Mercersburg boys have entered over a hundred colleges and universities in this and other countries. A modification of the Princeton preceptorial system has been introduced. Some of the members of the staff hold no formal classes but assist the laggards to keep up in their work. There is a rugged vitality about Mercersburg and the atmosphere of the school remains intensely democratic. The new chapel designed by Ralph Adams Cram, costing three quarters of a million, was dedicated during 1926 and old Main Hall, erected in 1836, burned with a loss of $300,000.

Since the reorganization of this school by the Schwenfelder Church, with Dr. Kriebel as principal, Perkiomen has grown steadily. It is now highly prosperous and draws its enrollment not only from Pennsylvania but from adjacent states. Four out of five of its alumni have entered higher institutions of learning, including the leading colleges and universities. The school does commendable work in helping young people of limited means to an education. The Junior School has a separate faculty. See page 806.

The third largest city in the United States, Philadelphia lies for the most part between the Schuylkill and Delaware rivers. William Penn laid out his "City of Brotherly Love" in squares. At the crossing of the principal thoroughfares, Broad and Market Streets, stands the City Hall, a Victorian monstrosity erected at the cost of some $25,000,000. About Independence Square center the pre-Revolutionary landmarks, — Independence Hall, with America's most sacred fetish, the cracked Liberty Bell, and Carpenters' Hall, where met the First Colonial Congress.

Philadelphia is famous for its lawyers and its capons, its scrapple and its pepper pot. Among the products of the Quaker City are Baldwin locomotives, Stetson hats, Cramps ships, Disston Saws, The Ladies Home Journal, and The Saturday Evening Post. Vane's machine dominates city politics and contributes to the enormous expense of such public enterprises as the graft laden Art Museum and the disastrous Sesqui-Centennial, remembered best as the scene of Tunney's victory.

North of Market Street are Temple University and Girard College. Southwest of the City Hall about Rittenhouse Square the old aristocratic mansions are fast giving way to shops and apartment houses. At West Philadelphia, across the Schuylkill from Philadelphia, are Drexel Institute and the University of Pennsylvania which latter now enrolls about 8500 students, its hundred acre campus adjoining manufacturing and faded residential districts.

To a greater extent than in any other large city, wealthier residents have abandoned their town houses and migrated to the suburbs. Private schools have naturally followed and many are found in the attractive suburban sections of the city itself. Overbrook, to the northwest, lies partly in Philadelphia and partly in Merion. Germantown, largest of the suburban districts, is seven miles northwest of the City Hall. Here are many fine old pre-Revolutionary houses. Chestnut Hill, most beautiful of the outlying parts of Philadelphia, stretching along the wooded slopes of the valley of the Wissahickon Creek, is four miles north of Germantown. Oak Lane, east of Chestnut Hill, lies at the northern edge of the city. Torresdale, a northern outlying section, is on the banks of the Delaware.

The schools in the farther suburbs are treated under their own towns. Along the Main Line, one of the most beautiful series of suburbs in the country, well known schools, including many for defectives as well as for Bryn Mawr preparation, will be found at Wynnewood, Ardmore, Haverford, Bryn Mawr, Wayne, Devon, Berwyn, Paoli, and Malvern. North of the city, among the Montgomery county hills, there are private schools in Jenkintown, Rydal, Meadowbrook, Bryn Athyn, Flourtown, and Ambler. In the outlying southern districts, private schools are found at Media, West Chester, Chester, Chester Heights, Swarthmore, and Lansdowne.

This institution is one of the foremost among the girls schools of Philadelphia not only in college preparatory work but in social standing. It was established by Miss Irwin whose work in this school won her so great a reputation as an educator that in 1894 she was called to be the first dean of Radcliffe College, and in her fifteen years of service largely determined the future character of Radcliffe. Sophy Dallas Irwin continued the school until her death in 1915, when she was succeeded by Miss Natt.

The dominant school unit of the Friends day school system, founded over seventy-five years ago, this school is under the control of a committee of Friends. The junior and senior high schools have a large elementary department including kindergarten. The school, formerly at 15th and Race Streets, now occupies a suburban estate of eighteen acres and is conducted on a country day plan. College preparation is stressed and there are excellent advantages available in art, music, expression, languages, domestic science, the manual arts and physical education. Two elementary schools form a part of the system, — Friends West Philadelphia and Friends Germantown Schools. Dr. Jones became principal in 1924. See page 898.

Largely the creation of the late Russell H. Conwell, famous as the man whose address "Acres of Diamonds" was delivered perhaps more times to more people than any other speech, the University was developed to meet the needs of the community. Starting in 1884 as a night school, of which Mr. Conwell was the teacher, it developed gradually until 1888 when it was incorporated and day classes instituted. On Dr. Conwell's death in 1925, the present president was appointed and Miss Carnell, long with the institution as dean, was made associate president.

THE SCHOOL OF MUSIC, 1521 Locust St., is under the direction of Thaddeus Rich, Mus.D., violinist. The school has a strong faculty in the piano and voice departments. College courses in music leading to the degree of Bachelor of Music and courses for the training of supervisors and teachers are given.

KINDERGARTEN TRAINING SCHOOL, 1825 North Broad St., a department of Teachers College, is under the direction of Lucinda Pattullo MacKenzie. Two and four year courses are given and the elementary school provides opportunity for practice teaching. Four year courses lead to the degree of B.S. in Education.

THE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL, 1821 North Broad St., is organized under the direction of Erma L. Ferguson, in connection with Teachers College, and has been in operation since 1894. Special teachers supervise work in language, music, handicrafts, and physical education. Instruction is departmental throughout.

Penn Charter is one of the oldest and largest schools in the country. It received three charters from William Penn, the first in 1701 of the same date (October 25, 1701) as the Charter of Philadelphia, the second in 1708 and the third and final one in 1711. The school is still conducted under the Charter of 1711. This provided for "the good education of youth and their early instruction in the principles of true religion and virtue, qualifying them to serve their country and themselves, by breeding them in reading, writing and learning of languages and useful arts and sciences." For the first few years the school was under the joint control of the Meeting and the Board, but this plan of conducting the school proving unsatisfactory, Penn, then in England, determined to place the management of the school upon an independent basis under the sole control of a self-perpetuating body of fifteen. Hence the 1711 Charter.

Long under the dominating personality of Dr. Richard Mott Jones, head master for forty-four years, the school prospered and Dr. Jones attained a national reputation as one of America's foremost head masters. On his death in 1917 the graduates numbered thirteen hundred, of whom more than a thousand had continued their studies in colleges and universities.

Since 1918 the school has been under the able direction of Dr. Gummere. For many years head of the Latin Department of Haverford College and member of the board of overseers of the school, he is, himself, a classical scholar and the author of many school textbooks. Dr. Gummere's administration has resulted in the development of the school in numbers and influence. In the upper school a system has been initiated whereby under the guidance of instructors each boy may elect and concentrate in some field in which he does work beyond college entrance requirements. Initiative on the part of the masters is encouraged and latitude in selection of material and method is allowed. Four former teachers under Dr. Gummere are now heads of modern country day schools and more members of the Headmasters Association have served in this school than in any other. Since 1925 the school has occupied its new plant in Germantown. See page 805.

PITTSBURGH, PA. Alt 743 ft. Pop 588,343 (1920) 631,563 (1925). P.R.R. Motor Route 3.

Pittsburgh, the world's greatest steel center, is famous for its wealth and its smoke. Here, at the junction of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, are the world's greatest manufactories of steel, glass, electrical machinery and air brakes.

Pittsburgh's inferiority complex has been revealed by the immediacy with which its Garys, Phippses, and Fricks desert the scene of their money making and build palaces and art galleries on Fifth Avenue. Their strenuous efforts and the Carnegie benefactions have done much to put Pittsburgh on the art map.

The business section is on the tongue of land between the two rivers. Back of the highlands to the east is Schenley Park, nearly 500 acres in area. At its entrance is Carnegie Institute, the main building of which covers an area larger than does the Capitol at Washington. The Department of Fine Arts is notable for its director, Homer Saint-Gaudens, who has a roving commission to bring annually the best work of two continents for exhibition. The University of Pittsburgh, coeducational, with 5,295 students, dates from 1787 and is also in Schenley Park. Duquesne University, a Catholic coeducational college was established in 1878 and has 2500 students. Pennsylvania College for Women, organized in 1869, has 272 students. Most of the Pittsburgh private schools are in the hilly East End Section. Across the Ohio ten miles away in Coraopolis is the Carnot Country Day School, and in Sewickley, a fashionable suburb twelve miles north, is the recently organized Sewickley Academy.

The school was incorporated in 1923 by a group of trustees composed of prominent men of Pittsburgh who at that time took over its financial control and moved the school to its present commodious seven-acre site within the city limits. It now offers all opportunities for supervised afternoon recreation and gives all the advantages of a completely equipped country day school. The school is primarily for college preparation. Mr. Wilder, who has been largely influential in its growth and development, is an able supervisor and an educator of sound ideals.

This school has long been regarded by many discriminating parents as the best preparatory school in the country and because of this it has grown perhaps too large to justify the superlative. It was founded in 1851 by the Rev. Matthew Meigs. The story of how his son, John Meigs, coming to the school in 1876, at the age of twenty-four, in the following thirty-five years brought the school from an obscure venture with two teachers and twenty boys to one of the greatest preparatory schools in America, is an inspiring story that has been interestingly told by his biographer, W. Russell Bowie, in "The Master of the Hill." At his death there were forty masters and three hundred and seventy-five boys and an organization so perfected that even when left without a leader the school continued with no uncertainty. John Meigs was a genius for organization, with abounding vitality and a passionate zest for life, with extraordinary power over his fellow men. He deliberately put from him thoughts of material achievement and gave himself not to the bending or breaking but to the making of men. Actuated by the highest ideals, with striking ability he surmounted the greatest difficulties in managing and financing. Twice within six years his school was burned and it was ravaged by typhoid and pneumonia, but his determination never faltered in misfortune. His fidelity to his ideals of education and character building inflexibly withstood the influences of wealth and social position of his patrons. Mrs. John Meigs, familiarly known as "Mrs. John," played a great part in the upbuilding of the school. The futures of many men have been fixed or colored by her inspiring counsel in the "sky parlor."

Upon Dr. Meigs' death in 1911, Dr. Alfred G. Rolfe, long a member of the faculty, assumed direction of the school until such time as Dwight R. Meigs, then in Oxford University, should be ready to take his father's place. In 1914 he entered upon his duties as head master and at once gave evidence that he had inherited his father's administrative genius. In 1920 the Alumni, recognizing the worth of the school and the present trend in educational institutions from private ownership to endowed corporate organizations, took over the control. Dwight Meigs resigned in 1922, and Dr. Edwards, formerly pastor of the Hillside Presbyterian Church, Orange, N. J., an old friend of the school and the Meigs family, became fifth head master.

The school does not attract attention by the unusual or by special emphasis on any phase of its life or work. The standard of work is high and it is a matter of record that few Hill graduates fail to pass their college entrance examinations. They are unusually successful, too, among college undergraduates. Hill is proud of her boys and the families from which they come. Thirty-nine pages out of the sixty-two page catalog are given over to the lists of boys, the Alumni Association and past patrons who represent wealth, intellect and social prominence in all parts of the country. Hill boys are proud of their school, too, and all applicants for admission must furnish references to or endorsement by old boys or their parents.

Much of the management of the school has been put upon the faculty through the formation of four committees on discipline, efficiency, curriculum and extra curriculum activities. Student self-government has been promoted through the formation of a School Council. See page 799.

The work of this school has always been characterized by thoroughness and honesty of purpose. The instruction offered in all classes is supplemented by special work in French, music, drawing, design, and domestic science. Miss Olcott, principal since 1912, and her faculty of well trained teachers of experience have maintained an unusually high standard of scholarship. With the exception of four years, from 1872 to 1886, the school has been carried on without interruption. Though nominally under the control of the Presbytery of Luzerne the school is non-sectarian. Until 1925 there were both day and resident departments but in its new site the institute is exclusively a country day school. See page 866.

MARYLAND

Baltimore with its distinctive local color, customs and cuisine which partake of the character of both the north and the south, is eighth in population. Famous for its markets, its good living, its terrapin, it is one of the principal seaports in the country. Moreover, it is the city of Poe's Raven, The Star Spangled Banner, and H. L. Mencken, America's most strident boobiphobe.

In the heart of the city, centering about Mount Vernon Place, from which rises the tall Washington Monument, are the Peabody Institute, where the Peabody Conservatory of Music has its headquarters, and the Walters Picture Gallery. Between Mount Vernon Place and Mount Royal Avenue are a number of private schools. Eutaw Place leads through the residential section to Druid Hill Park about which is another group of schools. In Roland Park, still farther north, is the new site of Johns Hopkins University, established in 1876 and enrolling over 1500 students. In this suburb also are the Gilman Country School, the Roland Park Country School, and Notre Dame of Maryland. In Ruxton is the University School for Boys.

The Gilman Country School was the first country day school, a notable development in American education, and owes its initiation to Mrs. Francis K. Carey who formed a committee which in 1897 incorporated "The Country School for Boys of Baltimore City." In 1911, renamed in honor of the former president of Johns Hopkins, the school moved to a more spacious site at Roland Park. The five day boarding plan, here first adopted, permits boys to return to their families for the week ends. As the boarding department has developed the school has appealed to a wider clientele. There is a well organized Open Air School for young children. Under the capable headmastership of Frank Woodworth Pine the school attained a high scholastic standing. He was succeeded by L. Wardlaw Miles. On Dr. Miles' resignation in 1926 the Trustees appointed Mr. Morrow head master.

This school was established by a group of forward looking citizens to provide modern educational facilities for their children. Under the leadership of Eugene Randolph Smith, A.M., Syracuse, head master for ten years from 1912, the school made not only a national reputation, but a place for itself in the permanent history of education. Mr. Smith's development of progressive methods focused the attention of all progressive educators, and the practical working out of his ideals has inspired citizens in other places to establish schools on a similar plan or to adapt his methods to their local needs. When Mr. Smith left to take charge of the Beaver Country Day School in Boston, John W. Leydon, formerly of Penn Charter

School, was head master for three years, when he was succeeded by Mr. Sipple. In addition to the college preparatory and general courses, a special high school music course prepares for Peabody Conservatory. The Conservatory has charge of the music in the school. Catonsville, as this school is more generally known, is one of the most exclusive girls schools of the country, with the patronage of conservative families of New York, Philadelphia and the south. It was established by the Misses Carter who surrendered it in 1918 to the principal now in charge. The atmosphere of the school is simple and old fashioned and the girls give evidence of breeding. The applications are always in excess of the resident accommodation and reservations must now be made several years in advance.

Oldfields is a home school for girls who come from various parts of the country, the children of alumnae and their friends. It was established by Mrs. John Sears McCulloch, a woman of unusual and spiritual personality. On her death in 1904, the school was immediately taken over by two of her children, the present principals. The standards of Mrs. McCulloch are maintained in the simple and wholesome home life of the pupils. This is the real power of Oldfields and the secret of its continued success. See page 867.

Tome was chartered as The Jacob Tome Institute. For three-quarters of a century Jacob Tome had been a resident of Port Deposit and had acquired a great fortune in business and banking. On his death in 1898 he left an endowment of two and three-quarters million dollars. His intention was that the Institute should offer complete instruction from kindergarten through high school for both boys and girls. In 1898 the trustees decided to develop, in addition to the local schools, a boarding school for boys. A beautiful site was purchased and with the assistance of the best architects and landscape and sanitary engineers the trustees created what is probably the finest secondary school equipment in the world, expending a million and a half in carrying out their plans.

Dr. J. C. Mackenzie, who had organized Lawrenceville, came to the school and served for two years as director. A modified house system was adopted. The younger boys live in a house of their own and every boy has his individual room. The curriculum is unusually rich for a secondary school and the faculty is in proportion of one to eight of the boys enrolled. These benefits attract serious-minded boys from many states and make possible a high degree of individual instruction and an unusual thoroughness of scholastic work. After ten years as head master Dr. Thomas S. Baker resigned and in 1919 was succeeded by Dr. Brush, who had previously been a member of the board of trustees and resigned as dean of the college faculty of the Johns Hopkins University to become director of the school. See page 809.

St. James School is the diocesan school of Maryland. It was the first church boarding school of the English type in America. Dr. William Augustus Muhlenberg, who had first introduced the English Episcopal school system at Flushing, L. I., sent his chief assistant, Rev. J. B. Kerfoot, to be the first head master, and here, too, another pupil of Muhlenberg's, Dr. Henry Augustus Coit, taught until he was called to organize St. Paul's of Concord, N. H. In 1844 the school was chartered as the "College of St. James." Closed during the war, it reopened in 1869 under Henry Onderdonk, who continued as head master until 1896. In 1903 he was succeeded by his son, Adrian H. Onderdonk, and the name was changed to St. James School. Mr. Onderdonk is a strong and lovable personality, a great teacher and a hero to his boys. The personnel is of the best and "home life" and "individual attention" and the "honor system" in this school are not empty phrases. A disastrous fire in 1926 entirely destroyed the buildings, but an appeal to the alumni resulted in the raising of funds for a new fire-proof building greatly superior to the one destroyed.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

WASHINGTON, D.C. Alt 25 ft. Pop 437,571 (1920) 513,994 (1925).

The capital of a great nation, this is a place of temporary sojourn. Except for the army of permanent government employees and those who cater to them and to the floating population, few call it home. Temporary office-holders, politicians, lobbyists, propagandists, and those attracted by the glitter make up the winter population. In its government it is anomalous, for the citizens have no vote and no part in the administration. Even the details of the public school system are managed by the four hundred thirty-five representatives and the ninety-six senators from the forty-eight states. Located and surveyed by Washington in the wilderness, the extended vistas of the city today were planned by the French officer, L'Enfant, influenced by Versailles. With the exception of a few notable buildings, following Roman tradition, the architecture of the great public buildings is of every bastard, degraded type. The railway station is one of the city's finest structures. The Congressional Library is notable within and without. The cast iron dome of the Capitol makes an impressive photograph on a wet night. The setting of the White House adds to its attractiveness. Recently, well ordered attempts have been made to beautify the city — Potomac Park with its Japanese cherries, and the Speedway along the river. The Pan-American Union and other of the newer buildings are refreshing in their architecture. The Lincoln Memorial, with its great display of Corinthian columns reflected in the water, stands in the shadow of the great white obelisk.

Washington is the headquarters of many notable working scientists. Its museums and collections are of growing importance. The Freer is a gem. Saint Gaudens' Grief, in Rock Creek Cemetery, was to Galsworthy the most memorable thing in Washington and perhaps in America.

The attractions of Washington have made it an educational center. The Catholic Church, with characteristic foresight, has taken advantage of this for its higher institutions of learning, — the Catholic University, Trinity College and Georgetown University. George Washington University falls short of the hope and plan of The Father of His Country.

Recent trade invasion of the older residential region from Lafayette Square to Dupont and Thomas Circles has driven the costly new mansions and legations to Sixteenth Street, where they extend for miles to the north. Finishing schools have flourished on this soil and some still remain in the neighborhood of Dupont Circle. The more substantial college preparatory schools are rapidly deserting this region for the hills north and west of the city. Some schools have crossed the line and have such post office addresses as Forest Glen, Garrett Park and Takoma Park, Maryland.

Created by the legislature to provide for military education and to maintain a guard at the arsenal in Lexington, Virginia Military Institute is organized like West Point. A United States Army officer is detailed as professor of military science and tactics, and eight army officers are assistant professors of military science and tactics. The military department has always been most efficient. Cadets come from all over the United States, but largely from the south. Two hundred of its graduates are in the United States Army. It receives an annual appropriation of $40,000 from the state, but has no other public support. The history of the school during the Civil War is one of the brightest pages in the story of the southern cause. Of recent years engineering studies have been emphasized. Major General E. W. Nichols became superintendent emeritus in 1924, and was succeeded by General Cocke.

Mr. King, a St. Mark's boy and a Yale graduate and for nine years a master at St. Mark's and still later at the Gilman Country School, maintains with Mrs. King a school of considerable individuality. There is a sincere, homelike atmosphere and each boy has careful attention, both in study and recreation. In 1921, with the assistance of the Advisory Board of Alumni, the school was reorganized with separate Upper and Lower Schools. The curriculum is elastic, with much private teaching. The outdoor life is unusually varied. In addition to the usual sports there are cross country tramps, week-end camping parties and oppor-

Established with the intention of having it equal the best northern preparatory schools in standards, in a climate affording every opportunity for vigorous outdoor life, this school has prepared over five hundred boys for the leading colleges and universities of the northern states. The enrollment is largely from the north, but annually represents more than a score of states. Newton M. Anderson and Charles A. Mitchell, formerly principals of the University School in Cleveland, started this school and Ashnoca, a summer camp maintained on the property for some years, but discontinued in 1926. Mr. Anderson was sole owner after Mr. Mitchell's death until the spring of 1926 when he sold the school to Walter P. Fraser of Pittsburgh. Mr. Bement, for some years head of the English department at the Hill School, comes to Asheville in the fall of 1927 as head master. J. Spole Lyons is the director. See page 810.

Mrs. Johnson developed this school out of her direction of the children of her own household. She insists that teachers should not do for boys and girls what they can do for themselves, and that the prime need in children is freedom to work out their impulses and natural desires. A full account of the school is given in Dewey's "Schools of Tomorrow." A Fairhope Educational Foundation has been organized to promote the interests of and to support this school. This original demonstration school of Mrs. Johnson's has attracted widespread attention, and a number of others have been elsewhere established under Mrs. Johnson's inspiration or direction. There is a special six weeks winter course for fathers, mothers, teachers and social workers at Fairhope during February and March, and a six weeks summer school at Greenwich, Conn., during July and August. Supported by voluntary contributions, the school enrolls children of the vicinity free of charge.

The oldest endowed academy in Ohio, this school grew out of the needs of the Western Reserve nearly one hundred years ago. It had its beginning in a school taught in a cooper shop by Lucius M. Austin, but received its main impulse in the great revival of 1831, when the school was established as "A Manual Labor School to educate worthy young men for the gospel ministry," and was called The Ashtabula County School of Science and Industry. In 1836 the school was re-endowed, the manual labor idea abandoned, and the name changed to Grand River Institute. In 1840 it became coeducational. There are separate dormitories for boys and girls.

Cincinnati extends fourteen miles along the Ohio river. Originally laid out in checkerboard, the necessary deviation from this plan has proved fortunate and rendered the city much more interesting. The local freestone and blue limestone predominate as building materials. The Ohio river has influenced the growth of many industries. To the German population, who settled here in the middle of the 19th century, is due much of the cultural development of the city. Its symphony orchestra and May festivals are well supported.

The University of Cincinnati is in Burnet Woods Park to the north of the city. Just beyond in Avondale is the University School, and still farther north at College Hill is Ohio Military Institute. To the west in Madeira is the Madeira Country Day School. South from here in Walnut Hills are the Oakhurst Collegiate School, the Schuster-Martin School and the Cincinnati Conservatory. Directly south in Eden Park is the Art Academy of Cincinnati. The College of Music of Cincinnati is nearer the center of the city.

Cleveland, fifth in population and second in industry in the U.S., has a fourteen mile water front on the south shore of Lake Erie. Its excellent harbor at the mouth of the Cuyahoga river with ten miles of docks has resulted in great commercial development. Three great viaducts bridge the Cuyahoga, permitting the lake steamers to pass under. Here the iron ore of Lake Erie meets the coal and coke of Ohio and results in an iron and steel industry whose output is valued at a billion dollars annually. The rapid growth of the city has been marked by periods of political corruption and civic pride. Its building act, its school surveys, its crime surveys are evidences of civic interest aroused.

Here are many institutions for higher learning — Western Reserve University, Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland College, John Carroll University, Ursuline College, Notre Dame College, and St. Ignatius College. The private schools are mainly in the newer residential districts in the eastern part of the city. In Shaker Heights, a new development, are the magnificent new plants of the Laurel and University Schools. In South Euclid, farther east and north, is the Hawken School.

College preparation is the special feature of the Laurel School, but excellent courses in music and art are taken advantage of by students not wishing to prepare for college, and the work of the lower grades is broad. Mrs. Lyman, formerly a teacher in the Hathaway-Brown School, withdrew to found this school of her own some twenty years ago, with the idea of following more open minded modern educational trends. The resident students come from the eastern as well as from the middle states and far west. In 1926 a new site on the outskirts of the town was occupied and the program of the school changed to that of the regulation country day school. See page 876.

A million dollar fund has been expended in the erection of the new plant on Shaker Heights. Previously in the down town section, the school, established and incorporated by prominent citizens, has for some years carried on a program with many country day features. A dormitory maintained since 1896 accommodates a limited number of boarding boys, either on a full time or five day basis. The majority come from prominent families of Cleveland and northern Ohio. Ninety-five per cent of the thirty or more graduating each year enter colleges or technical schools, of which Yale and Cornell are the most popular. The Lower School has had an unusually rapid growth in the last eight years. Mr. Peters, principal since 1908, heads a faculty drawn from thirteen colleges.

Dayton is a city of large and varied commercial interests, the home of the National Cash Register Company. It has been under the "commissioner manager" form of government since 1914 and has a notable community welfare system. Nearby is the famous government aviation field. The city lies at the junction of the Miami river and canal, which was subject to disastrous overflow until drainage and protective dykes were constructed under Arthur E. Morgan. It was this same Morgan who was influential in founding Moraine Park School and is now president of Antioch College at Yellow Springs, fifteen miles distant. He instituted the cooperative system of education whereby Antioch students spend alternate fortnights working in industrial plants and studying at the college.

This school is one of the most promising educational experiments in years. It was established by Arthur E. Morgan, a successful engineer, with the cooperation of other business men of Dayton. The pupils' whole day is utilized. The finance committee determines the tuition for each pupil in proportion to the income of the parents so that the student body may represent families whose financial status is of the widest range. The school is at present housed in five buildings; grades one to four in the beautiful down town junior school; the intermediate departments in an old remodeled country school; grades seven to twelve are in a greenhouse in the Park suburbs. There is a model building for girls and the gymnasium is in a modern hangar. The school cooperates closely with the public schools. The school has its own bank, store, printing office, workshop and laboratories. It recognizes the value of training pupils through a democratic form of community government, and through officers elected by the pupils the school handles almost all its own affairs. The six class periods during the day are devoted to the study and investigation of the usual classroom and laboratory subjects. Supplementing this is real experience in more than seventy real projects in which the pupils buy and sell, make, lose, borrow or save, fail or succeed, just as they will have to do in life outside. Much is made of visits to industries and conferences with business and professional men to bring the life of the world directly to the pupils. Dr. Slutz, the principal, was formerly superintendent of schools at Pueblo. Frances Ross is the assistant director.

This academy grew out of Western Reserve College founded in Hudson, the first seat of learning in that region. When in 1882 the college moved to Cleveland, the plant was turned over to the preparatory department which continued in affiliation with the University until 1903. For a time it lapsed. In 1913 it was revived under the general board of religious education of the Presbyterian Church which in 1922 turned over the plant and endowment funds to an independent board of trustees. Mr. Boothby became head master in 1924. At St. Stephen's School and Antioch he had had an interesting experience in developing schools along progressive lines. In 1926 the academy was reorganized as the James W. Ellsworth Foundation with a trust fund of four and a half millions.

Culver is the largest and most prosperous of the thorough-going military schools. Established by the late Henry Harrison Culver, it has been continued by the Culver estate which has never taken a dividend, but turned back all earnings into the improvement of the school plant. While Colonel Fleet was superintendent, the school grew rapidly. General Gignilliat has been the superintendent since 1910 and for fourteen years previously had been the commandant. He is a tactful and capable administrator and has an admirable system of supervision of student activities outside the class room and the drill hall, and holds advanced ideas upon vocational selection, dramatics and literary organizations. Colonel H. G. Glascok, head master, and Major F. L. Hunt, associate head master, are directly in charge of academic instruction. The academic and military faculties are distinct. Cavalry, artillery, military engineering and aviation are featured. For twenty-one consecutive years the United States War Department has given the military work of the school the highest rating. Academic courses are arranged to meet the varying entrance requirements of the forty to fifty colleges to which over eighty per cent of Culver graduates go each year. See page 821.

Thoroughly Episcopalian and thoroughly military, this school was established by Bishop Knickerbacker, upon the bequest of John B. Howe. The Rev. John H. McKenzie, who was rector for twenty-five years, brought the school to a high degree of excellence in equipment and educational standards. He was succeeded in 1920 by Dr. Young, who has been widely known in the educational work of the Episcopal Church for many years. Students are required to take the examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board to receive the school diploma. Howe maintains a junior unit of the R.O.T.C., as a means of discipline and physical training, a total of three hours a week being given to drill, under the direction of officers detailed by the War Department.

Battle Creek College had its beginning in the school of nursing of Battle Creek Sanitarium. Twenty-five years later a school of home economics was established. The school of physical education followed this after another period of years. These institutions were recently united under the presidency of John Harvey Kellogg as Battle Creek College. Dr. Voelker succeeded him in 1925.

THE SCHOOL OF NURSING, formerly the Battle Creek Sanitarium and Hospital School of Nursing, has an individual system of training, known as the Battle Creek System. All theoretical work is taken at the college. Mrs. Mary Staines Foy, R.N., has been superintendent for some years.

THE SCHOOL OF HOME ECONOMICS is for the training of dietitians and institutional administrators. Besides the four year course leading to the Bachelor of Science degree, there are three and two year courses leading to the diploma. Lenna Frances Cooper, B.S., is dean.

THE SCHOOL OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION has courses designed to prepare young women for positions as physical education directors and teachers, athletic coaches, playground directors, health organizers, directors of corrective gymnastics and reconstruction aides. The four year course leads to the degree of Bachelor of Science and the three year course to the school's diploma. A summer training school and camp are conducted at Gull Lake. Linda M. The greatest automobile city in the world, Detroit in the past ten years has more than doubled in population. Henry Ford's plants and the General Motors have drawn to the city a large foreign element. The interests of the people at large are indicated in the 16,000 enrolled in the Cass Technical High School. A notable system of parks and boulevards, well planned and successful real estate developments, municipal buildings surpassed by none in the country, are outstanding features. In Bloomfield Hills, one of the most recent developments, the Cran-

One of the most successful and prosperous day schools in the country, this school developed under the management of the Misses Liggett from the Detroit Home and Day School, established by the Rev. James D. Liggett and his daughters, under whose management it has remained continuously. It is an institution of first rank, well organized and equipped, with a large and resourceful faculty. The pupils represent the best families of the city of Detroit. Over three hundred of its graduates have entered college, and the Alumnae Association cooperates heartily with the school. A branch school known as "The Eastern Liggett School," 2571 Burns Ave., was opened in the eastern part of Detroit in 1913, providing for the growing patronage of that section. In 1925 a new addition to this was built and the older school moved over to the east side, the lower school being merged with it, making the new Liggett School.

Chicago, raw and potent, has yet a vital kind of incipient culture. Swept by raw winds in winter, broiled by summer sun, famous for the exploits of its gunmen, with an unequaled record for homicides, the common people still take pride in the civic opera, the symphony orchestras, the art museum and other public institutions.

The second largest city in the United States, Chicago is the fourth in the world and may eventually be the greatest. Here the raw products of the great central agricultural regions and the west meet the coal of the central west, are prepared and interchanged. It is a growing manufacturing and trading center. The city with vision and civic pride has looked to the future and devised a plan for its great future growth. The Lake Front, once a freight yard, has been filled in, providing for parks and public buildings and the largest stadium in the world.

The University of Chicago, established in 1903 on the old

World's Fair site and enrolling over 13,000 students, is in the South Side section. Here, too, are the Harvard School for Boys, Kenwood-Loring School for Girls, the Starrett School, and the Faulkner School. The North Side, which extends above the Chicago river, is the most fashionable residential section. Here are the Francis W. Parker School, the Chicago Latin School for Girls, the Chicago Latin School, and the University School.

Established as the Chicago Kindergarten College by Elizabeth Harrison, its president emerita, and the late Mrs. John N. Crouse, this is one of the oldest schools of its kind in the country. In 1912 the college was incorporated under its present name in affiliation with the National Kindergarten Association. In 1926 the college moved from its Chicago location to its present quarters. A strong faculty offers instruction in practical nursery school, kindergarten and elementary work. A broad training is given including work in art, science, music and literature. Practice schools under the direct supervision of the college afford generous opportunities for observation and practice. The school conducts two demonstration schools for children. The patronage is national. Students from out of town are expected to live in the dormitory. A summer session is held.

Monticello is the oldest girls school in the west. It was founded by Benjamin Godfrey, an old Cape Cod sea captain who had made a fortune in eastern trade and settled here because of large land holdings. The school was organized by Rev. Theron Baldwin, a friend of Captain Godfrey, who was influenced by the ideas of Mary Lyon. In 1841 the school was incorporated and graduated its first class. In its long history it has played an important part in the education of young women of the section and is appropriately spoken of as the "Mount Holyoke of the West." The school has a large body of loyal alumnae organized in many associations throughout the west. Miss Congdon has been principal since 1918. See page 878.

Lake Forest Academy was founded by an association of prominent Chicago citizens, and has occupied its present site since 1893. Mr. Richards, for seven years previous a master at the Hotchkiss School, has since 1913 been head master. His enthusiasm and energy have brought the school to a preeminent position among the preparatory schools of the middle west. He believes that preparation to meet the requirements of colleges is the best form of education, and his ideal is to build up a strong, efficient college preparatory school that shall serve the families of the middle west who formerly sent their sons to eastern schools. Established by Rev. Sidney T. Smythe, this school remained under his direction until his death in 1922, when he was succeeded by Colonel Farrand, long the commandant, and a man of force and a definite influence in the life of the school. The school became military two years after its establishment and was incorporated in 1889. It emphasizes its Episcopalian influence and all students must attend evensong five times in the week and chapel on Sundays. General Charles King, the soldier novelist, whose home is nearby, was early interested in the school and still retains his connection, nominally, as superintendent of military instruction. The cadets are organized as a battalion of infantry of six companies with a cadet band. The patronage represents many states. Over six hundred of the alumni served in the war, five hundred as commissioned officers. See page 822.

In 1911 he was succeeded by his son, the present superintendent, who reorganized the academy, added naval features, and moved the school to its present location. The academy is recognized by both the Navy and War Departments and for many years has been given the highest rating. The academy is an infantry unit of the R.O.T.C. and since 1897 has been known throughout the world for its experiments with automobiles for military purposes. An honor system of government of twenty-five years standing has enabled the school to abolish all forms of punishment and has had a pronounced effect on all the graduates. The attendance of the school is limited to two hundred and the lists are filled some time before the opening.

Shattuck is perhaps the most notable school in the west. It was the conception of the Rev. Henry W. Whipple, the first bishop of Minnesota, who was familiar with the great usefulness of such schools in England as Winchester and Rugby, and saw the need of a permanent educational institution in this region. As early as 1858 the Rev. James L. Breck had established in Faribault a small school which was later incorporated as the Bishop Seabury Mission. Out of this have grown the three renowned schools, Seabury Divinity School, St. Mary's Hall and Shattuck. The boys school was named for an early benefactor, Dr. George Cheyne Shattuck of Boston. In 1916 the Rt. Rev. F. A. McElwain became rector and Mr. Newhall, connected with Shattuck for over twenty years, head master. There is a strong faculty of university graduates. During its long career more than three thousand boys have been trained in its halls. The students are drawn largely from well-to-do families of the great northwest. Military training is required of all and the students are organized into a battalion of infantry. See page 822.

The Baldwin School, the direct ancestor of Oak Hall, was the first institution of learning in Minnesota. It continued as the preparatory department of Macalester College under the name of Baldwin Seminary until Mrs. Carrie H. Backus took control in 1890 and developed the school as Oak Hall. Mr. and Mrs. Moore, who had had considerable experience in the east, succeeded her in 1919. The school was incorporated in 1922. About eighty per cent of its graduates go to college.

The former Loomis School was taken over by leading citizens some ten years ago, given its present name, and put under the direction of Miss Converse who had previously been principal of the North Avenue School, Atlanta, Ga. There is now a strong faculty of college trained women and about ninety per cent of the students enter colleges and universities in various parts of the country. A modified form of country day school program is followed in the new plant to which the school moved in 1924.

St. Louis, officially the sixth city in the country, and barring the claims of Los Angeles the largest west of Chicago, is the most centrally located of our large cities, a center of population, manufacture, and distribution, with untold future possibilities. Originally a frontier, it remains today the world's great fur market.

Forest Park, the site of the Louisiana Exposition of 1904, is now the center of a group of notable educational buildings. To the west in the Wydown section is Washington University with about 3,000 students, founded in 1853. Nearby is Mary Institute, which the University controls. Overlooking the University campus is Hosmer Hall. St. Louis University, a Catholic institution including some women's colleges, and dating from 1818, has about 3500 students. Near the Shaw Botanical Garden in the southern section of the city is Miss Compton's Psycho-Physiological School.

In the northern section of the city is the David Ranken, Jr., School of Mechanical Trades. The Principia is in the north-western section and north of Natural Bridge Road, in a remote section, is the fifty acre campus of the St. Louis Country Day School. Lenox Hall is four blocks west of the city line, in Kirkwood. Five miles west, in the suburb of Clayton, is the John Burroughs School.

The income from this is used for general maintenance. Three United States Army officers are detailed for military instruction. The school draws its pupils largely from the southwest. Cavalry training is featured. Colonel Pearson became superintendent in 1926.

WASHINGTON

SEATTLE, WASH. Pop 315,312 (1920).

Seattle, progressive in spirit, is the largest city in Washington. Built on terraces rising from Puget Sound, it commands superb views of the Olympic Mountains. Five transcontinental railroads and an extensively developed port have aided much in the growth of the city. The State University established in 1861 was built up by Henry Suzzalo to an enrollment of over 8500 in the eleven years of his administration before he was fired in 1926. In the residential sections are a number of prosperous schools and in Rolling Bay on Bainbridge Island, an hour's sail from the city, is the Moran School for Boys.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. Alt 267 ft. Pop 1,222,500 (1925).

Los Angeles, today the largest city of the western half of our country, is a great center of industry and commerce. At times the rapidity of its growth has been phenomenal, rivaling that of Miami. The original Mexican settlement midway between the mountains and the sea, and twenty miles from the latter, centered about the plaza where still stands the Church of Our Lady Queen of the Angels, dating from 1818.

Today the city limits extend over a great area reaching to the sea and embrace the great artificial harbor at San Pedro. Northwest, the city limits include the Hollywood Hills and extend over parts of the San Fernando valley and even to the canyons of the Santa Monica Mountains, along the crest of which picturesque residences have been built. The attractiveness of the climate to the retired farming class of the middle west, the discovery of oil, and the development of harbor facilities are among the factors contributing to the city's prosperity.

The private schools have kept pace with the city's growth. While the secretarial, trade and industrial schools are still in the business section and mainly on Figueroa Street, preparatory schools are found in all the residential regions. South, in the vicinity of Exposition Park with its new stadium seating 90,000, are the University of California, Southern Branch, and a few private schools. In the tree-lined old residential part to the southwest are many schools of local appeal, among them St. John's Academy, Miss Allen's, Miss Thomas', Loyola College, Elliott, Grace Fulmer's, and the Harvard School.

Near Westlake Park, four miles west of Broadway, are the Westlake School for Girls, Otis Art Institute, Denishawn, Gardner, and the Los Angeles Coaching School. Farther west the Wilshire district, one of the wealthy residential parts, has attracted some of the more prosperous schools as they outgrew their old quarters. Urban Military Academy, the Marlborough School, and Cumnock School of Expression, have recently moved into the new residential section between the Wilshire district and Hollywood.

Hollywood, now part of the city of Los Angeles, seven miles north of the business district and perhaps unjustly infamous as the center of the motion picture industry, is the home of several schools. In Culver City, half way to the coast, is Page Military Academy. Other schools have moved to Beverly Hills, a separate municipality west of Hollywood, and some have gone beyond the city limits as far as Covina and El Monte.

THE SCHOOL OF EXPRESSION, founded by Addie Murphy Grigg, and the oldest school of its kind on the Pacific Coast, was owned and directed by Helen A. Brooks until her death in 1926.
The course prepares for dramatic reading, story telling, play producing, acting or teaching, and there is advanced training for platform work. A summer session is maintained.

THE CUMNOCK ACADEMY, under the same direction, carries similar ideals into preparatory work. College preparation and general cultural courses emphasize the value of the spoken word and maintain that education is ever a question of self-expression.
No resident students are received under fourteen. Modern languages are taught exclusively by native teachers. The faculty are all college graduates. See page 906.

This is an interesting experiment in education, subordinating everything to the needs of the young boy. The school has adopted the best of the country day school features, with supervised afternoon study and play. The school bank and the system of supervising pupils' expenditures will commend themselves to parents. The patronage is national, the majority of the boys coming from outside of California, and there is a cosmopolitan sprinkling of American boys whose parents are residents in foreign countries. A summer camp is maintained at Catalina. Mr. Gibbs' broadening interests have more recently led him into the movies and authorship of two volumes of boys' stories.

This novel and successful school has been maintained for many years by Sherman and William Thacher. It was in 1889 that the first boy came to Casa de Piedra Ranch as a pupil, to take advantage of outdoor life while tutoring for college and from this very small beginning the whole idea of the school has gradually developed. Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Williams, Stanford, University of California share in the number of boys prepared. Thacher boys are always proud of their school. Its purpose is to combine outdoor life in the climate of southern California, a broad training and a rich experience, with thorough preparation for college. The life is interesting and varied with frequent camping trips. Every boy keeps a horse and is responsible for its care.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF. Pop 506,678 (1920) 557,530 (1925).

Few American cities have so much local color as San Francisco. Time, earthquake, fire, have not destroyed the local flavor. It still remains the quintessence of California and the golden west. Built on the sand dunes at the tip of the peninsula, bounded by the Pacific, the Golden Gate and the Bay, its street cars must be hauled up the hill by cable. The Presidio, famous Mexican and United States military headquarters, facing the Golden Gate, is adjacent to the site of the Panama Pacific Exposition grounds, some of the buildings of which have been preserved as a permanent memorial. Golden Gate Park, reaching to the Pacific, is unique among parks. The Chinese element, segregated north of Market Street, has made San Francisco's Chinatown famous for its picturesqueness.

LONDON. Pop 7,480,201 (1921) 7,665,883 (1924).

London is still the largest metropolitan area in the world. The City of London comprising the old medieval town is now the financial center. The County of London includes an area of 74,000 acres and a population of four and a half millions. The London Police District covers an area of 443,000 acres and has a population of seven and a half millions, and the proposed London Health Area would have a population of over ten millions.

The City of London, the City of Westminster, and twenty-eight municipal boroughs are governed by the London County Council. An Education Committee takes charge of the system of schools.

The capital of England for more than one thousand years, the city is filled with monuments and structures of the greatest historical interest. As the capital of the British Empire, the wealth and treasure of countless countries have poured in, making the museums and galleries storehouses of great treasure. The University of London, founded in 1836, has the largest enrollment of any English university.

Most of the secondary schools are in the beautiful residential sections to the west. Included in the London group herewith are schools as far north as Bushey Heath, as far west as Walton-on-Thames, and as far south as Croydon.

Enr: Bdg 500, Day 30. Fac: . Tui: Bdg £160, Day £73.

Courses: Classical Gen Scientific Engineering.

Oundle is the one public school that has felt the influence of a great modern personality. It was the school selected by H. G. Wells for the education of his own three sons, and about it and a former great head master, Saunderson, he has written extensively. On the classical side the school follows the traditional methods, but for the benefit of the boys to whom the traditional studies do not appeal it has developed shops and laboratory equipment like those of an American high school.

OXFORD. Pop 57,052 (1921).

The seat of England's most ancient and celebrated university, Oxford from the towers or surrounding hills is seen as a lace work of courts, quadrangles, towers, domes and spires, grouped into twenty-two colleges and all held together by a network of the town's streets which reach out into green fields towards the surrounding hills and streams.

Wychwood is a mile from the center of Oxford. At Hinksey Hill, three miles south of Oxford on the "skirts of Bagley Wood" is the Scholar-Gypsy School.

the school estate of 120 acres extends across the valley to the South Downs.

BEDALES Coed Ages 9-17 Est 1893.

J. H. Badley, M.A., Head Master.

Fac: 40.

Mr. Badley, who derived his early inspiration from serving with Dr. Cecil Reddie of Abbotsholme, out of his inheritance established this coeducational school, — the first in England.
The remarkable personality of its founder has resulted in his realizing his ideal, "the fullest individual development of each child." Boys and girls together are in two groups, junior and senior. A splendid spirit of camaraderie prevails. Much has been published about the school, including a book by Mr. Bad-ley himself.

PORT EYNON, CARMARTHEN, WALES.

Port Eynon, on the south coast of Carmarthen at the mouth of the Bristol Channel, is a picturesque and more or less rural resort, frequented by tourists who enjoy exploring the nearby caves and cliffs. Borva House for girls is here.

ABBOTSHOLME SCHOOL Boys Ages 10-18.

Cecil Reddie, B.Sc., M.A., Ph.D., Head Master.

Tui: £120. Courses 8 yrs.

Dr. Reddie, who established this school nearly forty years ago, is perhaps the most notable living figure in the school world. He was the first to break away from the conventional and the traditional. Out of this school has grown the "New School" movement of the Continent. The leaders of the Landerziehungsheim and the Ecoles Nouvelles of France were trained here. Scores of schools have been directly influenced by Abbotsholme and its indirect influence has been world wide. Dr. Reddie, through his innovations and boldness, has influenced thousands of pedagogs who have never heard his name.

SCOTLAND

EDINBURGH. Pop 350,500 (1910) 420,281 (1921).

Edinburgh, Scotland's dour and ancient capital, clusters about The Castle, the seat of Scottish kings on a precipitous rock four hundred feet above the city. South of The Castle is the quaint and squalid 'Old Town,' which extends to Arthur's Seat, a rock mass rising eight hundred feet. To the north are Princes Gardens and Princes Street, reminiscent of Boston Common and Beacon Street. George Street, broad and stately, suggests Commonwealth Avenue. This picturesque city is redolent of Scotch thrift, broth, mist, Walter and Mary.

PARIS. Pop 2,907,200 (1920).

Paris, the capital of France, is the center of the art, financial, and industrial life of the nation to an extent hardly paralleled in any other important country. And yet the typical Parisian need not be French, — he may be Jewish, Polish or of almost any race.

The modern city fills the limestone basin cut across the Seine. Montmartre climbs the northern rim crowned by the aspiring dome of Sacré-Coeur. The Red Mill, built to catch the western winds, now catches the western gold. The earliest settlements were on the islands in the river about which the Roman and medieval cities were built. On the left bank, the Sorbonne has for centuries attracted students from every foreign country and has been the center of a student colony, the Latin Quarter.

Hausmannized and 'mansarded,' Paris has long impressed the unsophisticated as the acme of the magnificent and the beautiful, though in city plan and architectural beauty there are things in Houston and Kansas City superior to anything Paris can show. The somewhat artificial atmosphere still known to Americans reflects, even after centuries, the influence of the frivolous and extravagant Bourbons. Americans on their first visit haunt Cook's and the Place de l'Opéra. Those who have been there before make their headquarters around L'Etoile. Fashionable schools for Americans are found in the Parc Monceau and from L'Etoile north toward the Bois de Boulogne. Schools in surrounding municipalities easily accessible to Paris are generally regarded as Parisian. North of the Bois are schools at Neuilly, Colombes, and Sannois. South is Boulogne, and across the Seine, Saint-Cloud.

FLORENCE. Alt 180 ft. Pop 253,565 (1920).

Florence, proud mistress of Tuscany, is the quintessence of the Renaissance. Set at the crossing of trade routes, on the Arno, out of its commerce came its arts and wealth. Just as imperial Rome is masculine, Florence, surrounded by almond blossom misted hills, is feminine. Perhaps this is why the pensions and hotels are filled with art mad spinsters. The intellectual, esthetic and spiritual inspiration of the place, its palazzos and villas, formerly to be had for a song, have appealed to numerous resident schools. Ensconced in old villas on the slopes of the hills to the east and north, toward Prato and Fiesole, where Boccaccio told his tales, are a number of schools for American girls. The Florentine School is in San Dominico, Eversholme in Rovezzano. In Quinto is the Torregiani School; on the northern outskirts of the city in Villa Ramberg is the Lucy Dodd School.

ROME. Pop 424,943 (1900) 767,983 (1920).

Imperial Rome, the eternal, the masterful, makes its strongest appeal to the masculine, to the subconscious Mussolinis, as does the softness of Florence to the other sex. Still the schools here, some in the outlying sections, are all for girls. Mme. Boni conducts her school during the winter in the center of the civic city. Miss Risser's is in a modern, residential section. Northwest, near the Tiber in an artists' studio quarter, is Miss Moxley's School.

Total Enr: 30. Tui: $1500-2000. Courses: Languages Literature History Art Music.

This finishing school is small enough to allow each girl to receive the individual attention needed to develop her personality. It is under the personal supervision of the Contessa Meehan and is conducted in her ancestral home. See page 924.

HAWAII

HONOLULU, HAWAII.

HANAHAUOLI SCHOOL Coed Ages 5-12 Est 1918.

Louisa F. Palmer, Principal.

Enr: Day 160. Fac: 17. Tui: $150. Courses 7 yrs: Kindergarten Grades I-VI. Undenominational.

Founded by Mr. and Mrs. George P. Cooke, this is the outgrowth of a home school and is based on the educational ideals of John Dewey. The school is well equipped.

PUNAHOU SCHOOLS Coed Ages 5-18 Est 1841.

Arthur A. Hauck, President.

Enr: Bdg and Day 100. Fac: 80. Tui: $. Courses 13 yrs: Kindergarten Grades I-VIII High Sch. Undenominational.

Established as an independent day school, Punahou is now a department of Oahu College. The James B. Castle School, offering courses in home economics, manual arts and architecture, and the Punahou Music School are affiliated. The boarding department for the girls is located on the Punahou campus, and that for the boys is in the buildings of the former Honolulu Military Academy.

ST. ANDREW'S SCHOOL Girls Ages 10-18.

Courses 8 yrs: Grades IV-VIII. Episcopal.

A comfortable home life is provided in this school.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

BAGUIO, P.I.

BISHOP BRENT SCHOOL Boys 6-18 Est 1909.

Harold C. Amos, A.B., A.M., Rutgers Col., Head Master.

Courses 12 yrs: Grades I-VIII Col Prep. Tui: Bdg $650.

This school limits its enrollment to boys of American and English parentage. It was founded by Bishop Brent primarily for the sons of army or civil government officers of the island. R. B. Ogilby, president of Trinity College, was its first head master. The school is set just beyond the frontier of civilization among the Igorots, a group of uncivilized mountain tribes, and the environment is obviously most attractive to American boys. Stress is still laid on the classics and there is adequate preparation for American colleges. Mr. Amos comes to the school in 1927 from Newark Academy.

DETAILED CLASSIFIED LIST

SCHOOLS TO MEET SPECIAL NEEDS

BOYS' SCHOOLS

These lists are intended to be helpful in finding the type of school desired. Occasionally arranged chronologically, the usual arrangement is geographical, enabling one to select immediately schools of the type desired in any particular section of the country. The lists are not intended to be exhaustive, but to include only the more representative schools under each classification.

PREPARATORY TO THE LARGE EASTERN COLLEGES

The total number of candidates from each school who took College Entrance Examinations for the last four years is given. Only those schools are listed which have sent up at least ten boys during this period.

PROFESSIONAL AND VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS

MUSIC SCHOOLS

There are thousands of music schools in the United States. They are estimated at 17,000. Many with impressive titles occupy a single rented room. Only a few of the better established and permanent institutions are here listed.

The conservatory system was established as early as 1853 by Eben Tourjée in Boston. Harvard was the first college to establish a music department,—1862. Now almost every college and preparatory school has its department of music. Secondary schools with separate music departments are in the Classified List of Secondary Schools,(pp. 619-682).

ART SCHOOLS

The study of Art as an accomplishment for young ladies was an early 19th century development. As early as 1791 Charles Willson Peale endeavored to create a school of art in Philadelphia. The attempt, though unsuccessful, led in 1805 to the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. Seventy-five art schools in the country now offer courses of from one to four years. Summer art schools are a popular recent development.

KINDERGARTEN TRAINING SCHOOLS

The first kindergarten for English speaking children was started in Boston by Elizabeth P. Peabody in 1860. The first in this country was conducted in German by Mrs. Carl Schurz in her home in Watertown, Wisconsin. The first kindergarten training school was organized in Boston in 1868 by Madame Matilde Kriege and her daughter. Miss Marie Boelte opened a similar school in New York City four years later.

The earlier schools, as many are to this day, were supported by kindergarten associations and these private training schools turn out more kindergartners than do the state normal schools. The journals of the International Kindergarten Association are published in the interests of the profession.

SCHOOLS OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION

The development of interest in Physical Education in America dates from the middle of the last century. It is true that as early as 1823 Dr. Charles Beck introduced German gymnastics at the Round Hill School, Northampton, Massachusetts. But the important influence came twenty-five years later, in the intercollegiate contests in rowing, the calisthenics of Dr. Dio Lewis, and the educational journals. The college gymnasium was an immediate result—Harvard and Amherst tying for first place in 1860.

There are at present fifteen independent, well established, and reputable schools of Physical Education. In addition practically all the large universities and many of the smaller colleges have well organized departments. These two types of schools supply many of the private and most of the public schools with trained directors of physical education.

SCHOOLS OF EXPRESSION

Schools of Speech Arts are developments of and take the place of institutions formerly called Schools of Oratory and Elocution. The modern Schools of Speech avoid these terms and designate themselves variously as Schools of Expression, Schools of Public Speaking, Schools of the Drama, and Schools of the Stage. Under Schools of the Theatre Arts are Schools of Stage Production, Schools of the Little Theatre. Closely affiliated with Schools of Expression and Public speaking are those remedying defective speech.

SCHOOLS OF THE DANCE

Schools of the Dance are, in America, a recent development. Many aim directly for the stage, offering courses in classic, folk, national, interpretive, ballet and general stage dancing. Others have their origin in Schools for Physical Education and have as their purpose physical upbuilding and beautifying of the human form. Still others, more modern in tone, are for those seeking some form of relaxation and expression and are patronized largely by the neurasthenic and neurotic.

BUSINESS AND SECRETARIAL SCHOOLS

The number of schools of this type reported by the United States Bureau of Education in a recent pamphlet was six hundred in 1924, a loss of some three hundred since the previous compilation, due to the great increase in the assumption by the Public School Systems of the functions once performed by private institutions. Private business classes existed even in Colonial times. In the '30's and '40's of the last century private classes in bookkeeping increased rapidly, forerunners of the modern business schools. In the '50's and '60's chain schools were established, remnants of which exist today independently in many cities under the old names.

The leading schools here described are also mentioned in the main body of the Handbook. In these lists are some schools not described elsewhere. Business departments of standard colleges are not included.

SCHOOLS OF NURSING

Professional nursing is a relatively modern development. It was Florence Nightingale who first uprooted the old notion of nursing as charity work. Nursing education in America had its start in the form of lectures, when Dr. Valentine Seaman introduced a lecture course in obstetrics at the New York Hospital, but no school of nursing existed until 1873. Three schools initiated at this time were independent organizations cooperating with, but not established by, the Bellevue Hospital in New York, the Connecticut Training School in New Haven, and the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Hospitals immediately recognized the value of these training schools, and though in 1880 there were only fifteen schools, by 1910 there were over thirteen hundred. Nursing education has now found its place on the program of many colleges. The National League of Nursing Association has for its president Carrie M. Hall of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston.

DEFICIENTS

Under this classification will be found schools for the mentally, physically, and sensorily deficient. Defectives received no scientific care and education in this country until 1820, when idiots were admitted to the deaf and dumb asylum at Hartford, Connecticut. Dr. Edouard Seguin, a young French physician, developed a method of training of the sense organs and in 1850 opened the Seguin Physiological School at Orange, New Jersey. Before that, however, his methods had been used in the first strictly private institution in the country, Elm Hill, Barre, Massachusetts, which dates back to 1848. Latterly schools for the slightly deficient have grown in great numbers and many of these admit no low grade defectives.

THE PHILLIPS EXETER ACADEMY, Exeter, N.H.
LEWIS PERRY, A.M., Litt.D., Principal.

The Academy furnishes the elements of a solid education by thorough instruction in all the studies required for admission to the leading Colleges and Scientific Schools.

Candidates for admission to the Phillips Exeter Academy must be at least thirteen years of age and must satisfy their instructors as to their fitness by certificates from former teachers and by examinations. Every applicant must also furnish satisfactory evidence of good moral character.

Fifty-two endowed scholarships and many tuition scholarships are awarded yearly. The total of the funds the income of which is devoted to this purpose is $298,000.

The competition for all scholarships is open to new and old students on equal terms, and the scholarships are assigned on the merits of the students as scholars, with due regard to character and pecuniary needs.

The equipment of over thirty buildings comprises Recitation, Residence and Dining Halls, Gymnasium, Laboratories and Cottages. Three new Dormitories erected in 1924-25 enable nearly all the students to live in the School's own buildings.

The playing fields cover 300 acres and contain Running Track, Football Fields, Baseball Diamond, Tennis Courts and a Golf Course. The new Thompson Gymnasium contains Lockers, a Running Track, and rooms for Shower Bath, Baseball Practice, Bowling Alleys, Boxing, and a Swimming Pool.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY, Andover, Mass.

ALFRED E. STEARNS, Litt.D., L.H.D., Principal.

Phillips Academy, founded in 1778 by members of the Phillips family, is the oldest incorporated academy in the United States.

It is international in its representation and democratic in its life and spirit. Its essential appeal is to students of serious educational purpose and high moral standards.

To be eligible for entrance, candidates must present satisfactory school records and evidence of good character, and must pass entrance examinations.

Dormitory accommodations and supervision enable students to pass by gradual and natural stages from the paternalism of home life to the freedom of a College career.

Williams Hall, with its close supervision, offers attractive and helpful surroundings to the young boy just leaving home for his school career. Eight houses, each in charge of a resident married instructor, further provide for boys of the two lower classes.

A Memorial Tower, erected to the memory of the eighty-nine Phillips Academy students who lost their lives in the World War, was completed in 1923.

The equipment of the school, which is unusually complete, is being further extended at the present time.

Extensive playgrounds and athletic fields are available for the use of students. All students are required to take regular gymnasium work or engage in sports. The completely equipped gymnasium and swimming pool are in charge of a physical director.

Endowments and scholarship funds enable the Academy to grant pecuniary aid to about one hundred boys of limited means who possess scholarly ability and ambition.

WINTER SPORTS

ABBOTT SCHOOL at Little Blue,
Farmington, Maine.

CHARLES B. HASKELL, Head Master.

O. S. HASKELL, Registrar.

Abbott, limited to forty boys, at the gateway to the Rangeley Region, has opportunities and advantages which have long recommended it to careful parents.

The Upper School is primarily a College Preparatory school, but it also maintains for boys who do not expect to enter college a practical commercial course. The Lower School provides for boys from eight to fourteen years of age.

The estate at Little Blue, with its comfortable home, up-to-date school house and gymnasium and the finest athletic field in Maine, is an equipment which cannot be equalled by any school of its size in New England.

TILTON SCHOOL, Tilton, New Hampshire.

GEORGE L. PLIMPTON, M.A., Head Master.

A well equipped, progressive New England School noted for thorough Scholastic Training and wholesome home life.

College Preparatory and General courses, also Special courses for High School Graduates.

Excellent Junior School for Boys eight to fourteen. Provision for all Athletics for all Students. Ideal environment for Winter Sports. Moderate rates. A Student Group of high character with strong Alumni support.

NEW HAMPTON SCHOOL FOR BOYS,

New Hampton, New Hampshire.

FREDERICK SMITH, A.M., Principal.

New Hampton is a place where a Boy may live a wholesome, normal life much in the out-of-doors and where he will be taught how to study and be trained to think for himself.

New Hampton in the Pemigewasset Valley is surrounded by beautiful wooded hills and is essentially a school village. It has no industries. It is free from distracting influences and has all the refining influences of an old New England town.

The Teachers are skilled instructors, real men, young enough to appreciate the Boy's point of view, but old enough to have Wisdom and Experience.

This famous old School has produced many leaders in New England public life. "In its beautiful environment, in the quality of its students, in its traditions and its moral and social life, in the enthusiastic loyalty of its alumni, and in the record of scholarly purpose and attainment made by its graduates in their studies in college and professional schools, it certainly has no superior among secondary schools."

Every Boy enjoys some form of Athletics, and all Sports are carefully supervised. Hard work and hard play under careful guidance and supervision fits the New Hampton Boy to enter College or Business with the mental, moral, and physical equipment to compete successfully and to work harmoniously.

Write Mr. Sargent 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

THE STEARNS SCHOOL, Mont Vernon, N. H. ARTHUR FRENCH STEARNS, A.B., Principal.

The Stearns School is located in a country village in the picturesque hills of southern New Hampshire. There are Tennis Courts, an Athletic Field, a Golf Course and Skating Ponds.

The Main Building includes large Recitation Rooms, Physical and Chemical Laboratories and a Gymnasium. The boys live in Lincoln Hall and Andover Hall.

A teaching force, unusually strong in proportion to the number of boys, gives the school nearly all the advantages of a regular tutoring school, but without any of the disadvantages, for Stearns boys are at all times under careful supervision and discipline.

Tuition, board, residence, $1200. Certificate admits to College.

HOLDERNESS SCHOOL, Plymouth, N. H.

REV. R. ELIOT MARSHALL, A.B., B.D., Rector.

Holderness School, a Church School for Boys, is situated among the foothills of the White Mountains, four hours ride from Boston. The school grounds are 700 feet above sea level, on a wooded bluff overlooking the Pemigewasset and Baker river valleys, a beautiful and healthful location.

The school offers instruction in all studies required for admission to the leading colleges and scientific schools. An applicant for admission to the First Form should be twelve years of age.

The dormitories are each in charge of a master, who occupies a room adjoining. The younger boys have separate alcoves and beds in the dormitories; the older boys double rooms.

The campus is laid out with a baseball diamond and a gridiron. A quarter mile running track encloses the athletic field and the tennis court. During the winter months there is opportunity for snow-shoeing, skiing and skating.

The principle of Self-Help has been introduced at Holderness as at many of the best schools. This means that boys will be expected to take care of their rooms and alcoves and corridors, and that they may be called upon for service in the dining room or in other ways.

THE CLARK SCHOOL, Hanover, N. H.

CLIFFORD PEASE CLARK, Ph.D., Director.

FRANK MILLETT MORGAN, Ph.D., Asst. Director.

The Clark School is the logical outgrowth of the Director's experience of many years in connection with the founding and development of a Summer School. That an all year round school with Summer Session has filled a need, is evidenced by the fact that several hundred boys have availed themselves of the advantages of the school since its opening.

The purpose of the school is primarily to prepare a boy thoroughly and adequately to meet college and university requirements and to inculcate in him those basic principles and high ideals which tend toward the development of a manly character. The enrollment is limited to sixty boys. The number of students in a class averages seven.

The school offers two distinct courses of study: first, a four year preparatory course so arranged that it will give a student the necessary preparation for entrance to any American College or University. Second, a special two year course.

The Clark School is situated in Hanover, an ideal location for a preparatory school, being within sight of the Green Mountains and about forty miles away from Moosilauke.

Many advantages are made possible to prospective students by the fact that Dartmouth College is located in Hanover. There is a certain inspiration gained from contact with college men, a larger outlook upon life is sure to follow, and a strengthening of a boy's purpose to acquire that development which he sees going on all around him.

Every student is required to take setting up exercises daily under the direction of the Athletic Director. The school supports four teams: football, baseball, basketball and a ski team. An eighteen hole golf course, tennis courts, and riding horses are available at a nominal charge. Most of the students participate in a variety of winter sports.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

THE HUNTINGTON SCHOOL FOR BOYS,

320 Huntington Ave., Boston, Massachusetts.

CHARLES H. SAMPSON, B.S., Ed.M., Head Master.ALBERT W. SWENSON, A.B., Ed.M., Associate Head.

A well-equipped Private Day School of the progressive type, the student body is divided into six forms. Most of the students are definitely preparing for the leading New England colleges. The school has the privilege of entering boys in college by the certificate method. Complete preparation for the College Board Examinations is offered in all courses.

While scholastic attainment is primarily emphasized, the school does not neglect proper attention to the all-round development of the individual. Every boy is expected to participate in some form of physical exercise, including organized play.

A coeducational summer session is for those who wish to make up conditions in grammar and high school subjects and for those who wish preparation for the September examinations.

The equipment available includes thirty well-ventilated Classrooms, Science Laboratory, a Complete Gymnasium with three Basketball Courts, Swimming Pool, Running Track, and six acres of Outdoor Playing Fields.

BABSON INSTITUTE, Babson Park, Mass.GEORGE W. COLEMAN, President.

To meet the demand for a specialized training of young men looking forward to business careers, is the purpose of the Babson Institute.

Students are thoroughly trained in the fundamental laws of Finance, Management, Production and Distribution and shown how to apply these laws in actual business. Regular office hours are followed, five and one half days a week. The work is conducted with small conference groups under the personal direction of business men of long experience in their respective fields.

Men may enroll at the beginning of each term and continue the course through nine consecutive months. A year or two at college or its business equivalent is desirable, although not required in all cases. For entrance, careful consideration is given to character, record, and the ability of the man for this intensive work. Enrollment is limited.

Babson Institute is located in a delightful suburb near Boston. Living accommodations are ideal. The Institute is organized not for profit under the educational laws of Massachusetts.

The catalog "Training for Business Leadership" may be had upon request.

CHAUNCY HALL SCHOOL.

553 Boylston Street, Boston, Massachusetts.
FRANKLIN T. KURT, Ph.B., Principal.

Preparation for Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

This School, established in 1828, is one of the oldest private schools in Boston. It is centrally located in Copley Square, the most beautiful square in Boston.

For the past sixteen years it has confined its activities wholly to the preparation of young men for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Not only are the students carefully trained to meet the Entrance Requirements, but especial attention is given to developing the students' powers of observation and deduction, the correct use of scientific instruments, precision of measurement and report writing.

The students learn the advantages of close application to study, and through a Weekly Report System are able to check their success or failure in each subject.

For the past six years Chauncy Hall School has had its limit of students before the opening of the Fall term.

As applicants are placed on the waiting list in the order of their registration, early application is desirable.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

MANTER HALL SCHOOL, Cambridge, Mass.CHARLES A. HOBBS, A.M., Head Master.

Founded by William W. Nolen in 1886.

Incorporated in 1924.

Manter Hall is one of the best known Tutoring Schools in America, with an unexcelled record in preparing pupils for College Entrance Examinations.

The school arranges Dormitory Accommodations for its students when desired.

Instruction is either Individual or in Small Groups. The school has excellent Laboratories for the study of Physics, Chemistry and Biology. The instructors include the following Harvard graduates, no one of whom has taught in the school less than twenty years:

Charles A. Hobbs, A.M. Hollis Webster, A.M.

J. Rowe Webster, A.B.

Each of the following has had upwards of fifteen years' experience in college preparatory work:

Ralph A. Houser, A.M. John C. Hall, B.S.

Frank A. Sheldon, A.B. Charles M. Underwood, Ph.D.

James A. Reeves, A.B. Charles H. Mergendahl, Ed.M.

THE POND SCHOOL,

42 Quincy Street, Cambridge, Mass.

WILLIAM McD. POND, Director.

This school was organized to meet the demands of students for whom public and private schools have proved inadequate.

Separate instruction of each student, supervised study under instructors, training in the most effective methods of study and concentration are the bases of the Pond Method.

Separate instruction of each student enables the instructor to give intimate consideration to the peculiar intellectual problem of every student.

Mr. Pond personally studies each student, designs the method of study most suited to him, and himself directs the development of the student's concentrative power.

Supervised study at the school under competent, versatile instructors insures the use by the student of the methods designed for him and places intelligent aid at the service of the student at the critical period during which he is preparing his assignments.

The central idea of the Pond Method is to gauge the latent ability of the individual and inspire him to develop it into an effective instrument.

THE DE WITT CLINTON HEBBERD SCHOOL,
Newton, Massachusetts.

JOHN B. HEBBERD, A.B., A.M., Harvard.

A Boarding and Day school for boys. Thorough preparation is given for College or Technical Schools. Individual instruction is emphasized. Classes are limited to six or eight boys.

The School is situated on a hill from which Mount Monadnock may be seen. Fresh air and sunshine are to be had in abundance. The grounds include thirteen acres of land. They provide a six-hole practice golf course, a clock golf course, an outdoor tennis court and a practice football and baseball field. Near by are two ponds for swimming and for hockey. Indoors are a Tennis Court and two Bowling Alleys.

Each instructor chosen for his qualifications for the subject he teaches as well as for his knowledge of boys.

MITCHELL SCHOOL, Billerica, Massachusetts.
ALEXANDER H. MITCHELL, A.B., Principal.

Boys from six to sixteen are prepared at Mitchell for the final years at the larger preparatory schools.

PRESENTING HORSEMANSHIP AWARD

For fifty-five years the school has been under the management of the Mitchell family. Standards of work and play are high.

Boys are taught self-reliance, self-control, obedience, punctuality, concentration, integrity, and self-restraint.

The Upper and Lower Schools are quite distinct. The buildings are both modern and well equipped.

Horsemanship under expert instruction is stressed. A half hour each day is given to military instruction. There is every opportunity for outdoor life on a one hundred acre campus.

MONSON ACADEMY, Monson, Massachusetts.
BERTRAM A. STROHMEIER, M.A., Head Master.

Founded 1804. A Boarding and Day College Preparatory School for Boys.

Candidates for admission must furnish satisfactory evidence of good moral character, and of mental fitness, either by certificate or examination. Very special attention is given to preparing boys for the freedom of College Life.

The modern academic equipment includes spacious, scientifically ventilated Classrooms, physical and chemical Laboratories, Library, and Museum collections.

Holmes Gymnasium is equipped for Basketball, Boxing, Fencing, and Bowling, and has ample locker and shower bath facilities. The graded Athletic Field has a quarter-mile Cinder Track, Tennis Courts, Baseball Diamond, Football Fields, Bleachers, and covered Grandstand. The hills, ponds, and climate of Monson afford every opportunity for all the Winter Sports cherished by American boys.

Cushman Memorial Dormitory has single and double rooms, and a completely isolated Infirmary.

Scholarship funds are available for a limited number of deserving boys. Tuition, board, and room are $950.

NORTHSIDE SCHOOL, Williamstown, Mass.

CHARLES BODEN GREEN, A.M., Head Master.

Northside, situated in the Berkshire Hills, is a college preparatory school for a limited number of boys.

Instruction is individual or in such small groups as to insure all the advantages of individual attention. The boys are under the immediate supervision of the instructors.

WILBRAHAM ACADEMY, Wilbraham, Mass.

GAYLORD W. DOUGLASS, M.A., Head Master.

Wilbraham Academy fits boys for life and gives thorough preparation for entrance to the Colleges and Scientific Schools. Enrollment is limited, with one master for every eight students. New England standards of scholarship, character and service are developed through serious study, clean sportsmanship and helpful leadership. Over one hundred years of distinguished service and hundreds of distinguished alumni.

The Course of Study covers five years, the first year's work corresponding to the last grade of grammar school. The number of students in every class is kept small so that each boy recites in all his daily studies every school day. Preference is given to applicants for the first three years of the course.

The five buildings are all of brick. Rich Hall is a comfortable and complete dormitory. Separate rooms are provided for each boy. Fisk Hall, named for the first principal, provides a home for the two literary societies, class rooms and chapel. Binney Hall is used for recitation and laboratory purposes.

Corbin Memorial Athletic Field was opened in 1922, affording full equipment for all outdoor sports.

The academy farm contributes wholesome products for the table.

WILLISTON ACADEMY, Easthampton, Mass.
ARCHIBALD V. GALBRAITH, Principal.

For over eighty years Williston has stood for sturdy educational ideals. And for over eighty years it has enjoyed steadfast achievement. Two courses of study are given, the Classical and the Scientific. These courses completely cover college requirements for examinations and certificates.

Boys have more than regular class instruction at Williston. The school encourages friendly relationship between masters and boys, which stimulates boys to better work.

The brick school buildings shaded by stately trees, form an impressive group. The Williston equipment includes three dormitories, a gymnasium, laboratories, recitation rooms and an infirmary. It has one large athletic field and two smaller ones, besides twelve tennis courts and a pond.

Student organizations form an important part of school life and include debating, religious, social, musical, literary, dramatic and scientific activities. Athletics have an important place in the everyday life at Williston.

An entirely separate Junior School is conducted for boys who have not completed the grammar grades.

WORCESTER ACADEMY, Worcester, Mass.

SAMUEL F. HOLMES, M.A., Head Master.

Worcester Academy is a College Preparatory School for two hundred fifty boys, now in its ninety-third year. It aims not only to prepare for College but to train boys to recognize the best in life and to fit them for the responsibilities of citizenship.

On an eminence near the outskirts of the city, with its extensive Campus and Playing Fields, the School combines the advantages of a country location with the broadening influences and opportunities due to proximity to a metropolitan centre.

All boys prepare for College or Technical School.

The Lower School for boys from twelve to fourteen provides instruction in subjects of the seventh and eighth grades.

An efficient Faculty closely supervise the lives of the boys.

The Equipment is unusually complete and represents an investment of approximately $1,000,000.

BERKSHIRE MEMORIAL BUILDING

BERKSHIRE SCHOOL, Sheffield, Massachusetts.SEAVER B. BUCK, A.B., Head Master.

The School Estate of three hundred fifty acres, four miles from Sheffield, lies at an elevation of nine hundred feet on the eastern slope of Mt. Everett, overlooking the beautiful valley of the Housatonic.

The Five Year Course of Study is designed to fit boys for College or for any of the Scientific Schools. It is the belief of the Head Master that most of the unsatisfactory work in School results not from native stupidity, but from slovenly habits of study. The study hours are treated, therefore, as of first importance, and are directed with the utmost care.

The number of masters is sufficient to give whatever individual assistance may be necessary, and boys whose work is unsatisfactory are required to make up their deficiencies daily under the direction of the master who teaches the subject.

There are unusual opportunities for open air exercise, apart from the organized school athletics. For boys who require it, classes in special gymnastic work are arranged under the supervision of the Physical Director. A resident trained nurse is in attendance.

The School is non-sectarian. On Sunday mornings boys may attend church in Sheffield if their parents desire it; on week-day mornings and on Sunday afternoons there is a simple religious service at the School, conducted by the Head Master or visiting minister.

A Committee of nine, chosen each term by the school from among the older boys, cooperates with the Head Master in matters of discipline where the general interest of the school is concerned.

The School offers annually six full scholarships and two scholarships of five hundred dollars each. The recipients are selected not because of scholarship alone but on the ground of their promise as useful men.

The charge for Board and Tuition for the school year is $1500.

The Longwood Day School offers Young Boys an opportunity to Work and Play under the influence, guidance and supervision of specially trained, sympathetic and understanding men and women Teachers.

There are classes from Kindergarten to four years from College. Boys are thoroughly prepared for the leading College Preparatory Schools.

The Program includes many self-motivated, purposeful activities that grow naturally from the boys' Interests and Needs. These include a desire to make things, to express in drawing, to write, to read, to understand number relations, and to know many facts.

A study of each boy's character and progress is made through the use of Intelligence and Educational Tests as well as by teachers' estimates of desirable Habits and Attitudes.

THE ROXBURY SCHOOL, Cheshire, Connecticut.
A. N. SHERIFF, Head Master.

Roxbury is a special type of boarding school which has the distinction of combining three important features of preparatory education.

SOUND INSTRUCTION BY THE TUTORIAL METHOD.

Boys are taught individually or in classes of from two to five. There are no Forms. Each student's program is arranged to suit his needs as determined by careful study. No ground is lost by inattention or failure to understand. Each boy progresses much more rapidly and thoroughly than he would ordinarily. Final candidates seldom fail to enter College.

SUPERVISED SCHOOL LIFE.

The school has one hundred acres of farm and campus in pleasant and healthful surroundings. The boys live in dormitories with resident masters. The welfare of every student is zealously guarded and an infirmary with resident nurses affords excellent care in case of illness.

ORGANIZED ATHLETICS.

Every student is encouraged to take part in some form of healthful physical recreation. Athletics are under the direction of skilled coaches and include Basketball, Baseball, Football, Track, Wrestling, Tennis and other sports.

Boys may enter at any time. A special summer session is held for extra work or in preparation for fall examinations.

RAYMOND RICHARDS McORMOND, A.B.,
Yale '07, Head Master.

The school policy at Westminster is one which is definitely planned for the individual. The flexible form system meets every boy's need and permits and encourages individual development. School life and athletics are so organized that every boy has an active part. It is Mr. McOrmond's purpose in his administration of the school to maintain it always as a first class college preparatory school for boys, limited to the number of about one hundred and forty.

The Westminster School has its buildings and two hundred acres of land on Williams Hill, just outside the town of Simsbury, thirteen miles northwest of Hartford.

The present head master, Raymond Richards McOrmond, is a graduate of Yale College in the class of 1907. He has given his entire career to teaching and to the study of boys' private school management and college preparation.

The teaching staff, under Mr. McOrmond's direction, is, for the most part, an organization of many years' standing. The work in every department is in the hands of teachers of unquestioned scholarship and ability.

The Summer School at Westminster, conducted for seven weeks in August and September by the masters, is a feature of the follow up work of the school.

The school plant includes everything desirable for a modern school. Besides having its own chicken farm, gardens, stable, laundry, and water supply, the school has its own chapel, gymnasium, swimming pool, squash courts, tennis courts, quarter-mile track, athletic fields, and infirmary on its own premises. There are, besides, one hundred acres of woodland. The equipment is complete, modern, and practical. For the session of 1927-28 the school expects to have ready a new administration building, the cost of which will be $125,000, and which has been made possible for the school by gifts of friends, parents, and alumni of Westminster.

RT. REV. JOHN J. NILAN, D.D., Bishop of Hartford, Patron.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Vice-President.

Canterbury School, founded in 1915, is a College Preparatory Boarding school for Catholic boys. It is conducted by a Corporation composed of prominent Catholic laymen among whom are James Cox Brady, Nicholas F. Brady, James A. Farrell, Conde B. Pallen, John D. Ryan, and the above mentioned officers. It maintains the highest standards of discipline, scholarship, and general management and gives a sound training in the doctrines and practices of the Catholic religion.

The Headmaster and all the teachers are laymen. The chapel and religious services are under the direction of a diocesan priest appointed by the Bishop. The boys, from twelve to eighteen years old, represent the best type of American youth.

The school grounds of 135 acres at an elevation of 500 feet are beautifully and healthfully situated. There are four Football Fields, three Baseball Fields, a Running Track, a Skating Rink, and a Nine Hole Golf Course. There are two dormitories, the Main House, a modern building completely renovated in 1926, and an entirely new building completed in 1927. The gymnasium, in addition to the usual equipment, contains a Swimming Pool of the most modern type and also two Squash Courts. All athletics are under skillful direction, and there are several teams in each sport.

The school is remarkable for its excellent spirit of discipline and study, its pleasant and homelike atmosphere, its fine equipment, the character of its boys and masters, and its success in the examinations of the College Entrance Board.

FRANCIS MITCHELL FROELICHER, Provost.

Avon, Old Farms is a Boarding School and Junior College for Boys from twelve to twenty. In the autumn of 1927 boys who have passed their sixteenth birthday will not be admitted. Avon aims to give an all-round cultural education. It believes that this is best gained in the class room and in the laboratory, supplemented by work on the farm, in the forest, and in the shops.

Avon's twenty buildings, already built, include Dormitories, Class Rooms, Masters' Houses, a Refectory, Bank, Post Office, Science Building, Power House, Smithy and Carpenter Shop. The property comprises nearly three thousand acres — woodland, through which two trout streams flow, crossed by several miles of bridle paths, and low land for agricultural purposes. The school offers an unequalled opportunity, through its wide program of activities, for educating the whole boy.

GEORGE C. ST. JOHN, Head Master.

The Choate School, founded in 1896 by Hon. William G. Choate and Mark Pitman, occupies a healthful location, twelve miles from New Haven.

The Lower School prepares for the Upper School as the Upper School prepares for College.

The enrollment is large enough to make for a strong esprit de corps and athletic rivalry, without being so large as to prevent a distinct family life and the necessary attention to individuality and development.

The policy of the school is to give each boy what he individually needs, without holding to any rigid system of forms, and to this end an unusual corps of masters is engaged.

Choate is unsparing in its effort to strengthen in the boys' minds high motives of action which shall permanently control their lives; and to send out boys trained for responsible citizenship. THE MAIN BUILDING

THE TAFT SCHOOL, Watertown, Connecticut.

HORACE D. TAFT, Head Master.

The object of the School is to give boys a sound training, physical, mental and moral, and to make them strong, manly and healthy men. A thorough preparation is given for any College or Scientific School.

The course of study covers five years, and it is very desirable that a boy enter as early as possible in the course. Twelve is the minimum age for the lowest class; to be admitted to a higher class, examinations must be passed.

The number of masters makes it possible for them to be in close touch with all the boys. A decided difference is made between the discipline of the younger boys and the older. The Seniors, living together on the second floor of the Main Building, have a modified system of Self-Government.

Religious exercises begin each day. Sunday morning school service is conducted by the Chaplain in Christ Church. Sunday afternoon service is led by the boys, with a talk given by the Head Master or some other speaker.

The School Instruction aims at more than thorough College Preparation. Classes are small enough to enable instructors to judge of the thoroughness of each boy's preparation of the day's work, to insist upon his best efforts, and to give him such supervision as is necessary.

Physical development is in charge of a regular master of the School, who has had special training and devotes all his time to it. All boys are expected to take vigorous part in athletics, unless parents request to have them excused. Football, Baseball, Basketball and Hockey, in each of which the boys form three teams, are part of the regular exercise of the School.

THE SCHOOL BUILDINGS AT MILFORD

THE MILFORD SCHOOL, Milford, Connecticut.S. B. ROSENBAUM, Ph.B., Director.*LAURENCE W. GREGORY, B.A., Principal.

The Milford School thoroughly prepares boys for College Entrance Board Examinations. The regular session opens the last Monday in September and continues through the June College Entrance Examinations.

The well equipped school buildings occupy an attractive estate in a typical old Connecticut town. The modern Gymnasium with its large Basketball Court, Boxing and Wrestling Room, the six Tennis Courts, and facilities for Boating, Swimming, Baseball, Skating and Hockey provide for the physical welfare of Milford boys.

Because Instruction is Individual, or in small classes (never more than five in a class), each boy is taught at a rate suited to his particular mentality. This Intensive Method of Instruction not only enables the boy to cover nearly twice as much ground as he ordinarily would, but it greatly increases the probability of Success in the Examinations.

The record of the Milford School is well known. References may be obtained from any former student, from any Yale graduate of the past fifteen years, or from any Yale undergraduate.

The annual SUMMER REVIEW for the September College Entrance Examinations begins the third Monday in July. Boys may begin work any time after that date, if advisable. Work may be taken either in Milford or New Haven.

The close relation existing between teachers and students at Milford make rules less necessary than they usually are, and this Spirit of Cooperation has the further advantage of developing a feeling of Manliness in the boys.

THE BROWN SCHOOL OF TUTORING,

38 West 69th Street, New York City.

FREDERIC L. BROWN, B.S., Principal.

Founded 1906. Prepares pupils for leading Secondary Schools and Colleges in much less time than taken by class schools.

At least seventy-five per cent of all the School's work is entirely individual and there are never more than two at a time with a teacher. As a result of this method nervous pupils are not embarrassed, bright pupils are not retarded by classes and the pupil cannot help acquiring the Art of Concentration.

The work of each pupil is accurately planned to satisfy the requirements of the School or College that he expects to enter. All school study periods are supervised.

The School has twelve teachers, all college graduates with six to twenty-five years' experience, and each an expert in the subject he is teaching.

A Summer Session, — July 6 to the College Entrance Examinations in September, — is conducted in the school building in the City. Pupils may enter at any time, so that boys on their return from Camp may have two to four weeks of valuable training before their September examinations.

SILVER BAY SCHOOL,

Silver Bay, On Lake George, New York.

CHARLES R. TOWSON, President.

ROBERT CARVER FRENCH, B.S., Principal.

On the West Shore of Lake George, in the Eastern part of the Adirondack Mountains, in a region of remarkable natural beauty, the school has a location that is unsurpassed. It has the unrestricted use of an Estate of sixteen hundred acres with more than a mile of shore front.

The School offers a Six Year Course for Boys from twelve to eighteen. Private music lessons and tutoring are available. The faculty of men and women is unusually well-qualified.

The facilities for recreation include Tennis, Boating, Fishing, Hunting, under faculty supervision, Skating, Skiing, Tobogganing, Mountain Climbing, and Camping.

The School places emphasis on the following:—

A high standard of Scholarship, and prepares for all colleges on the Certificate of the School or through Regents and College Board Examinations.

A manly type of Sportsmanship in athletic competitions in Football, Baseball, and Track, and other relations of school life.

Healthful living, with regular physical examinations, daily sports, wholesome food, outdoor work, Adirondack climate, and the study of health with the aim of forming desirable habits.

The development of Initiative and Responsibility in the Boys, through the School Council which functions largely in the Government of the School, and through various student organizations such as Literary Societies, Dramatic Club, Glee Club, Rifle Clubs, Trap Shooting Club, Student Y. M. C. A., and the Athletic Association.

Outdoor Work of which part is correlated with Classroom instruction and part is patterned after the tasks of the old New England farm that help to develop sturdy, self reliant men.

Throughout all its activities the fundamental emphasis is on the development of genuine Christian character.

HACKLEY SCHOOL, Tarrytown, New York.

WALTER BOUTWELL GAGE, A.B., Head Master.

The aim of the school is a thorough preparation for College or Scientific School and the symmetrical development of all sides of a boy's life. The religious teaching emphasizes the universal and simple truths of Christian living.

The course of study covers six years. Statements of scholarship and character are required of all applicants for admission and a personal interview at the school is requested. New students must pass examinations in June or September. New boys are not admitted to the Senior Class. Only exceptionally promising new boys may enter the Junior class.

The School Property at an elevation of five hundred feet above the Hudson, one hour's ride from New York City, comprises seventy-eight acres. The buildings are modern. The equipment includes School House, Dormitories, Chapel, Masters' Houses, Infirmary, Gymnasium, Swimming Pool, Athletic Fields and Tennis Courts.

Reports of scholarship and deportment are made at the middle and end of every term. A boy whose attitude is felt to be in any way harmful may be summarily dismissed.

A limited amount of scholarship aid is available for boys of unusual promise. The charge for tuition and board, including laundry and mending, is $1200.

LAKE PLACID CLUB SCHOOL,

Lake Placid Club, New York.

IRA A. FLINNER, A.M., Ed.D., Harvard, Director.

The school prepares for colleges and technical schools and gives a broad general training in a six year course of study. It is conservatively progressive and uses in its study of individuals and instruction such means as are at the disposal of scientific education.

Boys are admitted to the first five forms of the six year course and are classified by mental tests and scholastic examinations. Promotion to the next class and admission to college are by College Board Examinations.

Lake Placid Club has assigned an extensive area of its 10,000 acres for school use. On it are three large buildings and cottages which for the present accommodate fifty boys. Extensive recreational facilities are available for school use. At least two hours each day are spent outdoors.

The Lake Placid Club Education Foundation awards annual scholarships of varying amounts to boys of high ability who are otherwise acceptable.

THE ADIRONDACK-FLORIDA SCHOOL,

L. H. SOMERS, A.B., Head Master.

A College Preparatory School for boys, founded by Paul C. Ransom in 1903, it was the first School in the United States to hold its sessions in two climates in order to give its students as much out of door life as possible throughout the School year.

The Autumn Session, from September until the Christmas vacation, is held in the Adirondacks, at Meenahga Lodge, two miles from the Onchiota P. O. in Franklin County, N. Y.

The Winter Session, from January until April, is at Coconut Grove, Florida, on Biscayne Bay, five miles from Miami.

The Spring Session, from late April through the College Entrance Board Examinations, is held at Meenahga Lodge.

The School offers unusual outdoor activities such as Camping and Cruising, which harden and strengthen the boys physically and teach them independence and self-reliance, the value of time, the pleasure of work with their hands and of mild hardships in connection with their recreation.

A refined home life in a well ordered household offers opportunity for training in the courtesies and amenities of life.

The small number makes personal oversight possible in all phases of a boy's life in the School.

The two School Plants have School Houses, Recitation Buildings, Dormitories and Dining Halls, with their furnishings and complete equipment for the enjoyment of outdoor life.

During January, February and March, address Coconut Grove, Florida. Permanent address: Onchiota, New York.

PRESENT BUILDINGS AND PROPOSED EXTENSIONS

ROGER W. SWETLAND, A.M., LL.D., Head Master.

As an Endowed Academy, Peddie offers superior advantages at moderate rates. The Equipment is modern, the Teaching Force especially strong, and special emphasis is placed upon preparation of boys for the College Entrance Board Examinations. A large proportion of the graduates enter Yale, Princeton, Harvard, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. They also take high standing in more than twenty other Colleges. The students come from a wide range of territory, covering thirty states and a few foreign countries.

The School is at Hightstown, in the midst of a fertile farming district, nine miles from Princeton, forty miles from Philadelphia, and fifty miles from New York. The Campus contains sixty acres and includes a Lake for Skating, Boating, and Swimming. There are fifteen buildings on the sixty acre Campus, including Wilson Hall, Coleman, Trask, Avery, and Beekman Houses; Buchanan, Keeler, and Mount Cottages; the Longstreet Library; the Dining Hall; the Gymnasium with Swimming Pool; the Florence A. Roberson Memorial Infirmary; and Memorial Hall, just completed at a cost of over $400,000 and dedicated to the Peddie boys who served in the World War, provides Modern Classrooms, Laboratories, and Offices.

Unusual facilities for Outdoor Sports are offered, — a fine Athletic Field, with four Football gridirons, and three Baseball diamonds, twelve Tennis Courts, a lake for Boating and Skating, and a quarter mile Cinder Track with 220 yard straightaway.

The School maintains strong Literary and Musical Clubs, a Dramatic Club, Camera Club and Athletic Association. Two courses of study are provided, the Classical and the Scientific.

Princeton, New Jersey.

J. B. FINE, Head Master.

The Princeton Preparatory School, founded fifty-four years ago, is situated one mile from Princeton on the Lincoln Highway. The grounds include eighty acres, with Athletic Field, Tennis Courts and new Gymnasium.

Its proximity to Princeton University, its control by a responsible Board of Directors composed of graduates of the University and alumni of the School, and the encouragement and counsel received from the President, Dean, and other members of the University Faculty afford the School peculiar advantages and render the transition from school to college life less abrupt and dangerous than ordinarily.

Special personal attention and thorough preparation for admission to Princeton or any other American college or technical school is given. Enrollment is limited to a hundred boys.

Individual progress is fostered by freedom from rigid class organization.

HUN SCHOOL OF PRINCETON, Princeton, New Jersey.

JOHN G. HUN, Head Master.

The Hun School of Princeton has an unusually favorable location on a large estate in the suburbs of Princeton. The school buildings are commodious and comfortable, containing rooms for seventy boys, Lounging Rooms, Study Halls, Dining Room and Administrative Offices.

An attractive new Academic Hall has recently been completed. The Faculty is probably the highest paid group of teachers in any secondary school in America. The instructors are all specialists, highly trained and masters in their own fields. They have proved their ability to show results in the records which their students make in college.

Hun School of Princeton is not a cramming school. Much individual attention is given to students needing personal assistance. The work is intensive and thorough. Graduates not only enter College successfully but are prepared to stay in College.

A new and beautiful estate, Edgerstoune, is the home of the Junior Department where boys from ten to sixteen are prepared for the larger secondary schools.

A Summer Session is maintained in preparation for September College Entrance Examinations.

RUTGERS PREPARATORY SCHOOL,

New Brunswick, New Jersey.

WILLIAM P. KELLY, A.M., Head Master.

Rutgers Preparatory School has been administered by Rutgers University continuously since 1766 to afford boys adequate preparation for College.

The equipment is new, complete, attractive. A plan of coordination enables the School to utilize valuable parts of the University plant at a great saving of expense, and therefore to put the academic and home life on a par with the best at a moderate cost.

One hundred boys are accepted, selected usually after personal interview. Eight resident masters, all highly trained and experienced in developing character and self direction, as well as right methods of study, are in constant association with the boys.

The student associations manage all social activities and some of the schoolroom discipline. An interesting social life is cultivated. Music enters into the life and recreation. All branches of athletics and other student activities outside the regular curriculum are fostered and carefully supervised.

LAWRENCEVILLE SCHOOL, Lawrenceville, N.J.

MATHER A. ABBOTT, M.A., Litt.D., Head Master.

Lawrenceville is an endowed boarding school for boys, originally established in 1810 but reorganized in 1881 on the John C. Green Foundation. Its plan of operation is an American adaptation of the English House system. The School is under the control of a Board of Trustees.

Lawrenceville is distinctively a College Preparatory School, and its graduates have entered practically all the more important Colleges and Universities in the country. Approximately sixty per cent of each graduating class enters Princeton and Yale.

The strong faculty of forty-three Masters, graduates of leading universities, endeavors to combine physical, social, moral, and religious training with effective teaching.

The School property comprises about four hundred acres of ground, with modern buildings and equipment.

There are twelve Residence Houses, with accommodations for four hundred and seventy-five boys. Every House is under the supervision of experienced resident Masters. The Upper House is reserved for seventy-four boys of the Fifth (or highest) Form. A New Alumni War Memorial Building has been erected with accommodations for one hundred boys of the Lower School.

Physical training is required of all boys and is supervised by specially trained Masters. The Gymnasium is near the Golf Links, the Cinder Track, the Playing Fields, and the Tennis Courts. In addition to School athletic teams, there are House, Junior, and Midget teams in all branches of sports.

A number of scholarships for boys who need them are available upon application to the Head Master.

When possible, parents and boys should visit the school for an interview before making application.

THE HILL SCHOOL, Pottstown, Pennsylvania.

REV. BOYD EDWARDS, D.D., Head Master.

The Hill School began its seventieth year, in 1920, as an endowed institution, conducted not for profit and administered by a Board of Trustees, composed of alumni and friends, through a Head Master appointed by the Board.

The School aims to combine with scholastic efficiency, consideration of each boy's individual needs, correction and direction of physical tendencies, the formation of right habits of study, and maintenance of social and moral conditions favorable to the development of clean, vigorous character.

Applications for admission must bear the favorable endorsement of, or satisfactory reference to, parents of present or past members of the School. The course is five years in length. Boys are not accepted for less than three years.

Special stress is laid upon the careful direction of extra-curriculum activities: the Debating, Civic, Musical, Dramatic and Literary Clubs, and the three School publications.

Physical Training is required of all. An indoor and an outdoor Gymnasium, two Swimming Pools, a nine-hole Golf Course, and ample Athletic Fields with thirty Tennis Courts, nine Baseball Diamonds, five Football Fields, a quarter-mile Cinder Track, a Baseball Cage, three Squash Courts, a covered Cinder Track for winter practice, Rifle Range and Traps for Clay Pigeon Shooting and eight Basketball Courts provide opportunities for physical development.

Twenty Scholarships are offered annually in open competition.

THE HAVERFORD SCHOOL, Haverford, Pa.

EDWIN M. WILSON, A.M., Head Master.

A Boarding and Day School for Boys, nine miles west of Philadelphia, on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Haverford is an exclusively residential suburb and educational center. Haverford College is less than a fourth of a mile from the School, and Bryn Mawr College a mile distant.

The boarding department is limited to fifty, thus insuring to the pupils the advantages of individual attention and the guarded home life so difficult to secure except in a small school.

While the School aims at thorough general training it is distinctively a college preparatory school, and practically all its graduates enter college. They have had remarkable success in passing the admission examinations, and in maintaining high standing in the leading colleges and universities.

There are Six Forms in the School. The average age for admission to the First Form is twelve years. There is a Junior School of six grades, attended principally by day pupils.

The class room instruction is in small groups and is supplemented by individual teaching for those who require it.

The School encourages and requires every pupil to engage systematically in some form of outdoor athletics. The open country about Haverford and the ample grounds afford opportunity for all sports in season: football, soccer, tennis, swimming, hockey, basketball, skating, track athletics and baseball.

The grounds, in the beautiful rolling country north of Philadelphia, eleven miles outside the city, are easily accessible.

The facilities for physical training are excellent. All students are required to take exercise four afternoons each week under the direction of competent supervisors. The school is characterized by an atmosphere of serious work amid home-like surroundings.

The day pupils receive all the advantages afforded to the boarding pupils. They spend the entire day at the school, taking part in the afternoon study and the organized athletics under the direction of the teachers.

The Upper School comprises six forms. To enter the First Form a boy should be about twelve years of age. The courses of study are intended to provide the elements of a liberal education and to prepare candidates for any University or Scientific School. Every effort is made to teach the boys habits of concentration and intelligent application.

The Lower School is divided into five graded classes, covering the primary instruction necessary for entrance to the Upper School. To enter the Lower School a boy should be about six or seven years of age.

A limited number of scholarships covering a part or all of the annual tuition charges are open to boarding pupils of high character and ability, whose financial resources are limited.

DONALDSON SCHOOL, Ilchester, Maryland.
THEODORE N. DENSLOW, B.A., Head Master.

The Donaldson School was founded in 1906 to assist in the thorough preparatory education of boys, and at the same time provide a definite religious background.

The scholastic purpose of the School is to prepare boys for College, and the course of studies is arranged to meet the standards set by the requirements for entrance to College.

Removed from the distractions of the city, yet within easy reach of Baltimore and Washington, a group of attractive buildings has grown up on the beautiful school estate. A new modern fireproof dormitory will be ready in the fall of 1927.

Donaldson is distinctly a country school. In the even and vigorous climate boys have unusual opportunity for outdoor recreation. The health of the boys is the first concern.

Donaldson has established a system which supplies the modern boy's need of actual manual training. Each boy shares in the essential work about the grounds and each has a daily task.

The masters at Donaldson are college men of high academic and teaching standards who make a careful study of each boy, help him overcome his difficulties and discover his natural aptitudes.

Swavely is the school which won such a reputation as the Army and Navy Preparatory School in the days when special study was necessary for boys to pass the examinations to Annapolis and West Point. As conditions changed, more and more boys were prepared for college, and the school was named after the man who had founded it and had been principal for more than twenty years.

With the change came growth. Growth demanded new quarters. These were found in a country location thirty miles from Washington.

The equipment is modern; the campus, of sixty-five acres; the location, in the healthful, mild climate of northern Virginia.

Although a few boys are still prepared for Annapolis and West Point, College Preparation is the chief work. Graduates of Swavely are found in nearly every Eastern College and University. The school is accredited and its certificate is accepted by all the colleges that accept certificates in lieu of entrance examinations.

The Tome School is an Endowed Preparatory School. Its situation is one of great attractiveness on a hill overlooking the Susquehanna River. The climate is mild and healthful.

The Grounds and Buildings, the work of the best architects and landscape artists, are famed for their beauty. The equipment is the best that ample funds and expert advice could provide. The Laboratories and Manual Training Shops are worthy of a college. A single room is provided for every boy.

The Faculty of twenty-five men, trained in American and European Universities, are specialists in their departments. The Students are divided into small classes. Each boy has an individual faculty adviser. Tutoring is provided for boys who need such special attention. Three courses are offered: College Preparatory, General, and a special course in Business Administration.

Each boy is required to take an active part in athletics. The Gymnasium, Batting Cage, Athletic Fields, Cinder Track, Rifle Range, Golf Course and Tennis Courts provide every incentive. Tome has strong athletic teams, but the organization is such that even the smaller boys and the weaker boys have their own teams. A new seventy-five foot Swimming Pool has been recently added.

The School for Younger Boys occupies a separate Dormitory, has separate Recitation Rooms and special teachers in all branches. Particular care and attention are given to the younger boys out of school hours. The annual fee is $1350.

STUYVESANT SCHOOL, Warrenton, Virginia.

EDWIN B. KING, A.M., Yale, Head Master.

Stuyvesant differs from the average school chiefly in the emphasis laid upon the individuality of each boy, and in the effort to develop this individuality into a personality.

The order and routine of the day are based upon the relationships of family life. Discipline is strict, but corrective rather than punitive. Courtesy and good manners are insisted upon.

Thorough instruction is insured by supervised study, and by the careful and unhurried recitations possible only in small classes. The curriculum is sufficiently elastic to meet all needs.

Preparation is given for any college or scientific school. The June College Entrance Examination Board Examinations are held at Stuyvesant each year.

Physical development receives utmost care and attention; and all boys are required to engage in the outdoor sports.

The Indian River School, for boys 12 to 15, offers scholastic work of the same standard as the Northern Preparatory Schools with the opportunity of Living Outdoors practically all the year.

The School is of particular interest to Younger Boys who will later enter one of the large Eastern Preparatory Schools; to Boys who need Individual Attention; to Boys to whom the rigorous climate is injurious; to Parents who spend the Winter in the South and want their boys near them.

The Heads of the School, both Princeton men, have had long experience in the best Northern Schools. The families of both make their permanent home on the ranch and create a wholesome and homelike atmosphere for the boy away from home.

Two hundred and forty acres of Woodland, Orange Groves and Beach surround the School, which is secluded, yet within a half mile of the Dixie Highway.

A thirty-hour Pullman service from New York, Florida's incomparable climate, and opportunity for Riding and Swimming every day of the year, make the school unique.

Tuition, October to May, $1350, includes every expense.

WILLIAM OLIVER STEVENS, Ph.D., Litt.D.,
Head Master.

Cranbrook School, a Day and Boarding school for boys endowed by Mr. and Mrs. George G. Booth, is in the Bloomfield Hills, a suburb of Detroit. It opens in the Fall of 1927 to students of seventh, eighth and ninth grade standing, adding a grade annually until full College Preparation is offered.

Cranbrook occupies a beautiful, hilly site of 65 acres, containing a small lake, one of 310 in Oakland County. Natural facilities, added to extensive playfields, football field, and quarter-mile track, encourage year-around sports.

The school has access to the cultural advantages of Detroit but is sufficiently isolated to escape its distracting influences. It will avoid regimentation of students, giving that individual attention best calculated to fit boys for their logical futures. Instruction in the arts will receive special attention.

The buildings, all fireproof, were designed by Prof. Eliel Saarinen, of Helsingfors, and adorned by modern masterpieces of sculpture and the decorative arts. They include an astronomical observatory.

The institution is affiliated with the Episcopal Church but aims to create a religious and moral atmosphere that is in no way sectarian.

CALIFORNIA PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR BOYS, Covina, California.

Mrs. J. H. HENRY, President.

CHARLES M. WOOD, Superintendent.

This school, founded in 1917, and formerly in Pasadena, is now located on a hundred acre site near Covina. It offers the advantages of healthful country life with unexcelled opportunities for study and good scholarship. The buildings are all new, and absolutely up to date in equipment and convenience.

Full College Preparatory Courses are carried, fitting for all Colleges and Universities, East and West, together with a Practical Course for those not intending to enter College. Certificate privileges are accorded by Dartmouth, Columbia, Cornell, Stanford, and all State Universities and preparation is given for College Entrance Board Examinations. The Work also covers the four Upper Grammar Grades, the younger boys being separately housed and taught.

Classes are small. Careful supervision is exercised over the students and their activities at all times. The Discipline is firm, but administered with kindness and justice. The students are expected to be Gentlemen, and are treated as such.

The School is Undenominational, but under Christian Influences. Special attention is given to the forming of manly Character, and the inculcating of the principles of good citizenship. Athletics are encouraged and well directed. A Gymnasium, Swimming Pool, standard Athletic Field, and Tennis Court are provided. There is excellent instruction in Horsemanship. The country location and mild climate are conducive to Outdoor Life and Sports the entire year.

The Music Department offers instruction in piano and various instruments and there is a Brass Band, Orchestra and Glee Club.

The fall term opens about the middle of September of each year, and the second term on February first.

GRAY COURT, Stamford, Connecticut.

Miss JESSIE CALLAM GRAY, Principal.

Miss BERNICE TOWNSEND PORTER, Assistant Principal.

Gray Court, a Boarding and Day School for Girls, on the Sound, an hour from New York, affords the unusual combination of Country and Seashore Life and City Advantages. The building, surrounded by magnificent old trees, is so situated that a view of the water may be had from every window.

Emphasis is laid on College Preparatory Work, but there are Primary and Intermediate Classes for younger girls, and Secretarial, General or Post Graduate Courses for pupils not preparing for College. A specialty is made of Music, under skillful instructors. Physical Training, Horseback Riding, Skating, Skiing and all Outdoor Sports are emphasized.

The Faculty has been chosen with the view, not only of making the classroom instruction of the highest quality, but of furnishing the atmosphere of Culture and Refinement which will give the young girl away from home influence, the Social Training that she needs.

26, 28 & 30 West 55th Street, New York City.
MISS CHARLOTTE S. BAKER, Principal.
MISS GRACE A. McELROY, Assoc. Principal.
MISS HELEN CLARKSON MILLER, Assoc. Principal.

Miss Spence's School, located in modern buildings especially designed for it, is a day and resident school for girls that has enjoyed an excellent reputation since its establishment in 1892 by the late Clara B. Spence.

Over fifty trained specialists compose the teaching staff for the four hundred girls the School accommodates. The tutorial system makes it possible to limit classes to eight pupils. Each girl, therefore, recites each time her class meets.

There are two Academic Departments in the School, Preparatory and Collegiate: a high standard of scholarship is maintained. Preparation for College is emphasized. There are two courses: the College Preparatory Course given only to girls actually registering for college; and the General Course, which includes a wider range of cultural and practical subjects, and leads to the School Diploma.

The School offers opportunities for its students to become familiar with the best things New York has to offer in the way of music, art, lectures, museums, philanthropic undertakings, and places of historic or current interest.

An Athletic Association is developing greater interest in Physical Education. The difficulty of providing exercise in a large city is met by Gymnastics, Swimming, and Basketball. Each Resident Pupil's afternoon programme is planned with care. The school buildings are light and sunny.

Both during school hours and in the home life, the School emphasizes the development of character as well as of intellectual quality, insisting on reliability, obedience, courtesy, and the poise gained by carrying responsibility. The atmosphere is friendly but the discipline throughout the School is strict.

The Alumnae of Miss Spence's School are organized as an incorporated society of over eight hundred former students, who conduct a definite philanthropic work.

The Briarcliff Ideal is a girl at home in the world of Nature, Art and Science, with clear vision, breadth of thought and grace of manner, equipped to meet life’s demands, whether in homemaking, in social service or in the world of affairs.

The Briarcliff Features are Outdoor Life with Supervised Athletics; thorough College Preparation; equally strong Elective Courses for the girl who is not going to college, but who looks forward to efficiency in the home, in business or in philanthropy; a Post Graduate Department with a two year Junior College Course, for girls over eighteen; unusual advantages in Music and the other Fine Arts, with cultural opportunities made possible by proximity to New York, where Briarcliff students enjoy the benefit of Opera, Concerts, the best Plays and frequent visits to the Museums and Art Exhibitions.

The School buildings, new in 1906, are of brick, thoroughly fireproof, heated by indirect radiation with forced ventilation.

High in the Westchester Hills, the School stands on its own grounds of thirty-eight acres, on which are Tennis and Basketball Courts, Hockey Field, Skating Pond and a new tiled Swimming Pool. Outdoor Life is emphasized, the school work being so arranged that all girls may be out of doors for more than two hours in the early afternoon. Golf and Horseback Riding give variety to Outdoor Sports.

THE BENNETT SCHOOL OF LIBERAL AND

MISS COURTNEY CARROLL, A.B., Principal.

An especially strong Music Department offers advanced Instrumental and Vocal Work and Courses in Musical Theory.

The Departments of Art and the Drama admit to advanced standing in well known professional schools; the Departments of Household Arts and Secretarial Work are planned for girls who wish to have, under the broadest possible influences, this practical work.

For those who desire a course of general cultural content, the Academic Department offers a wide choice of subjects.

A new fireproof wing, containing three large study halls, three classrooms and sleeping accommodations for thirty girls was finished early in 1927.

The School recognizes fully the importance of proper physical surroundings and training for growing girls. Thirty-eight acres of Campus, surrounded by beautiful, open country in the midst of hills, offer every opportunity for free, outdoor life. Every pupil is required to join in carefully supervised Athletics.

Careful attention is given to the Social Courtesies, and in all phases of its life and work the School accepts its responsibility to train gentlewomen.

Contact with the Life of the World is maintained by lectures from men and women of note.

Highland Manor is a Non-Sectarian Country Boarding School and Junior College for Girls, ideally located on the Hudson near New York City.

The Faculty, recent graduates of the best Teachers' Colleges, constitute a group of progressive, enthusiastic, young women vitally interested in the welfare of each Highland Manor girl.

The course of study is thorough and includes the subjects offered in Elementary, High School, and Junior College Departments. The courses open to the older girls embrace College Preparatory, which prepares graduates for the leading colleges; General Academic work in literature, science and arts; Secretarial, designed to acquaint girls with business terms, papers, customs and practices, and to teach them to handle their own affairs intelligently; Homemaking, a practical course giving the fundamental principles of scientific household administration; Journalistic Training, with practical application of principles to the three student publications; Kindergarten Training, a professional course similar to that given in the best normal schools. The Conservatory of Music offers instruction in piano, violin, violoncello, harp and pipe organ, under a trained staff.

Nine cozy cottages house the girls, who are grouped by age and grade — averaging in the Children's House from eight to twelve, and in the Junior College from seventeen to twenty-two.

REV. DUNCAN McCULLOCH }
MISS ANNA GREEN McCULLOCH } Principals.

Oldfields, founded in 1866, is located on a 280-acre estate in the hills of northern Maryland, twenty miles from Baltimore.

The Principals, children of the founder, have had the active management for the past twenty years. They recognize the development of Christian character in the girls as the highest achievement of education. The school is non-sectarian, but many pupils are members of the Episcopal Church.

The Faculty of college-trained women is unusually large for the limited enrollment of seventy, insuring constant personal supervision of each girl. The members of the faculty have been selected not only for their skill as teachers but as leaders.

Three courses of study are offered, College Preparatory, General Academic, and Junior College. Provision is made for expert instruction in such studies as Drawing, Music, and Dancing.

The most up-to-date methods of instruction, text books and scientific equipment are employed.

The girls provide their own social life within the school, with dramatics, dancing, music, reading, etc. Advantage is taken of the opera, drama, lectures, museums and public interests of Baltimore. Noted lecturers and entertainers are invited to the school.

The personal health, hygiene and comfort of the girls receive the utmost attention. One qualification for admission is good health. The rooms are comfortably furnished. The table is in charge of an expert dietitian. Sickness is cared for by the trained nurse in an isolated infirmary.

Oldfields is noted for its outdoor life and athletics. Games and group athletics are under the supervision of a graduate Director of Athletics. The gymnasium is new, large and well equipped. Basketball, tennis, hockey, lawn golf, skating, coasting, walking, horseback riding and other sports. Every girl must take some exercise daily; games are graded and teams formed according to the normal strength and ability of each girl.

An alumnae association of over five hundred members holds its annual meeting at the school.

Specific requirements for admission must be fulfilled. The school catalogue will be sent on request and application should be made in advance in order to secure a place. Parents of new pupils are urged to visit the school in the spring term preceding entrance.

MOUNT VERNON SEMINARY,

Nebraska Avenue, Washington, D. C.

Mount Vernon Seminary, familiarly known as "Mrs. Somers' School", now occupies a twenty acre estate on the outskirts of Washington — isolated, yet accessible.

The two-story fireproof building accommodates a hundred and twenty-five girls. Although attention is given to comfort rather than to luxury, Mount Vernon has the atmosphere of a large, beautiful home and lacks the conventional boarding school atmosphere. There are three groups of study — The Upper Form, The Collegiate (covering six years), and the College Preparatory (five years). The instructors, chosen with great care, are women of unusual attainments. The work of the last two years of the Collegiate Course is of college rank.

A Department of Home Economics and Courses in Fine Arts and Music are also offered.

Special attention is given to Physical Education. There are Tennis Courts, Hockey Field and opportunity for Archery and Horseback Riding, Swimming and Gymnastics.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

GARRISON FOREST SCHOOL,

Garrison, Maryland.

Miss MARY MONCRIEFFE LIVINGSTON.

Garrison Forest School, a Country Boarding School for Girls, is in the Green Spring Valley, one of the most beautiful rural sections of the State of Maryland. On neighboring estates are some of the finest homes in the country.

In this real Home School, limited to thirty resident pupils, girls live in intimate contact with their instructors, and with a resident French teacher who devotes her time to the School Family. Younger Girls live in a separate house.

The Course of Study includes the regular College Preparatory Work or General Academic, with Special Courses in Music, Art and Domestic Science. Proximity to Baltimore provides opportunity for older students to enjoy the advantages that city life offers in Drama, Art, and Music.

WARD-BELMONT SCHOOL, Nashville, Tennessee.
JOHN DEILL BLANTON, A.B., LL.D., President.

Ward-Belmont is a union of Ward Seminary and Belmont College. The school stands in a beautiful hilltop park of thirty acres, embowered in trees and shrubs which represent the artistic planting and cultivation of sixty years.

Direct car service gives quick connection with railway station, shopping districts and churches of all denominations; yet the school is sufficiently removed to give that quiet and inspiring environment which is conducive to studious habits.

The eleven buildings combine the very best in modern school architecture.

There are separate departments supplementing the Classical Course, for Home Economics, Physical Education, Secretarial and Business Training, Expression, Art and Music. The courses cover the four years of High School and two of College.

Nashville is the center of Southern education and culture and the winter climate of the beautiful blue grass region of Tennessee contributes much to the school's unsurpassed record for good health.

Here young women from the best homes of the South, East and West meet in profitable association to enjoy the advantages of the institution's national prestige and patronage.

The carefully selected faculty is made up of men and women from the best colleges and universities of this country and abroad.

RUTH COIT, Head Mistress.

Saint Mary's Hall, reorganized and rejuvenated, is prepared to equip Girls directly for Eastern Colleges. An Academic Course of high standard is also maintained.

The new School House is equipped in modern fashion. The fireproof dormitory, a really beautiful building, accommodates twenty-two Girls. The four acres of well wooded land in the best residence section of the town, offers every facility for outdoor life. The School admits both resident and day pupils from Primary through College Preparation.

Though governed by the Protestant Episcopal Church, the School accepts desirable students without Church affiliation.

ELA HOCKADAY, Head Mistress.

Preparation for Eastern Colleges, equivalent to that of Eastern Preparatory Schools, is the unique feature of this school.

Dallas, one of the foremost Cities in the Southwest, is a leader in Art and Music and its advantages are available to the students. The School House, especially planned for the comfort and convenience of the Girls, commands a beautiful view of the surrounding country, but is accessible to all parts of the city.

The grounds are well adapted to out-of-door sports, well drained and with ample space for Tennis and Basketball Courts, Swimming Pool, Hockey Field and Putting Green.

Thoroughness is demanded in all courses and Girls are carefully guarded from overstrain. For this reason it is recommended that Girls, especially those preparing for the large Eastern Colleges, spend five years in the completion of the College Preparatory Course.

Cultivation of the perfect Woman, intellectually firm and having poise, simplicity, and graciousness, is a definite aim. To accomplish all this fully, the happiest surroundings, the ablest instructors and the most conscientious work are a necessity, and toward this all members of the school group strive.

Among outstanding features are careful Study of the Individual and adaptation of the work to each; Physical Recreation for all; Noon Rest for the younger children; a well balanced School Program with attention to Manual Work, Decorative Arts and Music.

There is friendly cooperation and guidance by a well qualified faculty.

DERBY ACADEMY Hingham, Mass.

JOHN R. P. FRENCH, A.M., Head Master.

Founded in 1784, the School has lately been reorganized and expanded, and now offers to South Shore residents the Facilities and Program of a Modern Country Day School. In response to demand, a Boarding Unit for Older Boys has been added.

The new school site is a thirty acre tract of high land bordering Broad Cove and including ten acres of graded playing fields. Opportunities are afforded for all outdoor activities.

The School is distinctly progressive in character. Methods of instruction and discipline conform to principles established by the recognized leaders of present-day educational thought. The nature and needs of the Individual Child receive careful and continuous consideration.

The school's ideal is to share with parents the task of giving to children the training which will best fit them for wholesome and happy living.

Boys and Girls work and play on equal terms in all departments of the school.

For the academic year 1926-27 pupils will be received in all grades from Kindergarten through High School.

Tuition rates are exceptionally moderate.

Saint Elizabeth's is an all year round "Mother School" for boys and girls between the ages of three and twelve.

The School is on Shippan Point, in the beautiful Sound Country of Connecticut, at the beginning of the foothills of the Berkshires. There is ample room for Play and a wonderful beach for Swimming.

Instruction extends from Kindergarten through grammar grades. A regular domestic duty is assigned to every pupil.

Health and Physical Training are considered of prime importance. A Graduate Nurse is in residence and all cooking is under the personal charge of a Trained Dietitian. Much time is devoted to Outdoor Sports, — Running, Skating, Ball Playing, Swinging and Croquet. Special attention is paid to Dancing, Music and Dramatics.

A Day School is conducted for children of the vicinity from September to June. A Summer Play Term, June to September, opens a wide field of interest in Handcraft, Story-Telling, etc.

This is the "School that Develops Initiative."

MRS. BURT'S SCHOOL FOR TINY TOTS,Graylock, Peekskill, N. Y.*MRS. M. LEWTAS BURT, Director.

Mrs. Burt's School provides a happy Home and School Life for children from one to twelve years of age.

The School is situated in about two acres of spacious grounds which afford ample room for Gardening, Games, Swings, and Sandpiles.

Thorough instruction is given by an experienced teacher through the Grammar Grades. Every attempt is made to discover the needs of each child and to develop special abilities.

The atmosphere is far removed from the institutional and the children live the joyous life of a big, well cared for family.

Close individual attention is given to each child until his real interest is found and then the happiest method of development is followed, allowing the greatest freedom compatible with the interests of the community of which he is part.

Little children are intelligent, reasoning and reasonable human beings, and if they are treated as such will respond. The child's greatest needs — good food, regular habits, suitable companionship, and interesting pursuits — are met in this home school.

PROCTOR ACADEMY, Andover, N. H.

CARL B. WETHERELL, A.M., Head Master.

Proctor Academy is a Coeducational Secondary School of approved standing. The program of study is that outlined by the State of New Hampshire coupled with modern progressive ideas, while not departing from the best in traditional education.

Andover, a quiet and beautiful village, is one hundred five miles from Boston, easily accessible by train and motor.

The buildings are modern and well equipped. The Shop, the Farm, the Library, the Bank, the Mill, the Factory, the Store, and the Church provide working laboratories for practice as well as theory. Every effort is made to prepare the Boys and Girls at Proctor for life. In all the work interest is made a prime motive, individual initiative is emphasized, the various subjects are so interrelated as to bring out the greatest value of each, and all subjects are studied in their relation to life rather than merely as academic material. They find here a miniature of the world in which they are to take their place.

The College Preparation is adequate and prepares for any Colleges or Technical Schools. Courses in Music, Fine and Industrial Arts, Domestic Arts and Shop Work are given under well trained instructors. Each pupil's course of study is arranged in consultation with the Head Master. A Manual Training Course is offered Boys whose interests lie in that field. A Practical Arts Course for Girls trains for home management.

The country round Andover offers opportunities for a variety of play and recreation. Mountain Climbing, Sleighing, Skating, Snowshoeing, Skiing, and Tobogganing give pupils and teachers an opportunity for happy times.

The major sports of the school for Boys are Football, Basketball and Baseball, and for Girls Basketball and Baseball. There are also Tennis, Paddle Tennis, Indoor Games, Outdoor Basketball, Hockey, Track, etc.

SPRING HILL SCHOOL, Litchfield, Conn.

MRS. WILLIAM SPINNEY } Directors.
Miss DOROTHY BULL }

Children are given a healthy, happy life, combining the advantages of the old-fashioned home with the new ideas of child psychology and education at Spring Hill.

As in the old-fashioned home, there is plenty of work and play in an interesting variety, but a basic routine is maintained. In this atmosphere of individual responsibility and group cooperation, there will inevitably develop qualities of Trustworthiness, Self-Reliance, Open-Mindedness, and Goodwill.

In the foothills of the Berkshires, Litchfield, rich in beauty and historic associations, is one hundred miles from New York. The school property of sixty acres adjoins on one side the edge of the village and on the other a large farm. The six cottages are set on a hill.

A few miles from the School is a camp for overnight hiking parties. Here the children have practical experience in cooking their own meals (indoors and out), in the care of food, and in provision for the comfort and order of the camp as a whole.

Boys and girls live in separate houses, but work, eat and play together as a large family.

ADELPHI FIELD DAY

A PRACTICAL PROBLEM

ADELPHI ACADEMY, Brooklyn, N. Y.

LLOYD W. JOHNSON, Ph.B., Principal.

Founded in 1863 and incorporated in 1869, Adelphi Academy is a thorough preparatory school for boys and girls from Kindergarten to College. It is organized on the Junior-Senior High School plan. Progressive methods are followed throughout. By means of small classes, promotion by subject, individual review for backward students and a well organized adviser system, pupils are given personal guidance.

Physical education is conducted by skilled directors. The school owns a spacious gymnasium and a completely equipped athletic field. There is autobus service for younger pupils.

Special emphasis is placed upon character development through student government and extra-curricular activities.

FRIENDS' ACADEMY, Locust Valley, L. I.

S. ARCHIBALD SMITH, A.B., Head Master.

Situated in the beautiful Locust Valley, Friends' Academy, a prosperous boarding and day school, educates boys and girls of fine character under a natural coeducational arrangement.

Character-building, the paramount aim of the school, is accomplished by the spirit of cooperation between teacher and pupil. Instructors seek to interest and inspire, and to send pupils out for themselves on the joyous quest for knowledge.

The development of health is emphasized in the location of the Academy, in the construction of the buildings, in the system of physical training, and the regulations of the home.

HORACE MANN SCHOOL, Established 1887.

An integral part of Columbia University.

Owned and operated by Teachers College.

The group of buildings at Broadway and 120th Street, opposite Columbia University campus, accommodates the HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, the ELEMENTARY SCHOOL FOR BOYS AND GIRLS from six to twelve years, and the KINDERGARTEN FOR BOYS AND GIRLS from four to six years.

While especial attention is given to college preparation the interests of those who are not going to college are not neglected.

Large Gymnasium, Swimming Pool, special Exercise Rooms, Household Arts Laboratories, Studios, Industrial Arts Shops, Lunch Rooms, Open Air Classes, Afternoon Study Periods, Afternoon Recreation, Clubs, Boy and Girl Scout Troops, are among the Special Features.

HORACE MANN SCHOOL FOR BOYS, West 246th Street, overlooking Van Cortlandt Park, is three minutes walk from the end of the Broadway Subway.

By means of its ample equipment for outdoor life,—a ten acre playground,—the school cares for boys for the entire day from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. Sufficient time for a hearty mid-day meal is allowed, and a play period of two hours gives all boys opportunity for participation in sports under the direction of the teachers. The six-year course of study prepares for any College or Technical Institution.

SOMERSET HILLS PREPARATORY SCHOOL, Far Hills, New Jersey.

REV. JAMES H. STONE FAIR, Head Master.

This is a Progressive School for children from five to fifteen years of age, forty miles from New York City. In the well ordered home life emphasis is placed on preparing a small selected group, scholastically, physically, spiritually and psychologically for the larger Secondary Schools of the East.

Special attention is given to Music.

Individual work promotes rapid progress.

Scholars are accepted as five-day boarders, thereby keeping home ties intact. They live in the large old Colonial Homestead and adjoining cottage and are considered as a part of the head master's family.

Both living and teaching are as informal as is consistent with sane discipline.

SEWICKLEY ACADEMY, Sewickley, Pa.

RAYMOND I. HASKELL, Ph.D., Head Master.

This Country Day School for Boys and Girls, conducted with progressive features, specializes in College Preparation.

A thorough modern education is given Boys and Girls from the Kindergarten through the High School. Strong Academic courses are offered pupils in preparing for College and an equally high standard of scholarship is maintained in the general and cultural studies.

The lengthened school day gives children the advantage of supervised study and play.

The Buildings are modern and well equipped, with airy Classrooms.

The Faculty is chosen for personality and interest in Boys and Girls as well as for Academic attainments and successful experience.

There is every opportunity for Sports and Athletics. The Playing Fields are well laid out and extensive.

THE SECOND GRADE AT WORK

OAK LANE COUNTRY DAY SCHOOL,

Oak Lane, Philadelphia, Pa.

WILLIAM B. CURRY, M.A., Cambridge University,
Head Master.

Oak Lane Country Day School, beautifully located on a thirty acre estate adjoining Oak Lane, is one of the newer schools for boys and girls attesting the growth of the Country Day School in America. It is one of the modern, progressive schools.

The School has long been noted for its distinctive publications which keep its patrons in touch with the work of the school. Recently a Reading List of books appropriate for children of varying ages has roused keen interest in the private school field.

The School has four Departments; Kindergarten, Primary, Intermediate and an Upper School preparing for College.

An unusually well equipped Gymnasium has recently been added to the equipment and broad Playing Fields in front of the School are used by all grades for the carefully supervised Outdoor Sports, — a part of each child's program.

Definite Physical Education and careful Health Supervision is given, one feature of which is a statistical study of each child. Closed autobusses are used for transportation.

112 East 71st Street, New York City.

MARION B. B. LANGZETTEL, Director.

The Kindergarten Training Course provides a Complete Professional Training for Teachers in Kindergarten and Elementary Schools. The curriculum includes all subjects necessary for dealing with child life from Infancy through the Elementary Grades as well as such cultural subjects as give the student broad life contacts. This makes her of real value to children in whatever form her associations may develop.

A Complete Elementary School, Junior High (including preparation for Boarding School), Classes for Mothers, a Nurses' Evening Class, and Supervision of Mission Kindergartens with individual Mothers' Clubs, are maintained by the League.

Thus, unexcelled Opportunities in Observation, Settlement Work, and Practice Teaching under expert supervision are offered. A Students' Residence is maintained.

The continued broadening of the work of the League has this year necessitated the opening of the roof for an Outdoor Group of pre-kindergarten children. Special training necessary for the intelligent care of the two to four year old child is emphasized in the curriculum of the Training School.

THE SCHOOL IS IDEALLY SITUATED

THE STORM KING SCHOOL.

Cornwall-on-Hudson, New York.

This is a College Preparatory School, with a Junior School for boys from nine to twelve.

The School property, twenty-five acres, lies on a spur of Storm King Mountain, at an elevation of nine hundred feet, and commands a broad view of the Hudson, the Shawangunk and the Catskill Mountains. Black Rock Forest is in the background.

The School offers the health and vigor of a sane and simple outdoor life. There are excellent facilities for every sport, and Athletics are encouraged. A new Athletic Field furnishes ample opportunity for Baseball, Football, Tennis and Hockey, allowing separate grounds for the younger boys. Experimental work in forestry will be carried on in Black Forest under expert supervision.

The School prepares for College or Business life. Courses are so arranged as to meet the requirements of any College or Technical School. Its recent graduates, now in sixteen of the leading Colleges, have established a high record on the College Entrance Examinations.

Dramatics, Ensemble Music, Art and Craftsmanship are emphasized as much as the academic schedules permit. Illustrated Lectures and entertainments are given during the year.

For fifty years the School has through its wise management and simple discipline made a success of training boys. They are kept busy and given as much freedom as is possible for the individual and consistent with the rights of his fellows. The effect is to develop self-reliance and a sense of honor.

Each boy is studied physically and mentally with one aim, to develop the best that is in him. Catalog sent on application.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

BADMINTON SCHOOL, Westbury-on-Trym, Bristol, England.

Miss BEATRICE M. BAKER, B.A., Head Mistress.

Girls are here prepared for the examinations of various English Universities, for the Royal Academy and Royal College of Music, and for American Colleges.

The school estate, on the outskirts of the town, permits girls to lead a free, open-air life without sacrifice of the advantages provided by a university city.

The course of study for each girl is arranged so as to avoid an over-crowded curriculum and undue pressure. Afternoons and evenings are devoted to Music, Dancing, Singing, Games, Preparation of Lessons, Reading and Hobbies.

All the classrooms have been specially built so as to provide the best ventilation and light.

Besides adequate Academic training, girls are given sound Music and Art training and there are many extra-curricular activities, — Debating, Acting, Chorus, Orchestra, Woodcraft.

Careful attention is paid to health. Girls are given a medical examination once a year and their health is under the direct supervision of trained nurses. Special care in regard to diet.

The Junior School for children from five to twelve has special quarters with arrangements as homelike as possible.

MISS MACLEAN'S SCHOOL,
27 Rue La Perouse, Paris.

MISS FLORENCE MACLEAN, Director.

Miss MacLean's School, in the most desirable residence section of Paris, is within easy reach of the points of interest.

The school gives American girls the opportunity of learning to speak the French language and of acquiring a thorough knowledge of French History and Literature and the History of Art. French is the language of the home and school.

The limited number of pupils makes it possible for the girls to enjoy the privileges of familiar intercourse with French life and speech.

All the courses are under the personal supervision of Miss MacLean who has been a resident of Paris since her childhood and is familiar with the best foreign educational methods.

Four weeks at Christmas are spent on the Riviera or in Switzerland. Four weeks at Easter are devoted to travel in Italy or Spain. Week end trips to places of interest in or near Paris are taken and in the spring five days are spent motoring through the Loire country.

American correspondence may be addressed to Miss C. Kellogg, 100 W. 55th Street, New York City.

LE GRAND VERGER, Signal, Lausanne, Switzerland.

MESDAMES PFLUGER, Principals.

Le Grand Verger is a large, modern, finishing school with unusually good equipment and extensive grounds. A sound education is supplemented by all kinds of athletics and outdoor sports. Preparation for College Board Examinations is undertaken.

In the Junior School entire charge is taken of girls from seven to fourteen years.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

INSTITUTION DES ESSARTS, Territet-Montreux, Switzerland.

EDOUARD CHARLES BATTUS, Principal.

M^ME. EDOUARD CHARLES BATTUS } Asst. Lady
Principals.

Institution des Essarts accepts girls from ten to twenty as Resident and Day Pupils.

The Institution is on a most delightful part of the Gulf of Territet, affording a magnificent view of Lac Lemane (or Geneva) and the Mountains.

The Building is modern and its Equipment includes Laboratories, Studios, a Library, Gymnasium and Athletic Courts.

French and Foreign Languages, Literature, History, History of Art, Science and Mathematics are taught. The French Language is always spoken in the house. Pupils attend their own Church under the escort of mistresses of the same faith.

Summer Vacation in the Mountains and Winter Sports during the Christmas Holidays may be arranged.

M^ME. JEAN WAKULSKI-

VIRET, M.Sc.

} Principals.

Le Manoir enrolls girls wishing to learn French while completing their general education and girls preparing for examinations. French is compulsory in all classes.

The stone house, equipped throughout with electricity and central heating is on the lake shore. The water is excellent, the food abundant.

The studies are under the supervision of the principals, who being of French origin give the pupils a pure and correct pronunciation. A trip to Italy is arranged at Easter. At Christmas a week is passed in the mountains.

PENSIONNAT ROSENECK,

Avenue de Cour, Lausanne, Switzerland.

M^{LLE}. ECUYER, Principal.

Roseneck is a Finishing School for thirty resident pupils from fifteen to twenty years of age.

Languages, Music, Art and Literature are emphasized and Lectures, Concerts, and Theatres are attended under Chaperonage.

The modernized building is situated on a large estate on the outskirts of the town, affording opportunity for Outdoor Sports. Tuition: 4000 frs.

M^{LLE}. P. DAVID, Principal.

École Vinet was the first girls high school in French-speaking Switzerland.

The standard of the school is that of the Public High School and pupils holding the École Vinet diploma are admitted into the State Gymnase. Foreign pupils can obtain a diploma for the teaching of French in their own country, and can be prepared for the "Certificate for Foreigners" given by the State High School.

An Elementary Class, an Intermediate Division, and a Senior Division make up the school. Special classes for foreigners to enable them to enter the ordinary classes for Swiss pupils as soon as their knowledge of French is sufficient, are offered.

Connected with the Staff are Professors holding English University degrees, who prepare English and American Girls for their own examinations.

The fine modern building, admirably situated in the center of the town, is provided with central heating, has large airy classrooms, a large Garden, and Playground. Pupils are recommended to Swiss families and small homes for residence.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

THE LOUISE AMELIE HOME SCHOOL,

Villa Mascotte, Golfe Juan, France.

Mlle. MARCELINE DENOYER, Principal.

This school offers an unusual combination of the real life of a French home and excellent intellectual training.

The directress, who has had some years' experience in the leading schools in the United States, gives her careful attention to the special needs and tastes of American Students.

Cannes is one of the most beautiful and exclusive resorts on the Riviera. The Climate allows the Students to live largely out of doors. The Villa, just outside of the town, has been selected with special care to heating, lighting, and sanitation. The directress makes the Health of each Student her personal care.

French is the language of the Home and a schedule is carefully arranged so that each girl's program will be especially adapted to her individual attention and desires. French Grammar and Composition, Literature and Elocution, and European History will be supplemented by Lectures and Plays.

The most attractive feature of the school is the Home Life which pervades all activities. Informal Teas, the Spring Regatta and Battle of Flowers at Cannes, the Carnival at Nice as well as International Tennis Tournaments and Races are attended.

COLLEGIO GAZZOLO, Arcole, Verona, Italy.

CONTESSA DI NOGAROLE MEEHAN } Principals.
 CAV. CHARLES MEEHAN }

Collegio Gazzolo, an American School for Girls, offers exceptional Scholastic and Social Advantages under the personal supervision of the Contessa Di Nogarole Meehan.

It is a home for girls, thirteen to twenty-two years of age, who wish serious study of Languages, Literature, History, Art and Music.

The Faculty are French and Italian College graduates.

The Villa, used as the residence, is the Ancestral Home of the Contessa and has all modern comforts. Classes are held out of doors during Spring and Fall.

Two months' travel may be arranged in Winter, visiting Florence, Rome, Naples, Sicily, Greece and Egypt, where the students attend Opera, Concerts and Lectures.

Special students are taken for three months of Summer Travel in the Dolomites, Alto Adige, Switzerland and the Italian Lakes, with opportunities for Sea Bathing at the Lido.

CHATEAU DE BURES, par Villennes, France.

PRYNCE HOPKINS, Ph.B., A.M., Supervisor

THOMAS C. BURTON, M.A., Head Master

G. D'HANGEST, Associate Head Master

An American School preparing American Boys for College. Situated in the very heart of historic France, and within an hour of Paris, the Château de Bures utilizes the linguistic and cultural advantages of its environment as part of its educational program of giving American Boys a broad cultural base for their pre-college education.

The ownership and administration are American, but French and English masters among the faculty help make for thoroughness in the languages and literature.

The program is coordinated with American day and boarding schools, thus facilitating easy transfer for Boys from eight years up. It is non-sectarian, and old-fashionedly thorough, but modern and progressive in methods and program, making possible the utmost adaptation to individual needs. The enrollment is limited and carefully selected.

On the spacious grounds of the Old Château have been added a new modern Dormitory with outdoor Sleeping Porches and indoor private Studies, a new open-air Gymnasium, and an out-of-doors Map of the World covering several acres. A large variety of open-air Sports are provided for, and a boathouse on the Seine affords opportunities for Sculling and Sailing Crews.

An abundance of wholesome fare is provided, including dairy products, fruit, and vegetables produced on the domain.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

CHÂLET GENISÉ,

M. CHANNING PEARCE, B.A., Oxford, Head Master.

Châlet Genisé, 4,200 feet above sea level, is surrounded by pine forests in one of the sunniest spots in Switzerland. The climate is dry and bracing. The Châlet, a well built modern structure overlooking the Dent du Midi and the Rhone valley, has wide balconies on which work is done. It is easily accessible from Lausanne, Montreux and Geneva.

Mr. Pearce engages one tutor for every four boys. During the past year five boys have been sent up for examinations (including the Harvard Entrance Examination) and all have passed.

Careful attention is given to the health and the diet of the boys by Mrs. Pearce who is assisted by a matron. Excellent medical supervision is available. No tubercular cases are taken.

All Winter Sports and Tennis, Golf, Bathing, Mountaineering, Badminton and Billiards can be enjoyed.

A Junior Department for boys under fourteen is conducted in an adjoining châlet.

Mr. Hallen Viney, care of The English Speaking Union, 19 West 44th Street, New York City, is the American Representative.

ENGLISH PREPARATORY SCHOOL,

Glion, Vaud, Switzerland.

W. E. MOCATTA, B.A., Oxford, Head Master.

This is a thoroughly up-to-date school for boys from seven to fourteen, with small classes insuring individual attention.

American boys are specially prepared for American schools.

Glion stands 2,000 feet above the sea level with a wonderful view across the Lake of Geneva. The House is large and airy, stone built and central heated throughout. The classrooms are in a separate building. The school has its own grounds away from the village.

Glion is easily accessible from Montreux and Territet, which are on the main Paris-Lausanne Simplon line.

The School has a first-class health record. Mr. Mocatta has excellent references in the States.

COPPET COLLEGE,

Coppet, near Geneva, Switzerland.

E. SCHWARTZ-BUYS, B.D., Principal.

Coppet College, "La Châtaigneraie," a progressive boarding school for boys from seven to eighteen, gives thorough preparation for College Entrance and other examinations, emphasizing especially the study of French and Modern Languages.

The buildings, with laboratories and workshops, are modern and well equipped. There is opportunity for all the usual sports.

Dr. and Mrs. Schwartz-Buys are keenly in sympathy with American ideals of discipline and education and their small group of English speaking boys is happy and well cared for.

THE WALTER SCHOOL FOR BOYS,

St. Prex on the Lake of Geneva and St. Moritz, Engadine, Switzerland.

DR. HANS WALTER, Ph.D., Zurich University, Head.

This School has two ideal situations. The fall and spring terms are spent at St. Prex, nine miles from Lausanne, directly on the water-front with spacious grounds including Bathing Beach, Boat House, Playgrounds and Tennis Court. Here is conducted Camp Diviko during July and September. The second term, from December to April, is spent in St. Moritz.

Thorough preparation is provided for entrance to American Colleges. Modern Languages are taught by native masters.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

MADAME BONI SCHOOL,
 1 Via Dora, Rome 34, Italy.
 MME. M. N. BONI, Director.

Madame Boni's School at Rome offers to a limited number of girls exceptional opportunities for Travel and Study in Europe under desirable home influences.

Madame Boni gives her personal attention to the health of the girls, and is their constant companion in their work and play.

The small size of the group insures flexibility of program.

The curriculum emphasizes the correlation of the History, Art, Literature and Music of the Country in the localities in which these arts flourished. French and Italian are the only languages used in the school and daily home life.

Two months out of the eight months of the school year are given to travelling. The summer term is spent at Madame Boni's Villa — Sunhill, Castiglione on the Mediterranean, where excellent opportunities are offered for all seaside sports, study, languages, and visits to hill towns.

The American representative is Mrs. August K. Kappes, R.F.D. 1, Freehold, New Jersey. Tel. — 107-F 23 Freehold.

SUMMER CAMPS

SUMMER CAMPS

The following Select Directory is a representative but not complete list and includes only those camps that responded to letters offering them the opportunity to be here represented. The invitation was not extended to all and not all accepted.

The HANDBOOK OF SUMMER CAMPS, 4th edition, 1927, 864 pages, with maps and illustrations, sold at $5.00, is entirely revised and lists hundreds of camps not included in earlier editions.

Mail inquiries in regard to summer camps, clearly worded, will be answered, advice given and booklets furnished without charge.

A blank form on which to indicate exactly the kind of camp wanted will be sent on request.

For extended correspondence or investigation and for personal consultation a fee is charged those who are able to pay.

THE C. E. COBB CAMPS, Denmark, Maine.
MR. AND MRS. COBB AND SONS, Denmark, Maine.
Winter address, Vero Beach, Florida.

WYONEGONIC, 25 seasons old, has three woodland encampments, on the sandy shores of a long lake at the foot of Pleasant Mountain. Girls, 8 to 20, are grouped according to age. Fifty is the maximum number in each camp.

The camps are equipped with central Bungalows, with modern plumbing, model infirmaries, khaki Tents, fleets of Boats and Canoes, Motor Boats, Sail Boats and War Canoes. Excellent food and beds are two essential factors. Councilors are carefully chosen for their love of youth, their ability as leaders, and their influence for culture. Emphasis is placed on activities particularly appropriate to Lakes and Woodland.

WINONA, 19 summers old, accommodates 150 boys, 7 to 16, also in three separate units, grouped according to age and limited to 50 in each group. Woodcraft, Campcraft, and Water Sports are emphasized, although Athletics and all other Outdoor Activities are enjoyed.

Under the supervision of carefully selected councilors the boys enjoy every phase of healthy Outdoor Life, developing a sense of individual responsibility and an appreciation of loyalty and friendship.

(Winona and Wyonegonic, while under the same management, are entirely independent and several miles apart. The Denmark Inn and Camp for Adults, run in connection with these camps, offer adequate accommodation to parents and friends.)

Booklets of both Camps and "The Inn" sent on request.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

CAMP PENNESSEEWASSEE, LAKE PENNESSEEWASSEE, Norway, Me.

JOHN SHAW FRENCH, A.B., Ph.D., Northwood, N.H.

Particular attention is given to the growth and development of the boy. Camp activities are adjusted to the individual. Observation, concentration and imagination are strengthened by trips into the forest. Each day is planned so that the boys receive definite physical, intellectual and moral training.

The councilors are carefully selected men who understand and sympathize with the growing boy.

Aquatics, athletics and riding are featured. The camp site, with eighty acres of cedar forest, borders on the lake for 3000 feet. Each of the ten camp buildings, equipped with modern conveniences, accommodates ten boys and a councilor. From the camp farm are supplied milk, eggs and garden produce.

The Lakeside Inn, a quarter of a mile from camp, accommodates parents.

CAMP MISHE-MOKWA, West Alton, N. H.
L. THEODORE WALLIS, A.B., Dartmouth, '05,
15 Pine St., Winchester, Mass.

Mishe-Mokwa is a summer camp for younger boys. The enrollment is limited and the patronage national. A discriminating standard of admission is maintained.

Boys are taught the value of building up a vigorous physique, but overstrain in competition and in exercise is especially avoided. Real woodcraft is practised on the frequent canoeing and camping trips of the cabin groups.

The camp life is simple and happy, and the atmosphere wholesome. The boys grow in manliness, learn to think for themselves, to get along with the other fellow and to be "good sports." Emphasis is put on courtesy and manners.

For over twenty years the Director's entire work has been the education, development and recreation of boys. On the staff are other experienced men, — several of whom are fathers with sons of their own. It means much to parents to know that they are entrusting the care and safekeeping of their sons to such men as make up the Mishe-Mokwa staff.

MRS. E. N. EMERSON, Northampton, Mass.

PAUL R. BROWN, 181 Windsor Road, Waban, Mass.

Mohawk Lodges is a small camp for boys seven to fourteen years of age. The enrollment is strictly limited to boys of discriminating Christian parents.

Mohawk Lodges aims to instill in its campers a love of the open and outdoor living; to provide opportunities for their spiritual growth; to create or develop qualities of courage, initiative, self-reliance, and leadership. As far as is consistent with safety, the camp life is free from rules and regulations.

Mohawk Lodges specializes in Nature, Campcraft, and Woodcraft. Many specimens collected during the season are in its camp museum. All of our boys really feel at home in the woods, and they welcome opportunities for building various types of shelters and fireplaces, for making comfortable beds, and for preparing meals while on overnight trips and excursions.

Mohawk Lodges prides itself on its outstanding personnel. The staff men are leaders, not directors, of boys. They are selected for their interest in boys, their ability to work and play with them, and their sense of responsibility and mature judgment.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

THE MASHNEE ISLAND BOYS CAMPS,

Buzzards Bay, Cape Cod, Massachusetts.

M. W. MURRAY,

Associate Principal, Newton High School

I. O. PALMER,

Principal, Newton High School.

} Directors.

The STUDY CAMP has grown out of the need found at Camp Mashnee for tutoring. The increased pressure of college entrance requirements has made summer study essential for many boys who wish to pass the College Board examinations or fit for the next grade in preparatory schools.

The Study Camp is associated with Camp Mashnee in that it is under the same general management and occupies a portion of Mashnee Island set apart because of its suitability as a place in which to live and study. The recreational facilities of Mashnee are available for the boys in the Study Camp in so far as their tutoring program will permit. The dining quarters and infirmary are used in common and the boys of both camps are under the same medical supervision.

Tutoring is arranged to meet the needs of each boy. Parents who wish may, by special financial arrangement, have their own tutor or the full time of a special tutor.

Instructors from the leading preparatory schools for boys have been engaged for the season of 1927 and the advisory board for both camps is composed of prominent educators.

THE CAPE COD SAILING CAMP and THE MASHNEE ISLAND CAMP FOR YOUNG BOYS are both purely recreational.

THE BEST CAMP FOR YOUR BOY

It may have been the best camp for your neighbor's son, but perhaps Your Boy is entirely different.

Perhaps it takes a different type of man to handle Your Boy, to understand him and to succeed with him.

Does Your Boy need suppression or does he need drawing out; pressure or encouragement; the competition of numbers or individual attention and help?

Does he need snubbing or a dose of hero-worship?

Does he need strenuous activities, careful oversight, sympathetic encouragement, or hard driving?

Not Any Camp will supply all these, but there are some that will afford what you seek.

Selecting the Environment in which he is to shape himself, to form his habits, to make his friends, is a portentous task. Your Success or Your Failure in this will do much to determine the type of man he is to be.

Is not the Selection of a Camp or School just as deserving of Expert Advice as the Making of a Will?

Double L Bar Summer Vacation Horseback Pack Trips in the Wyoming Rockies — 45 days duration — Girls' Group under direction of Miss C. Mildred Stark and Physician. Boys' Group under direction of James Ralph Scott, M.D. Both parties strictly limited.

Experienced western personnel provided for the trail. As heretofore, trips under supervision of Robert Libby Kaufman, who may be addressed at 77 Park Avenue, New York City, for illustrated booklet.

"GLENBROOKE," Lake Memphremagog, Quebec, Canada.
 Harry R. Dane, Director, 548 Parkview Ave., Detroit, Michigan. A summer of real camping for sixty boys. Horseback Riding, Canoe Trips, Aquaplaning, Shooting Rapids of Canadian Rivers, Radio, Dramatics and Manual Training. Golf, Tennis and all usual sports expertly coached. One of the finest and best equipped camps in America. Forty acre estate. Two large Motor Boats, good Sailing and Fishing. Truly educational for development of individual personality. Camp open June 23 to Sept. 15.

Write Mr. Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston.

THE KEEWAYDIN CAMPS.

CANADIAN WIGWAM — Real Camps in the Real Woods featuring Camping and Canoeing Trips with native guides throughout the marvelous Timagami Forest Reserve of Canada. The virile life gives a boy adventure, fills him with self-reliance and resourcefulness, and works wonders for him physically.

DUNMORE WIGWAMS — At Lake Dunmore, in the heart of the Green Mountains, is a completely equipped, efficiently staffed, and ably conducted camp for young boys, where the campers are really taught to know Nature and are prepared for the Canadian Camps of Keewaydin.

SONGADEEWIN WIGWAM — At Lake Willoughby, in the Green Mountains of Vermont, is a uniquely beautiful and completely equipped girls' camp which offers all Sports and Camp Activities. Horseback Riding is taught by Army Cavalry Officers. Long and short canoe trips are featured.

BEENADEEWIN WIGWAM — A small camp for girls on Lake Fairlee, Vermont, makes a specialty of Nature Lore, Hand-crafts and Aquatics. A special division gives opportunity for intensive practice in French by means of songs, games and general conversation. For information, address:

JOHN H. RUSH, General Director, Ravenna, Ohio.

SARGENT SCHOOL SERVICE

School Executives and Camp Directors are invited to keep Mr. Sargent informed in regard to required additions to their staff, Head Masters, Executives, Teachers or Camp Councilors.

Head Masters, Teachers, Camp Councilors seeking positions are registered at this office without charge.

All communications are considered confidential and identity revealed only to schools interested.

Blank forms for registration will be sent on application.

A list of Schools and Camps for sale or to lease and of properties suitable for School and Camp use is maintained.

Executives, Heads of Departments, Permanent Members of Staff, those who are making the training of the young their life work, are listed without charge or obligation in the Who's Who in Private Schools, the Who's Who in Summer Camps, or both. Send for a blank. If there is sufficient interest, this may be published eventually as a separate book.

The Sargent Handbooks

SUMMER CAMPS

Fourth edition, 1927, ca. 900 pages, maps and illustrations. Silk cloth, $5.00

A CRITICAL DESCRIPTION of Summer Camps for Boys and for Girls, which will help the parent to select the right camp. Two hundred illustrations show varied camp activities.

Introductory chapters and statistical matter aid the educator as well as the parent.

Statistical information is given for each camp, including the names and winter addresses of directors, number of councilors, enrollment, age limits, cost, date of establishment, altitude. A brief description of the locality, the geography of the surrounding country, the scenic setting and means of access by rail or motor precede the account of each group of camps.

The arrangement is geographical, following the order in which one would be likely to visit the camps, by road or waterway. A section on Types of Camps, Classified Finding Lists of Camps that meet special requirements, and Indexes will aid in finding any particular camp or kind of camp desired.

Chapters deal with the various features of Camp Life, the Choice of a Camp and the Geographical Regions where Camps center. Camp Activities and phases of camp life are treated by well known camp leaders.

Other chapters deal in a general way with summer camping as developed and conducted by the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Camp Fire Girls, Y.M.C.A., Church and Charitable Organizations. Other features are:—

A Bibliography of Camps and Camping and related subjects, with reviews of the recent books of interest to the camps.

A Who's Who in Camping.

Directories of Camp Associations and Dealers in Camp Supplies.

Educational COUNSEL AND ADVICE For Parents

MR. SARGENT is helping Hundreds of Parents to solve their Educational Problems, to select just the right school environment for their sons or daughters.

The Schools and the School People are intimately known to him. He has always been a teacher and knows Boys and Girls. He keeps abreast of the developments in adolescent psychology.

In difficult and exacting cases a Personal Interview not only with the parents but with the Boy or Girl is necessary and not infrequently leads to further examination by physicians and psychanalysts in conjunction with whom Mr. Sargent works.

Choosing a School for your Son or Daughter is one of the most serious and responsible functions a Parent or Guardian is called upon to perform.

It is as deserving of Expert Advice and Counsel as the making of a Will or the Planning of a House.

SUMMER CAMPS for Boys and Girls. — Those who run them and the ideals which actuate them are equally well known to Mr. Sargent. Let him know specifically what you want and he will write you where to find it if it exists.

Mail inquiries clearly stated will be answered promptly and advice given without charge. For extended correspondence or investigation and for personal consultation a fee is charged to those who are able to pay.

A Blank Form to be filled out will be sent on application which will facilitate complete understanding of the case, and make possible diagnosis and helpful advice.
